Home sweet home, where the sun shines 12 months a year, where the green of the trees hides the grey of the apartment buildings, where the waves of the Atlantic, kissing the sand, take you to sleep, where negroes and white men live in peace and friendship, where the shacks on the slopes of the hills show you what poverty is, where a 1950 Chevrolet costs 3,000 dollars, where there is one policeman for every one hundred outlaws.

"But, as somebody said once, home is where the heart is, and so I can consider myself a lucky guy for having two homes. I'll always have you in my mind. When I am with my friends I'll be with you too, and next year, when my soccer team gets the beach championship, I'll be sure that the boys here will be getting the state title in basketball.

"Good bye, folks, and good luck to you all. Or perhaps, who knows, I should say 'so long.'"

Former Fargo Resident Tells of Storm Damage

By James A. Bolsten

Mr. Bolsten is a member of the Lincoln high school faculty and now a resident of Thief River Falls.

My wife's father and mother live in Fargo. They live in what was a comfortable residential area. Now it's classified as a disaster area.

This area was also our old neighborhood, our former home was located seven doors north of my wife's parents' home—we sold the house a year ago last November.

These were good and sufficient reasons for us to visit our relatives and former neighbors Sunday and also to qualify us for a pass into the tornado devastated district.

Such passes contain a description of the bearer as a drivers license does, and are filled out in detail including the exact location to be visited and the purpose of the visit. The issuing officer told us the best street to take north and we started out.

As we approached the furrow of fury we stopped at each corner to have our pass inspected. Security was excellent for which home owners are thankful. Our passes were checked many times during the afternoon and police cars continually sent people out of the area who had come in on foot for sightseeing. Inconceivable as it seems, we heard reports of looting and were told that guards Thursday and Friday nights shot first and asked questions later.

As we approached the scene of disaster the damage increased gradually until we reached Twelfth Avenue North on Tenth Street where a completely different view was afforded. Here the sky opened up because there were no longer trees with branches snapped off; there were no longer trees. There were no longer telephone and power poles with a few wires down; there everything was down. Houses had more than broken windows, the windows, roofs and walls were broken, crumbled, warped, twisted or missing entirely. Everywhere were heaps of rubble—glass, splintered boards, pulverized plaster, tree limbs and parts of everything to be found in an average home anywhere.

When we pulled up in front of our parent's home we stared in disbelief. We had to look closely to be sure we were at the right place. A street corner marker, bent down to the ground, showed us we were at the right corner. We still had to look closely at the roofless shell before us to recognize it as what had been a very familiar house, in a very familiar neighborhood.

The furniture inside seemed to be in fair condition until a closer look revealed that torrential rains had warped drawers and lifted veneers until all was useless. Rugs, bedding and stuffed furniture were damp and beginning to mildew.

Outside the lawns were littered with the things described before plus asphalt shingles torn in some cases to the size of postage stamps. Shrubs and hedges were twisted, tangled and bent to the ground. Parts of roofs and walls were scattered about. Of the larger trees only trunks and heavier limbs are left, broken off as might twist the leaves or break off a stalk of celery.

Not a trace of the garage was to be found. We finally determined the direction in which it had departed by a trail of garden and lawn tools, all with blue handles, stretching north. A small wheel barrow was found, intact, in a clump of twisted branches that had been an apple tree five doors north. The spade end of a small World War I trench shovel, which is a treasured souvenir from an uncle, was found seven doors north in a rain gutter of a two story house.

This house still stood, but was twisted a few feet off it's foundation, wrenching cracks into the walls, roof and ceiling until it too was a total loss. Unfortunately the owner, my former next door neighbor, had only $2000 insurance on a house which would cost $14,000 to replace. He had suffered financial reverses because of his wife's recent illness and had therefore reduced this insurance.

Those houses directly in the path of the tornado were all in about the same condition. Though each had different details of construction, all seemed to be total losses.

After hearing the many descriptions on radio and TV, and reading newspaper accounts, one is tempted to believe exaggeration and sensationalism might have crept in a little. If anything however descriptions are at best understatements.

Words can't carry the impact, nor can pictures reveal the awful reality of such ravage. It has to be seen to be believed and once seen one is strongly inclined to put little value on worldly possessions which in an instant can become like shattered clay. Almost as unbelievable is the spirit of the people involved.

By now the initial shock is over and reality is being faced with a tremendous spirit of hope. People are at work chipping away at the mountains of debris in an attempt and with the desire to return to normal. Most are in a good humor and aren't letting their misfortune crush their spirits.

I saw one woman who felt sorry for herself, but she usually did even before the tornado. I heard about one home owner who had lost only a few shingles complaining because he had to remove his neighbors tree from his driveway, but these were the exceptions. In other cases neighbors who hadn't spoken for years stood arm in arm in front of their houses surveying their mutual misfortune. A twister seems to level more than property.

There is some humor, bizzare humor though it may be. While talking to a former neighbor down the block a shiny black 1957 station wagon went by. Shiny that is except for accordion pleats running along the top and both sides. It was also sans windows and as it passed we noticed it canted a bit on the bias; yet it was running.

This reminded the neighbor of the fellow who was looking out the bathroom window on the second floor of his house when he saw a red station wagon go by at the second story level. This convinced him he should go to the basement.

We saw and talked to more neighbors Sunday afternoon than in all the many return trips since we moved away. It was hard not to see them, they couldn't very well be inside. They were outside working in the same spirit in which they used to work cultivating their lawns and gardens.

Such sights can't help but test one's philosophy, can't help but make all persons effected re-evaluate life, it's meaning and worth. Fortunately most people come up with the basic premises of faith, hope and charity. One wonders why such things happen, but in humility one must recognize that man's most profound wisdom is like stupidity when compared to the wisdom of God who knows the reason for such things.

Raymond Martins Bringing Luther Emblem to Chicago

Augustana Conference on Youth to Get Emblem Made in Trumpetsound Shop

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Martin left today for Chicago, Illinois where they will attend the 17th International Youth Conference of the Augustana Lutheran church at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Delegates will be in attendance from Sweden, Africa, Japan, and British Guiana as well as from all over the United States for six days of meetings beginning June 29.

Mr. Martin will deliver a huge Luther emblem 20 feet in diameter which was designed and executed by him in the local Trumpetsound shop. The emblem is painted in 5 colors of fluorescent paint which glow at night with the use of 2 huge ultra-violet ray lamps.

It will be the main backdrop at the convention's large mass meetings in the Chicago Coliseum and in the band shell in Grant park. It will also be used at the Lutheran World Federation meeting in Minneapolis in August, and is probably the largest Luther emblem in the world.

A feature of the convention will be a parade of floats and delegations on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Martin will be the trumpeter on the "American Flag" float. He will also participate in the Brass Choir led by Frederic Hilary, organist at Central Lutheran church Minneapolis; and accompany the daily "Hymn Sings."

First Lutheran church, Marvin Carlson, pastor, is the local Augustana Lutheran church.

American Legion Sets Its Meeting Tuesday, July 9th

The local American Legion Post will hold its regular July meeting Tuesday evening, July 9, instead of on the regular first Tuesday of the month. The reason for the change, according to Commander Robert Bredeson, was because of the Pennington county fair, which is scheduled July 1 through the 4th. Bredeson called on all Legionnaires to turn out to work at the fair stand, and also to attend the meeting July 9.

We believe in advertising; you might, too, if you gave it a real trial.

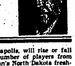
Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson



The Game of The Year

The softball game of the year was played on the East Side diamond on Monday evening. The score was 10 to 8; the winners were Bridgeman's; and the hero was Bob Carlson.

Those are the facts.

The victory, and it was cherished and relished immensely by the Bridgeman's and their contingent of fans, continued Carlson's club in the league lead. Their margin over the Bjorkman's is two full games, and they have a one-game lead over Len's Tire Service team.

But to get back to Bob Carlson's epic performance. Bob, who was playing and pitching with a game leg, proved to be the decisive factor, both on the offense (as a batter) and on the defense (as a pitcher). Here's a recital of Bob's batting feats in the Bridgeman's "big" 3rd and 4th innings: Gail Anderson beat out an infield hit, Irv Wilson singled into left-field, Dick Lane struck out; but Bob Carlson, a southpaw batter, slammed a double down the left-field foul line, scoring Anderson and Wilson. In the 4th inning, Nick Carlson led off with a single to center; Wilson drew a walk, Lane poled a single to center, scoring Nick Carlson; and then Bob poled out a home run into deep right-field, accounting for three runs.

The never-say-die Bjorkman's (and they are all competitors who hate to lose) scored a run in the 4th inning, added five in the 5th inning, and, with a 2-run cluster in the 6th, gained an 8 to 7 lead. The Bridgeman's came back with three runs in the top of the 7th inning, benefiting on a Bjorkman's error to tally two of those three runs.

All in all, it was Bob Carlson's and the Bridgeman's finest hour.

Remember?

We are in receipt of a clipping taken from an Escanaba, Mich. paper. And here is the lead paragraph: "Denny McGinn made a three-hit debut on the Escanaba Bear's mound as manager Wally Flath's team notched its fifth straight victory in the Northern Home Talent League here Sunday, beating Oconto, 6-0."

And here is the second paragraph: "McGinn granted singles in the third, seventh and ninth innings while whiffing 13 batsmen. The lanky side-armer displayed near perfect control walking only one. McGinn retired the side in order in seven of the nine frames and didn't allow a runner past second base."

These two paragraphs should be of interest to old-time high school athletic fans here, for the Denny McGinn mentioned is the son of Dennis McGinn. And of course, Dennis McGinn is rated with the all-time athletic greats of Lincoln high school. The elder McGinn was captain of the 1918-19 high school basketball team, captain of the 1919 football team. He also played ball with the local city team.

Looking over the box score, though, we notice that young McGinn batted in last place in the batting order, and in three trips to the plate he was held hitless. Like father, like son, for the elder McGinn was "good field, no hit," too.

Bob May

The North Dakota Sioux varsity hockey squad has a new coach in the person of Bob May. May, a native of Sprague, Manitoba, and a graduate of North Dakota U, succeeds the popular and efficient Al Renfrew. Renfrew resigned his North Dakota hockey coaching post to accept the Michigan U position, which was made available when Vic Heyliger vacated the latter post.

Renfrew, in the one year that he was at North Dakota, turned in a successful season, and he did a fine job in "recruiting" prospects for future Sioux teams. Joey Poole and Bob Helgeland, local boys who were members of Renfrew's varsity squad this past season, were much impressed by Renfrew's hockey coaching ability.

Bob May, who comes to the North Dakota U job after several successful season's as hockey coach at Roosevelt high school in Minneapolis, will rise or fall on the number of players from last season's North Dakota freshman team who return to school, and who will be eligible for varsity hockey.

Local fans recall the Sioux freshman hockey team (they played an exhibition game against the Thieves last January), and they can recall such standout players as goalie Bob Peters, defenseman Ralph Lyndon, and forwards Ed Tomlinson, Ron King, Tom Neal, Art Miller, and Gus Bettiol, and others. That was an all-Canadian freshman team, consisting of fourteen players from various hockey hotbeds in the Dominion.

In commenting on May's appointment to the North Dakota job, the Twin City papers expressed concern over the number of Minneapolis and St. Paul high school hockey players who would follow May to North Dakota. The Sioux won't develop into a conference championship contenders if they are to rely on the Twin City high school hockey players. There's no question but that the Canadians play better hockey than do the Americans.

Sunday Double-header

Rain and wet grounds again disrupted the Northern Minny League's mid-week schedule, forcing postponement of the Thieves vs. Winger game slated to have been played here on Wednesday night.

General manager Harold Johnson announced the Fair Grounds diamond will be the scene of a an afternoon game, with game-time at 2:30 p.m. the league-leading Bagley Merchants will play the Thieves; and 8:00 p.m. manager Jack Poole's Red Lake Falls Lakers will face the Thieves. Both of the games are Northern Minny league games, being play off of postponed games.

Other leagues in the vicinity will have a slate of Sunday games, too. The Pennington County league will find Silver Creek at Middle River, and Greenbush at St. Hilaire. While the North Six league has an open date on Sunday, it's probable that the date will be utilized in the playing of postponed games.

Joey Poole's local American Legion team, also troubled by weather problems, will attempt to get their "home" schedule under way on Friday when they meet Alvarado on the Fair Grounds diamond. Game time is 7:00 p.m.

Miscellany

Dr. Jim Disse was fishing the rain-swollen Clearwater river one day last week, and he caught a tagged rainbow trout. The trout, and it was a good one, carried a tag number 25. Doc has reported his catch to the state game and fish department. Jim had to provide the information that he caught the trout on an angleworm.—Herschel (Pepper) Lysaker, Crookston Central's fine all-around athlete, was in town last week, and in conversation with him we learned that he has decided to enroll at Concordia college next fall. One of the factors in persuading Pepper to decide on the Cobber school was that freshman are eligible to participate in varsity athletics. Pepper should be quite an asset to the Cobber football, basketball and track squads. Pepper added that there was a very good possibility that the Prowlers' Dave Hanson, after he graduates from Lincoln high school next spring, will also enroll at Concordia. Dave and Pepper are good friends, and Pepper is perhaps engaging on a recruiting campaign on Dave. Pepper also stated that there was a possibility that Bemidji's all-state Ray Cronk would attend Concordia after he graduated from Bemidji. We have been advised that the detour, from Greenbush to Badger, will not be set-up until after the July Fourth holiday.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times—

Some time ago our county agent and a reporter from your paper visited my farm and asked permission to take pictures of my milk house. Being interested in promoting dairying, I of course thought this was fine. The story that accompanied the picture, however, was not so fine. One paragraph was as follows:

"Not only is milk kept in fine quality" says Burtness, "but it is easier to handle. No carrying or lifting of milk cans is involved. From the storage of milk in ten gallon cans other advantages are; elimination of dumping loss, consolidation of hauling and elimination of can washing. Storage in a three hundred gallon tank is quite a change," says Burtness.

It is true that a bulk tank is very efficient for cooling milk but the rest of the paragraph consists of things I didn't say. Let's look at these so called advantages, one at a time.

"It is easier to handle, no carrying or lifting of milk cans is involved." For most dairy farmers using stanchion barns, nothing could be farther from the truth. In my case I must haul the milk from the barn into the milkhouse in two ten gallon cans and pour it into the bulk tank. Since these cans weigh approximatelf one hundred pounds when they are nearly full and and since the bulk tank, including the strainer through which the milk is poured is forty seven inches above the floor, my bulk tank has obviously not eliminated either carrying or lifting milk cans for me, but rather forces me to lift them about three feet higher than with my side-opening cooler.

"Elimination of dumping loss." It is true that there is a small advantage in having a bulk tank in this respect.

"Consolidation of hauling and elimination of can washing." These are definitely advantages but they benefit the processor rather than the dairyman who bought a bulk tank for two thousand dollars or more. The only advantage to the dairyman in this respect is that he will no longer be supplied by the processor with unwashed milk cans, as he was quite frequently before he bought a bulk tank. And while the bulk tank eliminated can washing for the processor, it introduced bulk tank cleaning for the dairyman, making more work for him in this respect rather than less. Also the two ten gallon cans which I use to carry the milk into the milk house must be sterilized before each use and washed afterwards.

In closing I would like to say that I am anxious to see the dairy industry receive as much publicity as possible, but I object to having people quote me as making statements which are false and ridiculous.

Engineer Discusses Road Building Terms

Minnesota's rapidly expanding highway construction program, including its share of the new interstate network, has aroused a greatly increased public interest in the meaning of the various engineering terms employed in discussion of the various types of highways and their salient features. For a better understanding of these terms, here is a glossary of some of the more important ones, as presented in the 1956 annual report of L. P. Pederson, county engineer of Hennepin county:

Aggregate—This is a general term used to rescribe almost any kind of mineral used in road building. It may be gravel or sand or both in specified sizes and proportions. It may be crushed rock sized according to the purpose for which it is used, or it may be the "buckshot"—small gravel pellets—used in seal coating. When combined with asphaltic material, it becomes bituminous mixture.

Asphalt—In its form a bitumen, a bituminous solid, or hydrocarbon, also known as mineral tar. Years ago it was largely mined from the famous Trinidad lake. Today it is a product of the oil industry, the dregs of residue left after the naphtha, gasoline, kerosene and other distillates are removed by heat.

Asphaltic Concrete—One of the very best of modern road surfaces, but, contrary to popular assumption, it is not a mixture of asphalt and Portland cement. There is no cement in it. The binding material, mixed according to specifications in commercial plants, is a limelike mineral dust which gives it hardness and toughness for permanent surfacing over a properly stabilized base.

Bituminous Surface—May be any one of the various road surfaces provided by coating or impregnation of other material; casually known as—

Blacktop—A much misused term, for it can mean anything from an oiled road to a permanent nine-ton-per-axle highway. It earned disrepute in its early use as road oil sprayed upon or scarified into an existing but unstabilized surface. It was cheap but much less than permanent and not even impervious to water. Later refinements in scientific mixing and application have outgrown its failures and reputation, but not the name.

Plant Mix—A bituminous mixture produced to specifications by commercial plants. It may be one of the several "blacktop" mixtures, including asphaltic concrete, with specified amounts of sized crushed rock or gravel. It is mixed and hauled hot, around degrees, spread over the road surface and rolled down. It provides the best and most permanent type of bituminous road surface . . .

Road Mix—This is bituminous road surfacing processed with the partol grader and pulvi-mixer. . . It is a "cold mix" as contrasted with the plant mix described heretofore, and may be composed of sized gravel or crushed rock, mixed with asphaltic fluid. It is produced according to scientific specifications to fit the type of road to be surfaced.

Seal Coats—There are several kinds of two general types, one is slow-curing, a mixture of asphalt, with kerosene or distillate, and other rapid curing, in which gasoline or naphtha is used. Either makes a finish coat on asphaltic surfaces to close and seal small apertures or imperfections. Usually a thin layer of sand or buckshot-sized gravel or crushed rock is applied over it. . . .

Stabilization—Stabilization begins when the grade is established. . . . It is the tamping or packing of the various road layers and shoulders with rollers and the addition of ballast as needed.

Hippocrates is credited with being the first opthalmologist. For the treatment of eye diseases he suggested restricted diet and hot foot baths.

Sewing Contest with Wool Now on

Winners to Be Announced in Minneapolis Nov. 18

"This year's Minnesota make-it-out-of-wool contest will have its climax in Dayton's Skyroom in Minneapolis November 18th", stated Mrs. Clifford Nelson Pennington county contest director. Sponsored by the Minnesota Farm Bureau and the Minnesota Wool Growers association, the purpose of the project is to promote more sewing in the home, especially among the younger girls—and to help boost a Minnesota product—wool.

There are four categories for girls and women to enter. The sub-deb division is for girls 13 to 15; juniors and seniors, ages 14 to 22, will compete for a top state award of a trip to Salt Lake City, Utah, in January to attend the National Style Show. At the national, the top winner in each of these two divisions will win a trip to the fashion centers of the world.

The homemaker division is a Minnesota specialty and not a national contest. The top state winner in this category will receive a Singer featherweight portable sewing machine. Wool garments, sewing equipment and fabric lengths will be given as awards in all divisions.

Final day for entering will be October 1. District contests will be held in eleven cities throughout the state during the month of October. The district winners will then go on to the state style show at Dayton's in Minneapolis, where the top winners will be selected.

For further information, girl and ladies may contact Mrs. Clifford Nelson Route 4, Thief River Falls.

Wheat Quotas

By an overwhelming majority wheat growers voted in favor of continued acreage controls, knowing that this means further acreage reduction for the 1958 crop year. The vote must be considered as a recognition of the fact that we have too much wheat. It is significant that in this referendum we did not have the usual so-called friends of the farmers telling us that all this talk of surpluses is just so much "baloney."

Finding workable solutions for our farm problems would be greatly simplified if agreement could first be reached on the general facts and the questions that are actually involved. We never will be able to reach the same answer to a complex mathematical problem if we cannot agree to start with that two times two equals four.

Secret Sessions

There is one law, passed by the legislature in its last session, that could just as well have been left off the books. It forbids "executive sessions", or in other words secret meetings, by all public boards, committees or officials.

This is a well meaning piece of legislation that will clutter up the statutes and accomplish no good results. As long as we have public boards and committees and officials there are going to be secret meetings at which problems will be discussed. These meetings may be held at a local pie counter or after rehearsal in the choir loft. But they will be held.

Wherever two people get together for a confab you have a meeting. If they speak in hushed tones we may assume that the meeting is secret.

Time To Get Started

The National Milk Producers Federation is sponsoring a meeting of representatives of various farm groups in an effort to secure unity on the farm front.

It is proposed that farmers organize as groups interested in special farm products, each group seeking a program that will meet its particular needs, and all working together for the advancement of a general plan.

This is a sensible approach to the problem. The Milk Producers federation should of course concentrate on the needs of the dairy industry. The leadership for a dairy program should come from within the industry itself, from the organizations that now are serving in this field. And so with each special group.

Other segments of agriculture have had notable success with self-help methods. The fruit growers have been helping themselves effectively over a period of many years. Potato growers in some states have established marketing controls that have been beneficial. Our own Red River Valley potato growers seem to be ready now to join hands with the growers of other heavy production areas in a nation-wide self-help program.

The growers of sugar cane and sugar beets are working together in an effective production and marketing control arrangment. There are many examples of smaller groups working together to protect their special interests in more limited areas.

There is ample precedent for the type of program now being proposed by the National Milk Producers federation. It deserves the support of all farm organizations that actually are interested in improving the lot of the producer.

And, let it not be forgotten, the National Milk Producers federation is in an excellent position to give the general program a good start by taking immediate action in promoting its own long delayed program in behalf of the dairy industry. In recent national conventions it has adopted some fine resolutions setting forth what the dairy industry should do to help itself. A little real action in the program long advocated by John Brandt and the federation would be most encouraging.

Inalienable Rights

As a result of several recent rulings, the Supreme Court is getting a reputation for liberalism. These decisions have revived a few of the old concepts of individual liberty, setting aside both legislative and administrative acts that it has considered to be encroachments on the constitutional right of American citizens.

Not all of these decisions have been popular, and that probably is the best indication that they have merit. We boast that ours is a country governed by laws and not by men. In reminding the authorities of this fact the Court is doing the country a good service.

We shouldn't worry about the court going too far in recognizing the constitutional or legal rights of an individual or a minority group, even if the individual or the minority group may be thought to be subversive. In these matters mass judgment too often is mob judgment.

Under the circumstances it is well that we be reminded that in America individuals do have certain inalienable rights.

The Big School Problem . . .

(Swift County News)

Stewart Alsop, the liberal-minded writer on current affairs, recently made a little tour of some suburban schools. He was motivated by the proposal that the federal government provide funds for classroom instruction.

At the beginning of his trip, he was inclined to agree with the proposal. At the end of it, he was no longer sure.

One reason for that is that the school situation, while serious in many places, "is not quite so desperate a crisis as it has sometimes been painted." Another is that "if the federal government does move in, the federal government will stay in, despite the President's fond hopes."

Finally, Mr. Alsop came away from his tour with this impression—"that the teachers and officials I met, all admirable people, were a little too much interested in the buildings the children were taught in, and not enough in what they were taught."

These modestly phrased observations are important—and the last is the most important of all. We will put the cart before the horse with a vengeance if we lay heavy emphasis on the physical characteristics of our schools—and only secondary emphasis on what goes on in the classrooms.

Conservation Volunteer is authority for the statement that there are 1,862 wood-using plants in Minnesota, 1,069 in the north half, 793 in the south half of the state. Nearly all these, 1,815, are sawmills, of which only three classify as large, 93 medium, and 1,719 as small; there are one cooperage plant, 9 pulp mills, 10 veneer plants, and 27 miscellaneous users and processors. In a normal year the state harvests 20,000,000 board feet of lumber; 7,000,000 bf of veneer logs; 1,500,000 of cooperage logs; 1,250,000 cords of fuelfood; 875,000 cords of pulpwood; 2,500,000 cubic feet of match and clothespin stock, lath, shingles, cabin logs, 7,000,000 posts, 20,000 hewn railroad ties, 2,250,000 cubic feet of mine timbers, 1,000 cords of excelsior, 200,000 linear feet of piling, 125,000 utility poles. We're here to help you get what you want PICTURE if you will your favorite department store. There, under one roof, are many of the things you want to make your life happier and more comfortable.

And if you stop to think of it, there's a pretty good parallel between your favorite store and our bank. Because here, under one roof, you'll find just about every kind of financial service.

You see, service is our only product. And we're here to help you get what you want in every way we possibly can. When we serve you, we believe we serve the community, too, because you and people like you are this community. The future of this community is important to all of us.

We've said that here under one roof you'll find every kind of financial service. Maybe you'd never thought of it just that way, but think a minute. Need the money for a new car? A freezer? A tractor? Or perhaps that lot next to yours? Or a new barn? Can you use a business loan or a safety deposit box for your valuables?

Your will—we can either do it or have it done for you. Help administer your estate, give budget counsel, make a collateral loan or show your children how to save.

We have a wealth of useful information—and experience—that's yours just for the asking.

So we'd like to make a suggestion. If you're not already our regular customer, come in and visit with us. We want very much to get acquainted with you.

And we think you'll like having us help you get what you want. See you soon?

Advise Retention of Present Duck Limits

The Mississippi Flyway Council meeting last week in St. Louis, Missouri, unanimously passed a resolution asking the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service that the season and bag limits on ducks remain the same as last year if there is less than a 20 per cent increase or decrease in the Flyway duck population.

Because the latest information on waterfowl production this year is not yet available, it was necessary for the council to make certain recommendations regarding bag limits and seasons, which would be based on assumed increase or decrease in the number of waterfowl determined by the final counts.

Flyway states could expect as a result of this resolution the option of either increasing the bag by one duck or lengthening the season by 15 rays if the population increases by 20 per cent. If the population decreased by 20 per cent there would be a reduction of one duck or a 15 day reduction in the length of the season.

If the population increases by 40 per cent or more the states could increase the daily bag by two ducks or the season length by 30 days, or have the option of taking one additional duck and a 15 day longer season. The reverse would be true if the population decreased by 40 per cent or more.

The council unanimously recommended that mechanical recording devices used in attracting migratory waterfowl, particularly geese, be outlawed.

A recommendation to legalize shooting crippled ducks from a motorboat under power was discussed, but on a motion by Jim Kimball, director, Minnesota game and fish, this was killed. It was his opinion that while this could have some value on areas such as the Mississippi river, perhaps it would be detrimental throughout most of the state because it could result in rallying ducks and force them to move out.

Director Kimball introduced and secured passage of a recommendation which would limit the total number of ducks to be imported from neighboring countries to 20, but permitting all 20, of these to be brought in at one time. Present regulations allow United States citizens to import an unlimited number of ducks into this country, but require that only 10 may be brought in during any one calendar week. The Fish and Wildlife Service and the states are concerned about some hunters who can afford numerous trips to Canada where large numbers of ducks are killed that would otherwise pass through the states and be harvested by local gunners.

These recommendations will be considered by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service prior to the release of the 1957 regulations.

Don't Blame Other Fellow for Mishap

Those Involved Usually Responsible, Says Patrol

"In almost all highway accidents the persons involved created the circumstances leading to the crash," according to Harry A. Sieben, Minnesota Director of Highway Safety.

Minnesota highway department records show, Sieben said, that only about two percent of the 55,131 automobile accidents that occurred in Minnesota last year could be attributed to circumstances beyond the drivers' control.

The same pattern appears in fatal accidents with only 12 of the 468 fatal accidents investigated by traffic officers attributed to causes beyond the driver's control.

The accident reports revealed that these are some of the things drivers did to cause their accidents: exceeded the safe speed limit, failed to grant the right of way to a vehicle or pedestrain, disregarded traffic controls, drove while under the influence of alcohol, drove while not physically fit; drove with defective equipment and failed to signal or gave improper signals.

Fish, Game Men to Meet at Itasca

Minnesota will be the host to the 1957 meeting of the Midwest Association of Fish and Game Commissioners, reports James W. Kimball, association president.

Meeting at Itasca State Park, July 10-12, the group composed of conservation administrators from thirteen midwest states, Manitoba and Ontario, will hear principal addresses by Fred Seaton, secretary of the interior and Minnesota Governor Orville Freeman.

The meeting will feature papers on various conservation topics and discussions of Mutual resource problems.

The 3 day conclave is expected to attract 150 delegates, many of whom have indicated they plan to stay after the convention to enjoy Minnesota's "10,000 lakes."

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—I am a World War II veteran and I live in a home I bought with a GI loan. If through no fault of my own, I am forced to dispose of the home for some compelling reason after July 25, 1958, the World War II loan deadline, would I still be able to get my GI loan entitlement restored?

A—Yes, under certain conditions. Your reasons for selling must be acceptable under the law, and VA must be relieved of its guarantee liability. If your loan rights are restored, you will have until February 1, 1965, to obtain another GI loan, despite the fact that the World War II deadline will have passed.

Q—Under the War Orphans Education Program, is it possible for a student to take a number of unrelated subjects in school?

A—No. There must be a definite goal and an educational program leading to that goal. Unrelated subjects, not leading to a goal, could not be approved under the law.

Q—Under the Survivors' Benefits Act, does annual income have anything to do with the amount of money paid to dependent parents of veterans who died of service-connected causes?

A—Yes. If the annual income of one parent living alone is $1,750 or more, payments may not be made. The income ceiling for two parents living together is $2,400. Within the ceilings, monthly payments are based on the amount of annual income.

Q—I want to take flight training under the Korean GI Bill. What will be the rate of my monthly GI allowance?

A—VA will pay you a rate equal to 75 per cent of your school's established charge for nonveterans taking the same flight course.

Production from the average well has to carry the cost of two-thirds of a dry hole in addition to its own costs.

BIG NEWS!

The Church may not have its name blazoned across every front page, but it is big news just the same.

From infancy to old age, the Church offers many things to each and every individual.

The Church introduces human beings to God.

The Church develops man's spiritual life through experiences of worship.

The Church emphasizes the beautiful through its architecture, its services, whether ritualistic or informal, its music.

The Church develops leaders through its many activities.

The Church broadens man's outlook through its work of sending the gospel to those in far-away places.

The Church exemplifies the brotherhood of man through the welcome it extends to all who believe.

Last, and most important of all, the Church offers salvation and the assurance of eternal life for every believer.

Big news—the Church! Can you afford to miss it?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Doings of Week at Rosewood

Mrs. Emil Hellquist, 797-J

Hagen-Smith Vows Spoken

The Rindal church was the scene of a beautiful candlelight wedding on Saturday evening, June 22 when vows were spoken by Shirley Hagen and Ronald Smith in a double ring ceremony officiated by Rev. Jonas Helland. A complete writeup will appear in the social items. One of the memorable parts of this wedding was that the bride's three sisters all were in the wedding party, with 12 year old Judy singing "O Perfect Love" preceding the ceremony. Joyce was her sister's bridesmaid while Mrs. Clayton Mathson was matron of honor and also sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt.

The Hagens were hosts to approximately 200 relatives and friends in the church parlors with members of Mrs. Hagens sewing group in charge. Our heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy life go to the newly weds.

4-H Club Meets

The June meeting of the New Solum 4-H club was held Thursday evening, June 20. This was a record meeting when records were completed and turned in. The exhibits for the county fair and the club tour were discussed and planned. Mrs. Victor Ranstrom served lunch. Our 4-H'er Janice Sabo on June 6th attended a Good Grooming workshop at Crookston because of her placing first in her group at the county contest.

Belated Father's Day Banquet Held

A belated Father's Day banquet was held at the Mission church Saturday evening. The tables were prettily decorated with flowers and candles. A program was given consisting of readings by Mrs. Emil Mellem, Virginia Copeland and Gail Aaseby. Devotions by Mrs. Lloyd Anderson. Musical numbers by Gail Aaseby and Darrel Swenson, solos were rendered by Mrs. Art Swenson and Judy Anderson.

The Hammer and Needle club of the Mission church held its first meeting at the Lloyd Anderson home Monday evening. The club is made up of the Intermediate and junior classes of the Sunday school. The project is making things for children less fortunate then they are. At this meeting the girls sewed on doll quilts while the boys made doll cribs. A marshmallow roast was enjoyed and lunch served by Mrs. Anderson. This evening the Father's Day banquet was planned by the members who are: Carolyn and Virginia Copeland, Gail Aaseby, Judy Anderson, Billy and Harvey Marquis and Allen Swenson. Officers elected are Pres. Judy Anderson; Sec'y., Carolyn Copeland and treas., Allen Swenson. The next meeting will be on July 15 at 7:30 at the Hjalmer Aaseby home.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hagen and boys and Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hagen, Joyce and Judy, Sunday, attended a family reunion in Fargo. The gathering was held at the Oak Grove park and attended by approximately 150 cousins and second cousins, descendants of the Rustad and Nelson family. This is an annual affair with folks coming from Calif., Iowa, So. Dak., and Minneapolis. This year an only aunt, 88 years old came from California.

Motoring to Grand Forks Sunday to spend the day at the Oscar Granum home were Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Kalbakdalen, also Mr. and Mrs. Emil Blomberg and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pederson family of Thief River Falls.

Mr. Victor Axelson, a former resident, now of Salem, Ore. is visiting old friends here, a house guest of the Olaus Matsons.

We regret the omission in last week's writeup of the Rindal's guest program, of the solo by Mrs. Dave Youngblood who sang "The Holy City" accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Christienson on the piano. The ladies are from Silverton.

Mrs. Russel Nelson and Mrs. Raymond Nelson and Mary Jo were coffee guests with Mrs. Erwin Olson and also with Mrs. Dennis [illegible] in Thief River Falls Thursday afternoon.

David Ness was at Fargo, N. Dak. Friday to take his physical for induction into the U. S. Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Mellem and Mr. Carl Bloom of Thief River Falls attended the banquet Saturday evening. They also called at the L. Anderson and Emil Blomberg homes.

Burgla[illegible] Get Big Haul at Eag[illegible]s; Estimated Loss M[illegible]e Than $1,000

Burglars entered the Eagle Club building early Sunday morning and cracked two safes and a juke box for an estimated loot of more than a thousand dollars.

State and local officials investigating the break-in are satisfied that the job was done by professionals.

The crime was discovered by Oscar Seeland, janitor, who arrived at the club shortly after six o'clock Sunday morning. Harold Johnson, manager, had left the building at two o'clock. This did not give the burglars much time for the thorough job they completed and it appears that there was not much lost motion. Footprints indicate that at least two entered the building.

As far as can be determined only cash and currency were taken and perhaps a couple of bottles of whiskey. Checks were left with other contents of the ransacked safes. According to Harvey Helle, secretary, the total loss is estimated to be $1,350.

In addition to the loss in money there was extensive property damage as the burglars forced their way through the building.

Entrance apparently was gained through a basement window on the east side of the building. The storm sash had been opened without damage and the inner window forced. After at least one of the intruders had entered, the storm sash had been put back into position and the bent nails holding it in place had been turned back to their security angle.

From the basment the burglars had gained access to the hall through a stage stairway and from the hall they had forced a door leading to the lobby. A window sheltered by a large bush decorating the north entrance on the east side was then forced and presumably it was through this window that members of the gang moved in and out.

Larry Hedin, state crime bureau representative living here, and city and county police officials arrived at the scene of the break-in shortly after janitor Oscar Seeland sounded the alarm. They put in long hours Sunday carefully checking possible fingerprints, footprints and other evidence that might be helpful in leading to the apprehension and conviction of the burglars.

In checking the scattered contents of the safes late yesterday afternoon it was discovered that the burglars had failed to examine carefully one pouch that contained more than two hundred dollars in currency. The only other cash they overlooked was a glass containing four quarters, the start of a contribution to a worthy cause.

Avalon Is Seeking Hypnosis Subject

Famed Hypnotist Appears in Person July 8 and 9

Ward Nichols, manager of the Avalon theatre is looking for a local girl willing to take a deep sleep in full view of the public in one of the display windows of Lein's Apparel Shop for a full day.

This will be one of the demonstrations of the hypnotic powers of the Great Dr. Kit, famous hypnotist, being brought to the Avalon theatre on July 8th and 9th. He will hypnotize the volunteer in the store window at about 3:30 p.m. Monday, July 8th, and she will slumber on and on until evening in full view of the public.

Then, still asleep, she will be taken by ambulance to the theatre where, just before the performance commences, she will be awakened by Dr. Kit. She will awaken feeling wonderfully refreshed after her long sleep, he promises.

Volunteers need have no qualms, says Nichols, since Dr. Kit offers a $10,000 reward to anyone who can prove that hypnotism is a fake or that anyone will fail to come out of it as scheduled.

Any local girl genuinely interested in volunteering is asked to phone 267 or 298 for further details and appointment.

Cleanup Work in Fargo Continues

Workers Burn Rubbish and Debris from Tornado

A pall of smoke hung over the Golden Ridge area of Fargo as workers burned rubbish and debris left by last week's tornado.

As emergency conditions in general were about at an end, volunteers were still cleaning up private property throughout the 100-block area smashed by the storm.

Permission to burn the rubble left by the twister which killed 10 persons and destroyed or damaged 1,500 homes was granted by the Fargo fire department after the health department warned the area could become a health hazard.

The health department said it will move in to bait rodents and spray for insects which are being attracted by spoiling food in the smashed homes, once the debris is cleaned up.

Meanwhile, disaster manpower co-ordinator William Stewart issued an appeal for volunteer workers over the weekend in "Good Neighbor Operation."

Stewart asked for workers, trucks, loaders and chain saws to help people clean up their property.

As he made the appeal for workers, money continued to flow into funds set up for disaster relief. The Red Cross reported more than $36,000 in its disaster fund and the city's disaster contingency fund contained more than $15,000.

Goal of the disaster fund set up by the Red Cross is $250,000.

Two Texans Face Burglary Charge in Warren Tuesday

Two Men Charged with Taking Jewerly from Store Owned by B. Wangenstein

Two itinerant farm workers go on trial in district court in Warren Tuesday on first degree larceny charges in connection with the break-in and theft of $520 worth of merchandise from the Holm jewery store in Warren, owned by Bart Wangenstein of this city.

The two, Juan Vidalis, 21, and Isaac Liando, 22, both of Laredo, Texas were arrested Wednesday at their shack on a farm near Oslo, following a tip to sheriff's officers from an Oslo resident.

Marshall County Sheriff Oscar C. Erickson said the merchandise taken from the store was found wrapped in a bandana in the shack.

Sheriff Erickson said the two men will also face charges of taking an automobile without permission of the owner and of the possession of marijuana. Erickson said a quantity of marijuana was found in the shack.

The automobile, a 1955 station wagon, was found abandoned Tuesday on a dirt road four miles north of Oslo. Near it were found fountain pen price tags and several pen filler cartridges.

The thieves used a brick to shatter a front window of the jewlry store, after which they scooped up items within reach. The bulk of the loot was watches, wallets and pens, according to Al Schoenack, store manager.

Show Results of Soil Conservation Plan Near Grygla

Group of Businessmen Visit Farm of A. Stanley, Winner of SCD Award

The board of supervisors of the Marshall-Beltrami soil conservation district last week showed Grygla businessmen and other interested persons the results of a good soil conserving program on a well planned farm.

In the absence of Oliver Howland, chairman of the board of supervisors, John McMartin, SCS technicion, explained some of the district's activities such as the watershed plans for the Mud River, the beaver eradication program, and the farm planning activities.

After explaining how a farm plan was developed, Mr. McMartin conducted the businessmen on a tour of the Arnold Stanley farm. Stanley was the winner of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune award as the outstanding conservation farmer in the district last year.

The visitors were shown a good pasture rotation system and the excellent crop prospects resulting from a conservation crop rotation. A broken fertilizer attachment provided an excellent contrast between fertilized and unfertilized crops. A well-manured area showed up quite a difference from an unmanured area. The farms drainage system was inspected and there was discussion of how good open ditches were constructed.

Among those from out of Grygla who attended were Elmer Peterson, Carl Gjernes and J. M. Roche of Thief River Falls, Merideth Hasselrud and William Provence of Roseau, and Fred Heck of Warren.

Cut in Rates Reduces Light Plant Profits

1956 Earnings Down to $167,657 from $203,614 in 1955

The Thief River Falls municipal electric power plant in 1956 had operating revenues of $442,708, and showed a net income of $167,657, it is revealed in the annual audit report of Homer L. Matheson of Grand Forks, certified public accountant.

Due to a reduction in commercial lighting rates in effect during the year, amounting to $32,050, operating revenues declined $13,739 from 1955 in spite of an increase in other revenues of $19,211; the total for 1955 having been $456,447. In 1955 net earnings totaled $203,614.

For the year 1956 the plant produced a total of 16,601,800 kilowatts of electricity, of which 15,187,697 was sold and 415,045 kwh was used to energize transformers, leaving a line loss of 999,058 kwh or six per cent.

The water utility showed operating revenues totaling $66,848 in 1956, up slightly from the $65,063 registered in 1955. The plant showed a net operating loss of $23,079 in 1956 compared to a loss of $21,366 for the preceding year.

During 1956 the water plant pumped a total of 256,998,400 gallons, an increase of 3,000,000 over 1955, less than the usual gain, due to cool summer which reduced sprinkling requirements.

The municipal liquor dispensary reported 1956 sales aggregating $481,880, with a gross margin of $153,321 and a net income of $87,052. Net income last year was 18.1 per cent of sales, compared to 17.1 per cent for 1955.

From last year's earnings of the dispensary, $10,000 was turned over to the court house building fund, and $10,000 principal and $5,762 in interest and service charges was applied on the bonds issued to aid in financing the construction of the Northwestern Hospital addition.

In his report to the city council, Auditor Matheson commented, "Internal controls and accounting procedures proved inadequate in certain instances, and could not be subjected to satisfactory audit verification".

Governor Stresses Averting Accidents over July 4th Holiday

Governor Orville L. Freeman announced today that every means available to his office and the Minnesota department of highways will be used to prevent accidents on our highways over the Fourth of July week end.

"Although most drivers are cautious and considerate," the governor said, "we are placing great emphasis on enforcement activities during the holiday period to control those few drivers who can, if unchecked, make this a tragic holiday."

A state of emergency on our highways for the four-day period has been declared by the governor. This declaration enables Governor Freeman to call out the National guard to provide reinforcements for the highway patrol. One hundred and fifty-six National guardsmen will assist the patrol during periods of heavy traffic and at dangerous intersections. This will provide a force of 480 men manning 250 patrol cars twenty-four hours a day.

All radar and other electronic speed control devices will be utilized during the four-day period wherever traffic conditions warrant their use. They will not be set up in permanent locations but will be moved about the state.

Minnesota's two new highway patrol airplanes, augmented by aircraft borrowed by the highway patrol from the department of conservation, will be in service during the entire holiday weekend. They will be especially effective in spotting moving traffic violations.

"In addition to the conservation department, other state agencies including the liquor control commission and the civil defense organization will participate in the campaign to cut the accident toll," the Governor said.

"For example all of our liquor control agents will be making spot checks of all establishments selling liquor or beer to make sure that no sales are made to minors or persons who have had enough to drink.

"We also have alerted local officials and law officers to the big job to be done over the holiday."

"These men did an excellent job Memorial day," the Governor declared, "and I am sure they will be equally effective on the forthcoming holiday."

Stores Close as Usual July Fourth

In accordance with a time-honored custom, public offices and stores in Thief River Falls will remain closed on Independence Day Thursday, July 4. Shoppers are reminded to keep the holiday in mind.

Suggest July 4th Birthday Cake

Run a flag up the birthday cake! Our country celebrates the 181st anniversary of the Declaration of Independence this July Fourth.

That's the day entire communities, all over the country celebrate at picnics and patriotic rallies, observing the founding of the United States. And this year, it also can be observed as a family gathering in the back yard.

The Fourth of July is one day no American should ever forget. Especially in these times.

Since it is a birthday party for Uncle Sam, why not a cake decorated with patriotic motif.

The baker, with advance notice, can oblige with a truly professional design and decoration. Or, to keep it simple, get a plain baker's cake with or without frosting and place a small American flag in the center.

The picnic gathering, whether in a park or woodland or in the backyard, has become a tradition in this country. July 4 has become the community affair.

It's fitting that an activity designed for family participation should reach a high point on the greatest national holiday in the United States.

LAW COLLEGES IN TRIPLE PLAY

Three renowned Twin City colleges are executing a significant triple play: the Saint Paul College of Law, the Minnesota College of Law in Minneapolis, and St. Thomas College near the city line on Summit Avenue in St. Paul. About a year ago the two law colleges arranged a merger and started looking for a suitable campus site. St. Thomas offered a spot just across Summit from their own imposing campus, where construction is about to begin on the new William Mitchell College of Law. Provision will be made for an imposing law library of more than 25,000 volumes, and for research and seminars by practicing attorneys. Certain of the new William Mitchell College facilities will be available to St. Thomas, which in turn will provide parking and other features for the faculty and 600 more students of the law college. Occupancy by September 1958 is hoped for by the trustees, headed by President Andrew N. Johnson, Minneapolis attorney and Danish consul.

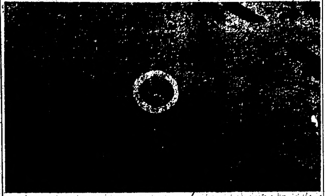
Rushing Waters Form Angry Lake Over Pasture



Streams in the Oklee vicinity raised havoc last week in the wake of torrential rains, which amounted to as much as five inches in a single day in some localities.

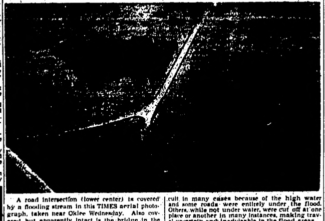
Transportation Hampered By Flooding Streams



A road intersection (lower center) is covered by a flooding stream in this TIMES aerial photograph, taken near Oklee Wednesday. Also covered but apparently intact is the bridge in the lower center and to the right.

Rural residents of the area found travel difficult in many cases because of the high water and some roads were entirely under the flood. Others, while not under water, were cut off at one place or another in many instances, making travel uncertain and inadvisable in the flood areas.

The unidentified rural intersection shown here is a few miles east of Oklee, along the Lost River.

Two Legislators Visit Camp Ripley

Flown to Camp to See National Guard in Action

Two northwest Minnesota members of the state legislature were flown to Camp Ripley Monday in an Air National Guard plane to watch the 47th "Viking" division, of which Thief River Falls' C. F is a part, in training at its annual summer encampment.

An ANG C-47 landed at Roseau where Rep. Everett Battles, Warroad, was picked up and then a landing was made at Thief River Falls municipal airport where state Sen. Roy Wiseth, Goodridge, and Harvey A. Wilaer, Crookston also boarded the plane.

The plane was piloted by Col. J. R. Dolny, 133rd Air Defense Wing, with Col. C. M. Isacson, from 10th Air Force headquarters, as co-pilot. T/Sgt. R. G. Peiffer, 109th Fighter-Interceptor squadron was engineering technician of the plane.

The crew reported considerable difficulty in taking off from the rain-soaked turf of Roseau airport so the legislators made the return trip in an ANG De-Havilland Beaver, which is a smaller, single-engine craft better adapted to small-field operation.

Heart Assn. Head Tells Middle-aged to Be Moderate

'A note of precaution was sounded today for middle-aged "summer athletes" by the president of the Minnesota Heart Association.

Dr. Robert L. Parker, Rochester, urged persons over 35 to "be their age" during the hot summer months ahead, and especially over the long holiday weekends.

"Moderation in outdoor work and play during the warm weather may be just the right prescription for you," Dr. Parker said. "But plunging ourselves into strenuous exercise—either work or play—will teach quite a few 'softies' that we're simply not as young as we used to be," he added.

Stressing the summer period as a time for special concern about over-exertion, Dr. Parker recommended common sense care in making physical demands on one's body.

"It's the best formula we know for encouragement of longer, healthier life," he said.

Dr. Parker, a Mayo clinic heart consultant, ends his term as Minnesota Heart Association president this month.

Seems like we can't avoid talking about the weather . . . it's in the news so much these days one just can't get around it. We wish we could quote some joke about the rains we've been having—only the situation is so bad it's no longer a laughing matter.

Gee, wouldn't it be nice to have summer again after it has been pretty much absent since 1955?

We were talking about flying business when we cut off last week, weren't we?

There isn't much more to add except we can't understand why people are so lackadaisical about this and many other subjects.

Why would any red-blooded boy worth his salt prefer a mobile junk heap (sometimes called a hot-rod) to an airplane? His choice shows he is out for speed . . . yet he's limited to 60 m.p.h. on the highway, less in town. In the air he's not limited to any speed. And, he can make all the noise he cares to make, if that's what he enjoys.

In all seriousness we'd like to see less teen-age dancing and dating and more pursuit of activities such as model building, boat building, sports of all kinds (not necessarily at school—what ever happened to the old neighborhood baseball and football teams?) and the like.

Learning to fly is another activity many of you teen-agers could take up. It doesn't really cost so awfully much . . . if you leave the car in the garage one or two nigths per week you can probably solo within a couple of months or even less if you did without a few more frivolities such as fan magazines, etc. Let's leave some of this cheap hero worship for the birds (and we hate to do this to the birds!)

I, for one, am in favor of us local pilots showing today's teen-agers all about this flying game. (The "we" is junked for this column, at least.) I'm sure it won't take a lot of hard selling to get our youth interested and since I like to fly so well I'm perfectly willing to share my enjoyment by taking one or two kids up with me any time I rent a club plane if it will help "sell" flying to our local youth.

After all, we have a fine municipal airport and much of the cost was borne by you and me—so, why shouldn't we get more benefit from the field? Flying is useful as well as great fun so any money spent on it isn't wasted by any means.

We hope this movie now showing in town (the Spirit of St. Louis) may arouse some youthful interest in flying, just as Lindy's feat in 1957 fired the imagination of youth in that era.

So, come on you teen-agers—let's get enthusiastic about this flying game and really live! If you want to fly just get in touch with me or some flying club member—we'll see that, one way or another, you get your feet off the ground. And, if you really would like to buzz off into the mild, blue yonder on your own we'll try to help you arrange that, too. So long!

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor of the Times:

I would like to thank everyone in the town of Thief River Falls, for being so helpful and friendly to us, which helped to make our Telelag a success. Especially the Chamber of Commerce, the police dept., the band which played for our dances, the people who took care of the hall, and the Zions Lutheran Ladies Aid which served our dinner.

A town with friendly people like yours is an ideal place for a convention.

Legume Seed

It takes a three-way approach to get good legume seed yields in Minnesota.

Most important, there must be at least two colonies of honey bees per acre to pollinate the crop, say University of Minnesota entomologists and soils and research workers.

Second, the soil must be well fertilized. And third, harmful insects must be controlled.

In University field tests during recent years, alsike yielded 15-20 pounds per acre when none of the three practices was used. Where all three practices were followed, though, yield went up to 800 pounds per acre. Results in red clover were similar to those from alsike.

Sweet clover averaged 6 pounds per acre when none of the three practices were followed. Pollinated sweet clover that received no fertilizer or insect control followed. Pollinated clover that received no fertilizer or insect control yielded 1078 pounds per acre and where all three practices were used, yield was 1437 from each acre.

Based on these tests, the University scientists recommended these practices for seed growers:

1. Select your seed crop according to the kind of soil you have and its suitability for the particular seed crop.

2. Test the soil for phosphate and potash a year before the seed is harvested.

3. In the fall or spring before the harvest season, apply 300-600 pounds of 0-20-0 per acre. Use a phosphate-potash combination of the test shows a need for potash.

4. During the winter before the harvest year, arrange for bees—at least two colonies per acre. Cooperate with your neighboring seed growers so that you'll have an adequate concentration of bees in your area.

5. Put honey bee colonies at the field margin, at intervals along the long side of the field, or as close to the field as practical. Place the bees before the beginning of the flowering and don't remove them until the crop is almost out of bloom.

6. Spray the seed crop with 1½-2 pounds of DDT emulsion at the onset of flowering. If the bees have already been located at spraying time, use toxaphine instead of DDT. Apply at 2 pounds actual ingredient per acre, in late evening or at night.

Machinery Costs

Getting new machinery this summer?

Make sure you figure all the "fixed" costs involved—depreciation, interest on the investment, annual repairs, and insurance and storage costs.

Just figuring immediate or "direct" costs can be mighty misleading with items like combines or cornpickers, according to Hal Routhe and Ermond Hartmans, extension farm management specialists at the University of Minnesota.

They figure about 23 cents an acre for gas, oil and maintenance on a $2,000 combine, and 97 cents an acre if you figure your labor worth about $1.25 an hour, or 75 cents per acre, it costs you $1.25 an acre in direct costs to operate a combine.

But, that doesn't mean you save $2.75 an acre when custom operators are charging $4.00 an acre.

The major cost of owning any machinery is the depreciation. A $2,000 combine lasting 8 years, depreciates $250 a year. Repairs, interest, storage and insurance add another $36. These items plus the depreciation amount to $376 a year.

So, for 50 acres of use each year, these fixed costs amount to $7.50 per acre. Add $1.25 for direct costs to that and you get $8.75 per acre compared to $4.00 for custom work. However, for 100 or more acres the picture is entirely different.

Of course, by depending on custom operators, you may not get your crop in on time and suffer a loss that would outweigh the extra cost of keeping your own combine.

Routhe and Hartmans say these same principles apply to most farm machinery.

Chopping "Stretches" Straw

August Asmus, Sibley county farmer, makes his straw go twice as far by chopping it, reports Duane Wilson, Sibley county agent. "Chopped straw is better in many ways than long straw," Asmus says. "It's easier to handle, it's more absorbent, and you don't need as much." Asmus uses a pickup attachment on the chopper and picks up the straw from the field after combining it, without windrowing.

Corn Yields Well

Even in dry weather, corn yielded 118 bushels per acre for Lester Van De Putte, Marshall, cooperator in the Lyon county soil conservation district. According to Ralph Lowery, SCS worker, Van De Putte uses a crop rotation of one year sod, two years row crop and one year grain. Van De Putte says "My soil and water conservation program is paying off in good yields and easier tillage.

Acreage of Hay, Pasture

Hay and pasture cover 11 million acres of land in Minnesota, according to Frank Hady, U. S. Department of Agriculture economist and S. A. Engene, agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota. In northeastern counties, about half of the farm land is in hay or pasture. There is also a high proportion of hay and pasture in southeastern counties, but less than a fourth of the land in southwestern and western Minnesota is in grasslands.

Yields Up

Lawrence Wagner, cooperator in the Root River soil conservation district, had corn yields in 1955 and '56 that were double what he raised before starting conservation farming. In 1952 he contoured all of the cropland on his 160-acre farm, set up a four-year rotation, according to Harold Poeschl, SCS worker.

Dairyman Given Award of $1,000

Harold R. Searles, extension dairyman for 35 years at the University of Minnesota, received the annual $1,000 DeLaval Separator company award for outstanding service to dairy farmers, presented Saturday.

COW TO COOLER TO CONSUMER

In 37 years of hauling milk from farm to Twin City Milk Producers, Hugo Mueller has seen many improvements in milk hauling. The charge from individual cans to gleaming metal tank trucks between farm and plant has been paralleled by the installation of milking machines, coolers, and bulk tanks on the 2,851 dairy farms supplying Twin City Milk Producers Association. From cow to consumer the vital fluid is hardly even seen, much less touched. Practically every step is automatic, the whole process is immaculately sanitary. Every day 38 1,700-gallon trucks and 37 of 2,300-gallon capacity speed tons of fresh liquid gold to TCMPA plants in Minneapolis, Farmington, of Thief River Falls—at savings over the old methods that pay dividends alike to producers, processors, and public.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

Minnesota Historical Society

Claim Jumping

Claim jumping could be a dangerous business in early Minnesota. In 1853 a St. Paul newspaper carried the story of mob action against a claim jumper at Traverse des Sioux.

It seems that the owner of a claim, located there the year before, had found it necessary to leave his property over the winter. During that time two brothers jumped it. When the rightful owner returned, he demanded that the brothers leave, but instead one of them shot him in the abdomen.

Settlers in the vicinity then "turned out in mass," surrounded the cabin, and took the two brothers prisoner, expecting to "send them down to St. Paul," where justice would be meted out.

The boat did not appear at the "the exasperation of the crowd increased to such a pitch that their victims were tied up and lynched till they begged to be shot as a relief to their torture. They were let off with the understanding that they would leave the place forthwith."

Stubborn Team Wagon

1872 the Northern Pacific Railroad, which had crossed the Red River at Moorhead, was advancing into North Dakota. Long trains of wagons pulled by mules were used to carry supplies from the end of the railroad to the men laying ties ahead.

In an effort to lighten the task of carrying these supplies, managers of the railroad sent out from St. Paul a huge steam wagon twenty-five feet long which, it was hoped, would pull the wagons to the construction crews. The steamer had board, flat wheels to keep it from sinking into sloughs and marshes.

When the steaming monster arrived at the end of the rails, it was received with suspicion and apprehension by the mule skinners and teamsters who were afraid it would destroy their livelihood. Apparently they need not have worried, for the steam engine proved to be even balkier than the mules on the broad flat prairies, and it was impossible to use it at all in the mountains.

La Verendrye

To find a route to the Western Sea was the dream of the French Canadian explorer Pierre la Verendrye who, with three sons, a nephew, and a company of some fifty men, pushed into the interior west of Lake Superior in 1731, following the route of the Pigeon River and the series of lakes and streams along the present northern boundary of Minnesota.

Among the several forts built by the members of the expedition was Fort St. Charles, put up in 1732 on the south side of the Northwest Angle inlet in the Lake of the Woods. This early post on Minnesota soil was occupied for some twenty years. Its buildings, "constructed of logs and clay and covered with bark" were eventually burned in a forest fire, and its site lost in the uninhabited woodland, was forgotten. In July, 1908, it was rediscovered by a party of Jesuit professors from St. Boniface College in Manitoba.

Near the fort in 1736 was enacted a grim tragedy. A son of LaVerendrye, a missionary named Jean Pierre Aulneau, and nineteen voyageurs who had just started from the fort to go to Mackinac for supplies, were surprised and killed on an island in Lake of the Woods by a Sioux war party. This area is now known as Massacre Island.

Neither La Verendrye nor his sons found the ocean beyond which lay the Cathay of their dreams. One of his sons, however, in 1742 led a party into the west—possibly to the Rocky Mountains—perhaps only as far as the Black Hills. An inscribed metal plate deposited by this exploring party on March 30, 1743, was found in 1913 on a hillside at Fort Pierre, South Dakota.

Sons Of The Wild Jackasses

Late in 1920, Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, becoming irritated with farmers' protest movements, was heard to say that some rural residents were like "wild jackasses." His remark was given much publicity in the newspapers.

Americans have often adopted as battle cries the derogatory names they have been called, and that is exactly what happened in this case. Robert Freeman, Ramsey County agricultural agent, invited anyone interested to attend a corn and potato show at the White Bear Lake Armory on February 14, 1930, for the purpose of forming the "Tri-County Corral of the Sons of Wild Jackasses." About three hundred men gathered to join the organization and to show Senator Moses "that the western and middle-western people resent his uncalled-for rude remark."

Officers of the group—chief mule skinner, assistant mule skinner, keeper of the branding elected. Senator Moses was elected Great Exalted Bullwhacker, and the entire group "thrust their fingers upon their heads to simulate long ears, pawed the ground, and vented a boisterous ceremonial bray toward New Hampshire." Each of the members was given a badge showing a picture of a jackass kicking up its heels. The password of the group was "Hee-Haw."

News of the organization was spread by the national news services, and by the next day telephone calls and telegrams began to reach White Bear Lake congratulating the "Sons of the Wild Jackasses" and asking for permission to join them. Political personalities and newspapermen in Washington were made members, and the affair became a national joke. Senator Moses himself was sent a membership badge, which he accepted graciously. He said, however, that he could not promise to wear it.

Thieves Split Double Bill; Lose to Bagley, Win From R. L. Falls

It was a loss and a win for the Thieves in the Northern Minny league doubleheader that was played on Fair Grounds diamond on Sunday. In an afternoon tilt, the Thieves dropped a 7 to 4 decision to the league champion Bagley Merchants; while in a game played under the lights on Sunday night, the locals edged out the Red Lake Falls Lakers in a high-scoring contest, winning by a 12 to 11 margin.

On Thursday afternoon, July 4th, as a feature of the Pennington County Fair, the Thieves and the Lakers will play a regularly scheduled Northern Minny league game.

In Sunday's matinee tilt, the Thieves rapped stylish lefty Ken Severud for three hits and three runs in the 1st inning. The locals held a lead over the league leaders until the 6th inning when Bagley shoved across a three-run cluster to take a 4 to 3 advantage.

The game-winning margin was chalked up in the 8th inning when, with two out, Jerry Riewer gained a life on a throwing error, reaching second base on the misplay. Don Moe spanked a double into left field, and then Earl Erickson powered a pitch over the right-center-field fence. That three-run outburst provided Severud with the "cushion" he needed to protect the Bagley victory.

In a wild-swinging and error-filled game on Sunday night, the Thieves, on a two-run rally in the last half of the 9th inning, defeated the Lakers of Red Lake Falls, 12 to 11.

The Thieves trailed throughout most of the game, being in arrears by a 10 to 4 score entering the last half of the 7th inning. Four-base hits, plus three walks, and some loose defensive play by the Lakers, gave the Thieves six runs in the 7th inning, and knotted the game at 10-all. The decisive blow of the frame was Frank Gunderman's double into right-center, plating a pair of runs.

The two teams moved into the 9th inning in a 10-all deadlock. With one out, young Denny Syvock lofted a Jesse DuChamp pitch over the left-field barrier, and the Lakers had a 11 to 10 lead.

Came the Thieves counter-rally. Mickey Hanson, who had banged out a pair of vital hits during the game, whiffed for the first out. Joey Poole walked, stole second, and when Bozo Emard's throw went into centerfield, Poole sped around to third base. Sloan walked. Gunderman sent a ground ball to shortstop, and when the ball was fumbled, Poole scored the tying run. Gene Sack was walked to load the bases. On an attempted squeeze play, and which misfired, Sloan was tagged out at the plate, with Gunderman moving over to third, and Sack to second. Glen Carlson then broke up the game by singling into right-center, scoring Gunderman.

Jesse DuChamp, who came in as a reliefer for starter Joey Poole in the 2nd inning, was the winner; and Ronnie LaChance, who came into game for Lakers in the 3rd inning, after starter Church Kankel had developed a shoulder ailment, was the loser.

Bagley Lengthens Undefeated Record

Far Ahead of Second Place Fosston; Thieves are Third

The Northern Minny league teams utilized Sunday's "open" date to slice into the backlog of postponed games that had piled up because of the inclement weather that has prevailed the past several weeks.

The Bagley Merchants just about clinched the league championship, adding a pair of victories to their win column, and manager Mel Brustad's well-balanced club now holds a four-game margin over the runner-up Fosston team as the league enters its second round of play.

Fosston, Thief River Falls, and Erskine continue in a nip-and-tuck battle to garner the runner-up spot, with the Fosston team, by a half game margin, holding that position in the standings. The Thieves, after losing to Bagley in a Sunday afternoon tilt, came back to defeat the Red Lake Falls Lakers, 12 to 11, in a night game.

The league's mid-week schedule will find the teams filling the Fourth of July date, with the Lakers at Thief River Falls, Bagley at Erskine, and Fosston at Winger.

Holt Young Lady Gets Alaska Post

Miss Marion Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Larson of Holt, who has for the past 6 years been home agent in McLeod county Minnesota, has accepted a position in Alaska. Marion, who is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, will be stationed at College, Alaska which is near Fairbanks and the location of the University of Alaska. There are about 900 Indians, Eskimos and Americans in 4-H work in the territory.

Navymen used amphibious assault tactics to build two of seven American bases in the Antarctic. "Frogmen" blasting underwater obstructions wore special cold-water immersion suits.

They're Still in the League

"We are still in the league." That was the statement of Bjorkman's Lowell (Muckets) Collins following the 10 to 8 defeat his team suffered at the hands of the Bridgeman's club last Monday evening. Muckets was quite gracious about the loss, and he admitted that Bob Carlson and the Bridgeman's team played an inspired game.

"We are going to have a meeting, and I'll perhaps have a few words to say," added Muckets, "and I'll perhaps 'fine' a couple of the boys."

"You know, there were times last Monday that some of the boys played as if they were under the influence of tranquillizer pills," concluded Collins.

He sounds like Casey Stengel of the Yankees.

Fact is, that loss by the Bjorkman's on Monday, and the manner in which it was registered, must act as a boost to the other five teams in the league. The Bridgeman's clubbed Bjorkman's stellar righthanded Milt Relerson harder than we have seen the raise-ball hurler's stuff tagged before. They were solid blows.

Of course, Milt isn't getting any younger, and, too, the revised rules have moved the pitching mound back a couple of feet. That combination perhaps accounted for Milt's troubles against the red-hot Bridgeman's on Monday. We'll still string along with Milt to pitch the Bjorkman's into the league playoffs.

Rescue Operations

Most of Thursday evening's excitement was centered around the successful efforts of Oscar Abkke and Al Adams in rescuing the Park Board's water-ski jumping ramp. The ramp, which had been anchored in the river just off Tindolph Park, broke loose from its mooring at about 8:00 P.M., and began its drift towards the dam.

Park Board officials were notified and rescue operations were organized. As the ramp cleared the First street bridge, the power plant operators closed the gates at the dam, slowing the flow of water considerably.

Oscar and Al reached the ramp when it had drifted to within one hundred feet of the dam, and a tow-line was hurriedly attached to the structure. There were some anxious moments before the boys were able to tow the ramp out of the strong currents and to safety. At one time the motor conked out, and for a few moments there was the possibility that Oscar and Al would be swept over the spillway.

Except for some calloused hands, the pair came out of the experience okay. And so did the ramp.

Well Done; Medium Well, that is

Coach Horace May's Bemidji Lumerjacks, in bringing back the state high school baseball consolation honors, did right well in upholding the eighth regions' baseball reputation in the tournament that was concluded on Wednesday. The Jacks, by a 4 to 3 score, defeated St. Peter in the consolation finals.

It marks the third successive year that the eighth region's representative has brought back a trophy. Last year, the Jacks, with Clark (Corky) Johnson in the starring role, were state championship runners-up. And in 1955 coach Ralph Skjod's Prowlers won the consolation title, defeating International Falls, 11 to 3.

It must be remembered, too, that the eighth region won the state title in 1950. That was the year that coach Ray Kerrigan's team, with righthander Morry Holm pitching the three games, won the state championship.

Here's a run-down of the play in this year's state tournament, which was played in St. Paul's Midway stadium: In the first round, Austin, 4, vs. Bemidji, 0; Little Falls, 1, vs. Tracy, 0; Edina-Morningside, 9, vs. St. Peter, 2; and Mankato, 3, vs. International Falls, 2. The semi-finals found Little Falls defeating Austin, 8 to 5, and Mankato edging out Edina, 2 to 1. In the championship finals, coach Lou Filipi's Little Falls team defeated Mankato, 3 to 2.

It was somewhat of a surprise to have Bemidji drop their first round game to Austin, being held hitless and runless. The Jacks' righthander, Bill Lawrence, dropped his first game in high school competition after running up a winning streak of eighteen games, eleven of those victories being recorded this season. Two errors, three walks, and a pair of stolen bases, plus a sacrifice fly, gave Austin their four-run cluster in the 1st inning. And that was the ball game.

Girl's Softball

The city girl's softball league and it appears to be a happy organization, will play a game on Thursday evening, July 2nd, with the Gophers meeting the Dodgers on the Lincoln high school field.

Rain and wet grounds, which prevailed last week, forced the postponement of a couple of games, but the girls will attempt to get back into the schedule this week.

Oh yes, a call has been issued for four or five girls to complete the roster of team membership. Any girl wishing to participate in the softball program need only make her wishes known to Lowell Collins or Luverne Larson or Arlene Thune or Gloria Lunsetter. Failing in reaching any of these individuals, the girls can appear at the playing field on Tuesday or Thursday evenings, and they will be assigned to a team.

Firemen Called Early Wednesday

When electric current was interrupted in part of the city for a short time after midnight Tuesday, fuel oil apparently accumulated in a furnace at 307 Duluth av. S., causing a minor explosion and some smoke when the current went on again. The fire department, which was summoned to the scene, reported little if any damage.

Legion Juniors Have Busy Week's Schedule

For the second time this season, coach Marv Skaar's Grand Forks American Legion junior baseball team scored a win over Joey Poole's locals defeating the local nine, 7 to 6, in a game played at Grand Forks on Friday evening. The game was originally billed for the Fair Grounds diamond, but the wet field here forced transfer of the game to Grand Forks.

Three entertaining tilts are on this week's local junior baseball schedule, with two of the games being played away from home, and the other, on Friday, being slated for the Fair Grounds diamond. On Monday evening, coach Poole will take his squad to Red Lake Falls for a game against Rusty Miller's Red Lake Falls Lakers; and on Tuesday evening the locals will play the highly-rated Crookston juniors at Crookston. On Friday evening, on the Fair Grounds diamond, coach Chuck Johnson and his powerful Fertile juniors will be here.

In Friday evening's tilt at Grand Forks, coach Skaar's club, with the score tied at 6-all, tallied their game-winning run in the 5th inning on a walk to Ray Stinar, and an overthrow to first base on Ken Weighter's infield tap, permitting Stinar to come all the way home.

Grand Forks held a 6 to 1 lead after two innings of play, but the locals, on a walk to Mickey Hanson, plus singles by Harlie Drees, Dave Berg, Dean Bergland, and Tony Wald, and a Grand Forks error, tallied five runs in the 3rd inning to even the score.

Bob Hallameck, pitching for the locals, was touched for seven hits, but the righthander racked up nine strikeouts. Hallameck gave evidence of rounding into the form that made him one of the district's finest pitchers last season. In May, it will be recalled, Hallameck suffered a broken collar-bone, and it's just recently that he has returned to active service.

With Hallameck in shape, coach Poole will be well-supplied with top-flight hurling, having such strongarmed pitchers as Harlie Drees and Arlan Hjelle on the staff.

The line score:
Thief River Falls 103 000 2 6 7 2
Grand Forks 240 010 X 7 7 4
Batteries—Hallameck and Berg; Sperling and Karlstad.

City Golf League Off to Good Start

Piggly Wiggly Takes First Place in Close Contest

A fine turnout of the city's golfers responded to the first matches of the season in the city golf league last Wednesday evening.

The Piggly Wiggly team, with a low net of 15, moved into first place after the completion of the evening's play. Low net totals for the leaders were as follows: Lloyd Bennes, 35; Justus Larson, 36; Dr. M. G. Johnson, 37; and Otis Wold, 37.

In the runner-up position, with a net total of 147, trailing the leaders by only two strokes, was the Brooks Cheese team captained by Emil Larson. Scoring for the Brooks team was as follows: (low net totals), Wally DuChamp and A. Parenteau, 35's; Stan Larson, 36; and Bob Wurst, 41.

In this season's set-up, the league teams will not compete in individual team matches, but will shoot on a low net total (with four men to a team), and these totals will accumulate as the season progresses.

If rain and wet grounds do not disrupt the schedule, this week's slate should provided the city's softball fans with the season's finest games. Excepting the playoffs, of course.

A double-header will be played this Monday evening, with the Cliff's Market team meeting the Holsum Bread. Game time is at 5:45 p.m. And following this game, the league-leading Bridgeman's will play the runner-up Len's Tire Service. The results of this game could very well decide the league championship.

On Wednesday evening, July 3rd, the Bjorkman's team, the league champions last season, will attempt to get back into the win column after dropping a 10 to 8 decision to the Bridgeman's last Monday, meeting the Len's Tire Service team in a "make or break" game.

In the two games that were played last week, sandwiched in between rain squalls, the Bridgeman's and Len's posted triumps. Bridgeman's, with Bob Carlson playing a starry role, defeated the Bjorkman's 10 to 8. While the Len's edged out the T. & S. Implement, 7 to 6.

Regulations Revised by Selective Service

Lt. Colonel M. A. Reep, state director of selective service, today announced that men serving satisfactorily as members of units of the Ready Reserve will be classified as not available for induction by selective service local boards.

The changes in regulations making ready reservists eligible for classification in Class 1-D were contained in an executive order signed by the President on June 13.

The latest change in the regulations was prompted by the recent efforts to build up the Ready Reserve, a program which had been lagging up to a few months ago, the state director said.

On another phase of selective service, the order permits deferment of persons in case of extreme hardship to dependents. Formerly such registrants were required to show both extreme hardship and privation to dependents.

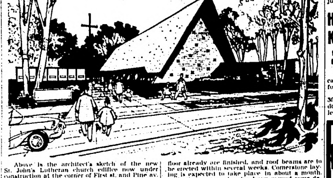
Among other changes to the regulations included in the order is a provision that appeals of conscientious objectors will be referred to the Department of Justice only when the appeal board has decided not to grant the claim of conscientious objection and not to defer or exempt the registrant for any other reason. This change is designed to relieve the Department of Justice of the burden of unnecessary investigations such as was frequent when the investigations were made before the appeal was decided.

Another change in the regulations simplifies procedures for the transfer of a registrant to another local board for physical examination or induction.

Two changes affect the critical skills program. One grants an employer, who has requested the selection of a registrant for the enlistment in the Ready Reserve critical skill program, the same appeal rights as the registrant is granted.

Another requires the local boards to inform registrants and employers of their appeal rights with notification of the board's, or appeal board's, action on a request to enter the Ready Reserve critical skill program.

Architect's Sketch of New St. John's Church Edifice



Above is the architect's sketch of the new St. John's Lutheran church edifice now under construction at the corner of First st. and Pine av. The church is modern in design and will seat about 400.

The educational wing to the left is to be constructed at some later date. Basement walls, underground plumbing, basement electrical wiring, part of the main floor, and part of the basement floor already are finished, and roof beams are to be erected within several weeks. Cornerstone laying is expected to take place in about a month.

In the past week rains have caused some delays, but the work in general is going well according to schedule. Banum Construction Company has the general contract, and Foss and Company of Moorhead are the architects. Completion of the new church is scheduled this fall.

FU Hails Results of Vote on Wheat

Thatcher Pays Tribute to Aid from Rural Papers

"The big 'Yes' vote in the June 20 wheat referendum, led by farmers of the Upper Midwest states, will spark a new campaign in Congress for streamlining present farm-price protection laws," officials of the Farmers Union national wheat referendum committee said today in St. Paul.

The total estimated vote of 238,000 was about 50,000 smaller than a year ago. Nationally, the "Yes" vote was 86 percent of the total. More than 52,000 "Yes" votes were cast in North Dakota, which had a 96-plus "Yes" percentage.

The incomplete vote in other Upper Midwest states was Minnesota, 97.1 "Yes"; South Dakota, 96.2; and Montana, 93.6.

The strong showing was to a large degree attributed by members of the wheat referendum committee to editors of the country press, who told the referendum story to readers in straightforward and emphatic fashion.

Economists estimate that the difference between a "Yes" and a "No" vote meant, in the Upper Midwest alone, a difference of $200 million in 1958 farm-purchasing power.

"Community newspapers have proved again," said M. W. Thatcher, chairman of the wheat referendum committee, and general manager of Farmers Union Grain Terminal association in St. Paul, " that they not only are aware of their civic responsibility, but are the backbone of community opinion."

Politeness has been well defined as benevolence in small things.—Macaulay

Arts to Be Featured in State Centennial

Appointment of James S. Lombard, director of concerts and lectures for the University of Minnesota, as Centennial arts committee chairman was announced this week by officials of the Minnesota Statehood Centennial Commission.

Thomas H. Swain, Centennial executive director, said Lombard and the commission have organized a 101 member committee to plan programs and projects covering such subjects as architecture, paintings, novels, poetry, music, plays and dance during Centennial year—1958.

This committee, according to Lombard, has been divided into five sub-committees. Selected to head these sub-committees are individuals who are leaders in their respective fields.

The sub-committees and chairmen are: art institutions and societies, Richard S. Davis, director, Minneapolis Institute of Arts; dance and theater, Frank M. Whiting, director of the University theater; literature, William V. O'Connor, Professor of English, University of Minnesota; music, Gerard Samuel, associate conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra; and visual arts and architecture, Brooks Cavin, president, St. Paul chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

Some of the major proposals, which are tentative and would need approval of the entire Centennial Commission, are a $5,000 prize competition in painting and sculpture for Minnesota artists; a $1,000 prize for the best fiction or non-fiction manuscript on Minnesota, and publishing the winning works; six projects of state-wide interest to encourage the writing and reading of poetry; and special classical music programs of symphonies, operas, ballets, chamber works, choral, religious, jazz, and folk music festivals.

A major exhibit "Living in the Upper Midwest" will be presented at the Walker Art Center and will be sponsored by various business firms and associations.

Financing of the program would be in part by voluntary contributions, partly by admission charges and partly by state funds. The Centennial commission, Tuesday, June 17, approved a budget of $10,000 for the arts committee.

Wife, Daughter of Sen. Humphrey Injured in Crash

The wife and daughter of Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) and a Howard Lake, Minn., farmer were injured in an automobile collision near Buffalo Tuesday. None was seriously hurt.

Sheriff Willard Kritzeck of Wright County said the car driven by Nancy Faye Humphrey, 18, and that of Bernard J. Horstman collided at a country road intersection five miles west of here.

Nancy, her mother and Horstman were taken to Buffalo Memorial Hospital. Only Nancy was expected to remain as a patient, a physician said. She suffered multiple abrasions and a simple concussion.

Mrs. Humphrey sustained a laceration over one eye.

Hallock Man May Keep $5,000 Find

Discovered Cache While Raking Lawn Last Year

A Hallock man recently became the legal owner of $5,000 he found buried in his back yard.

May 1956, Edward G. McVean, 36, decided it was high time to do something about the dead leaves that were piled up in the yard.

His rake caught on something. He found it to be the cover of a jar.

Inside the jar was $5,000 in bundles of tens and twenties. The money was wrapped in brown paper bearing the date "1932."

McVean reported his discovery to local authorities. The money was placed in Northwestern State bank until its ownership could be established.

In October 1956 the former owners of McVean's property took him to court in an attempt to prove the money was theirs. McVean won his case, but the money had to stay in the bank for an entire year in case other claimants should appear.

McVean, who says he has "too much Scotch blood" to do any splurging with the cash, put most of it into savings "for his children's educations. He has two girls, Vikki, 7 and Minda, 3.

The rest went for taxes, incidental expenses and contributions to the local church and hospital building funds, he said.

"Most men believe that it would benefit them if they could get a little more from those who have more. How much more would it benefit them if they would learn a little more from those who know a little more."

—Wm. J. H. Boetcker

After being thoroughly satisfied with the performance record of January, February, March, April and May, we do not like to register a complaint about the conduct of June. We have in mind the poet's observation on the romantic month, that then, if ever, come perfect days. Well, maybe we should be lessoned. Water is good, in moderation. In excess, even water is bad.

This is Fair week and we are sure that, as never before, the good people of the area will join with the members of the fair board in the wish that with Fair week will come fair weather.

Corn isn't going to be knee high by the Fourth this year. There were places along the last week of rainy June where much of the crop was already knee deep.

County Fair visitors can sit in the bleachers this year without worrying about the seats collapsing beneath them. A new steel structure will provide twelve hundred comfortable and safe seats. The old stands were safe too, according to the inspectors who checked them for the insurance companies each year, but we were always glad when the show was over and another packed stand had been emptied without mishap.

Holiday ahead means danger ahead. Because of greatly increased traffic on the highways there will be the usual big increase in highway accidents. The casualty lists of dead and injured will read like the reports of a major military engagement.

Because the careless use of fireworks resulted in a few casualties on the Fourth of July we passed laws that made it illegal to use fireworks. Maybe it would be better if we took their cars away from people on this day and gave them back their fireworks.

Better System Needed

P. G. Pedersen, long time city clerk, brought in a copy of the audit of the city's business for the year 1956 and invited attention to the auditor's "comments and recommendations" directed at the city's accounting procedures. Eight "weaknesses noted" in the "internal controls and accounting procedures" are as follows:

1. Absence of conventional cash and and budget controls.
2. The accrual method of accounting was not maintained during the year.
3. The records maintained do not assure complete and proper adjustments at year end when the city clerk's office sets up known accruals.
4. Plant accounts have not been fully adjusted to reflect physical counts of equipment and other general fixed assets. Retirement will not be reflected until all physical inventories have been taken and satisfactorily reconciled.
5. The calendar year closing combined with a relatively heavy workload during the early part of the new year are factors which make it difficult for the city clerk's office to render a complete and timely financial report under the accounting methods now in effect.
6. Cash funds are not adequately segregated for fund accounting purposes. As a result the general fund has been permitted to overdraw available funds at the expense of other funds.
7. Cash handling functions are combined with general accounting and administrative functions. As a result internal controls are non-existent.
8. Collection agents and departments are numerous, do not deposit funds intact daily, and are not subject to adequate internal controls. Manipulations or misapplication of city funds cannot be detected nor prevented without major revisions in procedures at the present time.

Mr. Pedersen thinks there is sufficient justification for the criticisms to warrant a thorough study of the overall problem with the view of adopting a system of accounting and control that will meet adequately the needs of our greatly expanded operations.

We are glad to hear such a suggestion come from Mr. Pedersen himself. He has given the city many years of faithful service under a system that at one time provided adequately for the simple accounting problems of the city. But the city's business is no longer small business and its problems of control and mangement are many times more complicated today than they were thirty years ago.

Considering the many chores with which the members of the Council are already confronted we suggest that this problem of improving the city's management and control procedures is one that might properly be referred to a special citizen's committee for study and recommendations. We have many public spirited citizens who have a background of experience in both accounting and management and who would, we are sure, be willing to accept such an assignment.

Turning Point In History

(Hoard's Dairyman)

Six weeks ago we received two letters from Washington, D. C. One was from a veteran member of the House of Representatives; the other was written by a seasoned observer of the Washington farm scene. Both wrote essentially the same message, which might be paraphrased as follows:

"Yesterday we sat at the ringside of history as the House of Representatives debated and voted on the corn bill. As the roll call vote was taken, we saw, for the first time, the crumbling of the Farm Bloc. Representatives of consumer and urban interests took over the writing of the farm program."

We have hesitated to report these observations, hoping that they might not be true. Criticize, if you like, the actions of the Farm Bloc in years past but these men of both political parties, representing widely divergent farm interests, have cooperated in the past in a sincere effort to serve American agriculture fairly. Without them the research, conservation, price support, and livestock health programs probably would not have been sponsored by the Congress. Many of the benefits and opportunities we enjoy today in American farming would never have existed.

It remains to be seen whether the Farm Bloc can be cemented together again. The prospects are that it never will regain its former position of influence in the Halls of Congress.

All this leads to the logical conclusion that farm commodities and agriculture in general must begin to control their own destiny through self-help, domestic parity, and other similar programs which are not dependent upon public funds or political fortunes.

SENATOR THYE Reports TO YOU

from the UNITED STATES SENATE

Thye Visits Flood Area

The flood tragedy imposed upon southwestern Minnesota counties and communities once again demonstrates the need for adequate flood control if such losses and damage are to be averted in the future.—On Monday, June 17, I visited the flood area in Marshall. No one can appreciate the ravages caused by such a flood unless he sees it first hand.—Upon hearing the first reports, I called upon the Small Business Administration to determine whether a disaster area should be declared. This was done by Monday afternoon. Since my return to Washington, I have contacted the Corps of Engineers, the Public Works Committee of the Senate, the Farmers Home Administration, and the Soil Bank Division of the Agriculture Department and requested immediate aid for the stricken.—Each Agency has cooperated in efforts to alleviate damage and to reimburse for losses wherever possible under their jurisdiction.

I also introduced a bill in the Senate calling for new survey of the flood control project at Marshall. At the meeting of the Senate Appropriations Committee, I requested that the Engineers submit within a week plans for a new survey and the approximate cost of such a survey. It is possible that funds for such a survey can be appropriated before the Congress Adjourns. I also wish to commend the citizens within the twelve county area affected for their work in caring for the evacuees and in making plans for the clean up of debris. The State agencies and the Red Cross were effective in bringing assistance within hours of the initial reports of the flood.

Thye Invites President

I have extended an invitation for President Eisenhower to vacation in Minnesota this summer or fall.—Such an invitation was extended last year, but it was not possible at that time for the President to visit Minnesota.—In addition to extending the invitation to the President, I have also discussed this with another Minnesotan, Dr. Gabriel Hauge, Economic Advisor to the President.

Progress On Baudette Bridge

New developments in connection with the bridge at Baudette across the Rainey River have taken place within the past two weeks.—The Thye bill to extend authorization time for the commencing of construction passed the Senate and was sent to the House.—The House Public Works Committee reported out my bill with slight amendment so that this project can proceed. My action has forestalled the possibility of the authorization for the bridge by the Community Facilities Administration.

Civil Rights Debate

Important Civil Rights action came in the Senate on Wednesday of last week when the Senate voted 45 to 39 to place the House Civil Rights Bill on the Senate Calendar without referring it to the Judiciary Committee. In the voting, which came late in the evening, 34 Republicans and 11 Democrats voted to place the bill on the calendar. Voting to refer the bill to Committee were 34 Democrats and 5 Republicans.—Had the bill been sent to Committee, it may not have been placed upon the Senate Calendar for consideration during this session. Vice President Nixon made the ruling on [illegible] permitted the bill to go on the calendar. This paved the way for Senate debate on the Civil Rights question before Congress adjourns.

Documents Of Interest

The Department of Agriculture has published two timely bulletins which are available either through the Department or through my office. The pamphlets are entitled "Lawn Insects How to Control Them" and "Clothing Fabrics, Facts for Consumer Education."

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

As this is being written, many areas in Minnesota have been suffering seriously from natural disaster caused by flooding streams and rivers, and other areas are awaiting the crest of the floods. Lives have been lost and the financial cost is very great. For the farmers the losses will be substantially greater than they were in the early spring floods of 1951 and 1952, for to many of them the destruction of crops now means the loss of an entire year's income.

Emergency Measures

Loss would be even greater if it were not for the way in which people rally to help less fortunate neighbors when disaster hits. The people of Minnesota, both as individuals and through voluntary and govermental bodies, want to help in every way possible. Law enforcement agencies, Civil Defense and the National [illegible] save lives and property and to minimize the effects of the floods. As governor I have issued emergency proclamations in order that financial aid that can be provided by various agencies of the federal government will be available, including loans at low interest rates to enable farms and small businesses to help repair flood damage.

The Red Cross is making an appeal for special contributions to enable it to help the many victims of this unexpected disaster. This is one way through which everyone who so desires can contribute in a worth while manner. He can make his contribution through his local Red Cross chapter.

More Effort Needed

Emergency measures are necessary. After the waters recede there will still be the task of cleaning up, repairing damage, and of taking all necessary measures to safeguard health. But emergency and clean-up measures are not enough. We must take steps to prevent this kind of disaster, or to minimize the destructive effects of unusual periods of heavy rainfall that we cannot prevent.

Flood Control

Flood control is a complicated problem. It involves terracing and other soil conservation measures to hold the water where it falls, even before it runs down the hillside, taking along valuable top-soil, to form small creeks and streams. It involves controlling these small headwaters. It involves leaving or restoring certain wet-land areas, where they will serve not only to help prevent floods but also to provide natural habitat for wildlife. It also involves vast engineering projects, dams, channel improvements and so on. Most important of all, perhaps, is that is involves planning and cooperation.

KIDS' BACKYARD PICNICS

"Hey kids, let's have a picnic!"

That's the cry the moment the weather turns warm. It isn't always possible, though, for parents to drop everything to prepare a picnic for the children.

One way is to let the youngsters "do it themselves." Leading child psychologists have recently been giving strong endosement to the trend which finds children imitating their elders in various household chores. For the young ones it's a labor of love.

Here's how you can go about organizing a backyard picnic:

1. Have a good supply of paper plates and cups on hand since they save mother's china and eliminate cleaning up.
2. Provide the children with a small table and several low chairs.
3. Take a quick poll to determine what kind of sandwiches they want to eat. Set out the bread, filling, and spreads, and let the kids go to work.
4. A store-bought cake and milk will round out the picnic fare.
5. When the food is prepared, suggest that the kids ask friends to come and share their treat. They'll be especially proud because they've had a hand in preparing it.
6. Take advantage of the chance to stress neatness by insisting the children dispose of their paper plates and cups.

Net result: happy children, who will know how to plan their own picnics in the future.

DIDICATED INDIVIDUALS

The claim of a Virginian to the title of world's oldest Mason has been successfully jumped by Eugene M. Gillette, Wenatchee, Wash. Now 100, Gillette joined the Masons in Iowa 75 years ago, transferring to the west in 1918. He is a brother-in-law of Minnesotan M. E. Isherwood, Sebeka publisher and county fair authority. . . Another remarkable record of dedication ended recently with the resignation of Mrs. Thomas G. J. Pease, 86, from the Anoka Baptist Sunday School Class she has regularly taught for 57 years. . . For 40 years Herman Eck and his 1917 Buick have cruised in and around Wykoff, to the extent of 144,000 miles. Mr. Eck says they'll be around for another 10 years. He's never had a traffic tag, and only accident he and the Buick ever had was when a frightened horse ran into the car in 1921.

Did someone mention going on a shih-kabob picnic? You will need skewers or long green twigs—green so that they won't burn. Dip skewers in salad oil or run them through a garlic clove to ease the job of slipping on the little chunks of meat and vegetables.

Economist Says Picnics More Mobile Than Ever

The Picnic—

Make it a mobile this year. More than ever America will be on the move along our highways, and often too, we hope, on the by-ways. Automobile and bicycle manufacturers are giving us the best of their products to make both near and far travel a pleasure.

Horseback riding enthusiasts are saying that more equestrians are on our bridle paths and trails than ever before . . .there are also some minority groups, vocal and ardent, who claim for hiking the utmost pleasure in outdoor activities.

But no matter the mode of moving, there's an inviting picnic site at hand. State highway departments have, and are spending millions of dollars, to provide attractive and well equipped roadside picnic areas. Tables, benches, fireplaces, shelters, often wells and supplies of firewood are available along the highways from the Alcan to the Gulf of Mexico.

Roadside Sites

In the more thickly populated East, picnic sites have been built along the roads connecting city with city, and state with state. In the mid-west, along the Mississippi, the Missouri, and the Rock Rivers, there are delightful roadside picnic spots. In the Wisconsin and Minnesota lake regions, out-of-door eating is a taken-for-granted way of life. Resort towns have provided door meals.

California and other far west states long have been devotees of the out-of-door meal, and have developed menus and food handling techniques that have become a guide for these easy, pleasant meals, no matter where the picnic spot.

Manufacturers of equipment, as well as vehicles, are contributing mightily to the joy of the mobile meal—the picnic on the way. A wider variety of foods today are picnic foods due to the imagination of the equipment manufacturers. More foods can be carried safely than ever before.

Portable refrigerators keep perishable item fresh and tempting; portable grills make out-of-door cookery easy and pleasant. Food processors also are giving attention to the easy to carry, appetite satisfying products.

Buns Are Favorites

Bakery foods are excellent picnic items. Hamburger and frankfurter buns are nationwide favorites, and are used everywhere with both hot and cold sandwich fillings. The meats for which they are named lead all other fillings in popularity, but they also are used with cheese, with mixed spreads, and on fish frys and clam bakes as accompaniments with those marine items.

Enriched and variety breads are popular for sandwiches of all kinds, and with proper wrapping and carrying will stay fresh and appetizing for long periods of time.

Cookies and cakes traditionally are on the picnic table. Pies too are becoming picnic favorites, and there are special baskets for toting, that prevent breaking or crushing. Foods always take on added eating pleasure when eaten out-of-doors. We are a mobile people, and we can take them with us—our meals that is.

But if cars and bikes, horses and hiking hold no allure for us, we still can enjoy the out-of-door meal, on porch or patio, terrace, garden, or on our own backyard.

Guardsmen Check Marksmanship

A rifle score is important so these Minnesota Guardsmen check their scorecards after firing on the known distance range at Camp Ripley. Pvt. Gordon Kassenborg, Co. H., 13[illegible] Inf Regt., Moorhead, gets some good advice from M/Sgt. Leonard Swanson, Co. F., Thief River Falls. After qualifying on their individual weapon, the M-1 rifle, the men advance to heavier weapons and unit tactics during their 15-day field training program, which ended Saturday.

PERFECT PICNIC PICTURES

Children and grownups enjoying the outdoors . . . lots of good food . . . lots of good laughter . . . That's the picture of the American family in July.

And that happy picture of picnicking family and friends can be kept the year around, if your don't-forget list includes—along with paper plates, pickles and potato salad—the family camera and plenty of film.

The best souvenirs of the day's outing are snapshots, color slides or home movies of all the things that went on at the picnic site.

But to get a real record of it, a picture record you'll enjoy looking over in future years, don't just take snapshots aimlessly. Try to plan ahead to capture the highlights.

Picture Story

And the best place to begin is at the beginning. That means taking pictures of the picnic lunch being prepared and packed, the scramble to get in the family car, and perhaps some shots of Mom trying to Junior that it's okay to take his baseball bat, sailboat, tennis recquet, model plane, and toy rifle but there's just not enough room left in the car to take his complete collection of toy soldiers.

Once arrived at the picnic site, you can continue the picture story with shots of Dad as he cooks the frankfurters or Mom serving up a plate of food to waiting members of the family. You'll want to take some snaps of the small fry munching away on a giant-size slice of watermelon or taking a mighty drink of soda pop.

Most people are conscious of themselves when they know a camera is being aimed at them. And the resulting pictures are artificial.

Natural Poses

So, instead of posing your subjects, the person with the camera should keep it handy by his side and ready to use when nobody is paying any attention to him. Or move around the picnic site snapping pictures when people are occupied and not mindful of the camera. People playing games, singing, talking, snoring away under a big shade tree, taking a cooling dip . . . there are so many natural situations worth recording on film at a picnic that it's impossible to mention them all. It's smart to bring along a few extra rolls of film so you won't run short in the middle of things.

One other suggestion. Today's cameras are usually equipped to take flash pictures. You can put flash to use in the daylight as a means of filling in shadow areas to get better pictures. And if the outing continues past sunset, flash will permit you to continue taking pictures of picnic fun.

Gift Variety In Electric Housewares

Give a bride her wish, and likely as not she'll take electric housewares.

Either as a shower or a wedding gift, nothing delights the heart of the prospective homemaker half so much as an electric appliance. There's a vacuum cleaner or portable television or vibrator.

In the kitchen her coffee maker will turn out perfect coffee for her very first breakfast in the new home. Her electric mixer and waffle iron insures waffles just the way he likes them. No burnt toast will pop from the automatic toaster; the orange juice is just right aerated in the blender.

But the perfect first breakfast will be followed by a perfect dinner if she has been given an automatic skillet with controlled heat, a broiler, a rotisserie, a pressure cooker.

Then there are shredders, juice extractors, deep fat fryers, egg cooker, food mixers, ice cream freezers, ice crushers, knife sharpeners, meat grinders, roasters, sandwich grills, hand mixers—all designed to let the inexperienced bride serve meals that look and taste like an expert's. With such first rate help constantly assisting her, how could she miss?

Other wonderful features of the many electric housewares available to help the bride keep house: They're easy to take care of, stay lovely forever and are a constant reminder of the donor.

There are two kinds of politeness; one says, "See how polite I am"; the other, "I would make you happy."—Tomlinson

Trace History of Picnics Back to Ancient Greece

The ancient Greeks and the French had a word for it—picnic.

It doesn't make any difference in what B.C. or A.D. century, a picnic is a time-and-place word that includes all the connotations of fun and pleasure. The participants haven't changed, just the dress, and some of the customs.

In the olden days of Greece the picnic was an out-of-doors lunch with all the picnickers toting their own food. Just why this type of gathering came about is lost in history.

Though it was a community affair, and certainly worthy of source tracing by sociologists, the beginnings have never been factually reported. But what may be clouded by time, has become a great American family pastime.

Honor Cooks

In the evolution of the picnic, a culinary competitive spirit was founded. As the custom spread, the gathering became a food judging contest with local honors bestowed on men and women cooks.

It isn't beyond conjecture to compare European picnics of centuries ago to the type of community gatherings observed in this country on the Fourth of July and at the county fairs.

The word meaning "picnic" was first noted in the ancient Greek language; that is the first syllable "pic." Somehow, the Romans never converted it to their spoken and written language, and it is assumed since the picnic is listed among the Romance languages, the original Greek meaning was retained.

The French, in their adaptation of the outdoor repast, called it a "pique-nique" to which each participant brought a portion of the food, or paid an equivalent contribution toward the cost of the affair.

Champagne Party

As time went on, the French made a change here, a change there, and from these additions came the pique-nique, 'a party of champange." The culinary rivalry was submerged and the elements of gaiety, good companionship and conviviality emerged.

This new meaning tended to encourage smaller gatherings with the exclusion of strangers. More or less, the picnic was an adult function or party held outdoors for weather comfort.

Meanwhile, in the United States, almost with the settling of the first colony, the New World residents indulged in outdoor meetings and communal serving of food. Soon, the spirit of neighborliness evolved from this cusom and picnics were organized for barn raisings, parties and other celebrations.

Picnics and Parties

Outdoor eating spread across the country with the settlement of each new territory. There was the barn dance, the harvest ball, patriotic observances, the welcome party and other such functions.

Today, the automobile and the backyard have altered the picnic to a "let's eat outdoors" affair. The picnic trend in America has come to prominence through the natural inclination for family activity. Encouragement for this type of endeavor is advocated by all social and religious agencies.

Abetting the trend are the picnic accessories like portable grills, handy insulated carriers, various dinning utensils and other outdoor cooking equipment which have simplified the outing.

The portable grill or the stationary fireplace barbecue, with their charcoal or wood fuel, have equalled the utility of the range. Any meat, fish or fowl that can be prepared for eating outside the house.

Sandwich Picnic

Too, eliminating cooking entirely, there's the sandwich picnic—probably the most popular—that involves no more than a loaf or loaves of bread and sandwich fillings. Hot dogs and hamburgers broiled on the grill are the next favorites.

In word evolution, it's "picnic"—fun eating out-of-doors.

The key to safety is you.

PATIO STYLE PICNIC

Fresh air, food, family, friends. Put these ingredients together, stir well, and you have, of course, a picnic.

Everyone loves a picnic—even mother. This is one of the simplest ways for her to feed the family and to entertain friends during the spring and summer. The food is easy to prepare, regardless of the quantities needed.

There is, of course, no question that food cooked out of doors tastes better than the same food prepared in the range in the kitchen—even if it's only a few feet away. Because so many homemakers now own electric skillets we suggest this patio or porch meal, featuring use of the electric skillet, and served picnic-style.

Patio Picnic

Panbroiled Slices of Canadian-style Bacon
Round slices of Baby Gouda
Catsup Relishes Mustard
Fresh Garden Vegetable Salad with Oil and Vinegar Dressing
Angel Food Cake
Fresh Strawberries on the Stem
Iced Coffee Milk

In preparing for this picnic meal for 8 persons make certain that in addition to baker's angel food cake, you have on hand:

- 1½ pounds Canadian-Style Bacon
- 2-3 red wax-coated rounds of baby Gouda cheese
- 1 large head of lettuce
- 1 bunch of curly endive or romaine
- Some fresh green leaves of spinach
- Radishes
- Green onions or dried onions
- Vinegar
- Salad oil
- 3-4 ripe tomatoes
- Confectioners' sugar
- A few ripe and stuffed green olives
- 2-3 quarts of strawberries, on the stem
- 1½-2 dozen sandwich buns

Cut the salad vegetables and store them in plastic bags in the crisper of your refrigerator. Remove the Gouda cheese units from your refrigerator at least one hour before serving time. Place the chilled strawberries in an attractive bowl just before serving time. Cut the cake into wedges, lightly sprinkle sifted confectioners' sugar over it. Arrange the wedges around the bowl of strawberries on a matching large torte plate.

On the patio, lightly grease the skillet and begin panbroiling the thin slices of lean bacon. While the bacon is broiling, take a red wax-coated unit of Gouda cheese and cut a few round slices. Arrange them around the uncut portion of cheese on an attractive cheese board, placing the cheese knife at the side.

Add the condiments and the salad oil and vinegar and toss the fresh garden vegetable salad. Catsup and mustard served in small cups with spoons are "extras." Some ripe and stuffed green olives and a small bit of salad greens will garnish each plate nicely and add color contrast.

'U' M. Makes Study of FHA Borrowers

Cites High Debt Load in Relation to Income

Minnesota farmers who have received Farmers Home Administration farm ownership loans have debt loads in relation to their farm income.

And when total farm income is below $5,000, these borrowers need some off-the-farm income to keep up their debt payments. This is reported by Reynold Dahl and Peter Helmberger, agricultural economists at the University of Minnesota, in the current issue of "Minnesota Farm Business Notes," a University Agricultural Extension publication.

Dahl and Helmberger studied 180 FHA farm ownership loans in nine Minnesota counties.

In 1955, the average cash farm income of these borrowers was $5,930. Cash farm operating expenses averaged $3,806, leaving a net cash farm income of $2,130.

Family living expenses of these borrowers averaged $1,674, which, when subtracted from net cash farm income, left $456 for debt repayment and capital expenditures. This sum, though, hardly covered depreciation on the $4,000 machinery and equipment investment on these farms, meaning the average farm operation gave no return at all for repaying debts.

However, these 189 borrowers had an average of $863 of nonfarm income, which was roughly the amount available to use as debt payments.

About 45 percent of the borrowers had gross farm incomes of less than $5,000, which isn't enough to handle debts after paying farm operating expense and family living costs.

More than a fourth of these borrowers farmed less than 100 crop acres. On farms this size, it's difficult, under most types of farming, to earn more than $5,000 gross income annually, Dahl and Helmberger point out.

Average debt load was $11,651, which was about half of the value of total farm assets.

For Minnesota as a whole, there were 1,532 outstanding FHA farm ownership loans in March, 1955.

State Families Own $6.8 Billion Life Insurance

3,481,000 Policies Held by Residents of State at Start of This Year

Minnesota families owned 3,481,000 life insurance policies providing $6,835,000,000 of protection at the start of this year, a new high record, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.

This compares with $6,308,000,000 owned in this state the year before and $3,111,000,000 at the start of 1947. The ten-year rise in this state was 120 percent.

Of the total life insurance owned January 1 in Minnesota, $4,470,000,000 was in 1,600,000 ordinary life policies. Purchases of new insurance of this type in this state amounted to $591,000,000 in 1956, exclusive of credit life insurance. New York was the leading state in ordinary life insurance ownership.

An additional $273,000,000 of life insurance protection was owned at the start of the year in this state in 153,000 industrial policies, the type generally bought at the door in small units. Pennsylvania led all states in industrial insurance ownership.

Another $1,801,000,000 was in group life insurance in this state, under 398,000 individual certificates. New York had the largest group aggregate.

In addition, there was $289,600,000 of credit life insurance, under 530,000 individual policies and certificates in this state.

Vacation Travel Booms Gas Taxes

Minnesotans Will Pay $15,000,000 in 2 Months

With summer vacation time now at hand, Minnesota car owners, just during July and August, will drive some 2.4 billion vehicle miles, consume about 190 million gallons of motor fuel, and pay an estimated $15.3 million in taxes on gasoline.

This was the prediction made today by J. B. McDonald, Chairman of the Minnesota Petroleum Industries Committee, on the basis of past trends in motor fuel consumption in this state.

Mr. McDonald said that with these two months always the peak months for highway fuel consumption in Minnesota, the gallonage figures for July and August generally run about 14 percent higher than the monthly average for the other ten months of the year.

He noted that the total taxes on gasoline in Minnesota now add up to 8 cents a gallon, including the present 5 cent state gasoline tax and the 3-cent federal tax.

This total tax of 8 cents a gallon, Mr. McDonald said, is equivalent to a 39 percent "sales tax" on gasoline, making motor fuel one of the highest taxed commodities in the family budget.

Flood Damage Heavy in County Survey Reveals

Northeast Area is Hardest Hit; Ditch System Inadequate

By Chuck Brill

Normal weather conditions prevailing, a person driving through the northeastern townships of Pennington county would, at this time of the year, see farmers busy in the process of putting up hay.

There was, however, no sign of such activity Monday when a group of four officials representing several organizations made a crop survey of the area.

There were no farmers at work in the fields because in that part of the county most of the fields were under water.

In the party were Don Lawrence, warden for the soil conservation service; J. P. Rosengren, head of the county agency on farm credit; Pat Culkins, office manager for the agriculture conservation program and Oscar Houske, chairman of the Pennington county AFC.

In Goodridge township the water was still high. What little pasture land is above water provides scant pickings for the herds of dairy cattle. Farmers are feeding hay to supplement the poor pastures.

Harold South, grain farmer, estimated his loss to be around 25 percent on his seeded land. There has been, he said, a reduction of about 10 percent of the crop this year due to inability to plant.

In many fields that appear normal when viewed from road-level, mudhens dart to and fro with complete abandon in six inches of water. Seagulls are harvesting a good crop of minnows in fields where grain will not be harvested this year.

Harry Sigrud, of Reiner township stood along the roadside looking over a rich full stand of clover. The fields, however, were too wet and muddy to move in with the necessary machinery. He told the inspection party that he figured any more rain and his hay crop would be gone.

Oleander Uglem, when asked how his crop prospect was, looked at the high water in the ditch, then over the hood of the car at his water drenched fields and replied, "nothing."

Seventy-six sections of land in Goodridge, Reiner and Star townships are estimated to be 50 percent under water at this time and 24,370 acres of crops destroyed.

The group estimated that 60 to 70 percent of the farmers in the county have been adversely affected by the excessive rain with the estimated crop damage to be near the two-million dollar

July [illegible]th Should Be Bigge[illegible] Day at Fair

Special Progra[illegible] Will Add Interest for Spectators

Weather has favored the county fair going into the third day and if the constantly predicted "scattered showers" will scatter properly through one more day Thursday could be an attendance record breaker. Special entertainment and the possibility of winning an automobile should be very helpful at the gate, according to Jim Roche, secretary.

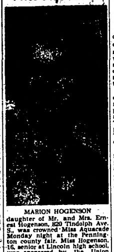
In addition to the regular circus and vaudeville acts scheduled for the afternoon program there will be for horse races, all jumpers. An International event has strong outside entries and there will be one race for local horses exclusively. Then there will be a Rough Riders race and a free-for-all, and possibly a consolation run for the losers.

A baseball game featuring the Thieves and the Red Lake Falls Lakers should prove interesting. These teams struggled through a see-saw battle Sunday night with the Thieves winning by a scant one-run margin.

The Wednesday night program will be preceded by the annual 4-H Club revue and presentation of awards.

Reports of the grandstand entertainment have been very favorable and there have been many expressions of appreciation for the improved seating facilities. For the first two days attendance was ahead of last year, Mr. Roche states.

Miss Aquacade



MARION HOGENSON daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hogenson, 820 Tindolph Ave. S., was crowned Miss Aquacade Monday night at the Pennington county fair. Miss Hogenson, 16, senior at Lincoln high school, was sponsored by the Union State bank. The queen and her court will reign over the '57 Jaycee water carnival festivities in Thief River Falls, July 21.

Co. F Returns from Two Weeks Camp

Two Vacancies in the Official Family to Be Acted Upon

The men of Co. F, 136th Infantry, seven officers and 100 enlisted men, returned from camp Saturday in six army trucks, two jeeps and 23 civilian vehicles.

For 47 men in the unit it was their first camp. For many it was an annual event that began in 1947. And for Capt. John L. Oven, unit commander, it was his last camp with the 136th.

New recruits and experienced men working together made a good showing during the two week training period at Camp Ripley, where more than 6,000 men from the state were represented, according to Warrant Officer, Ivan Bundy, "It was the best camp the unit had ever had in training attendance."

For 100 percent attendance during the two-week period the unit received the "Century Club" citation.

On a daily inspection basis the unit scored five times, receiving plaques for honor mess, supply and area.

According to Warrant Officer Bundy, there will be some transfers in the unit. Captain John L. Oven, unit commander since 1953 will be transferred to St. Paul.

First Lieutenant Wayne Leverson, resigned from the unit July 1, and will take a new position with the National Guard in Park Rapids, Minn. as a full time employee.

The new unit commander of the "136th" will be appointed in the near future, Bundy said.

Car Takes Beating When Hit by Truck

Only one minor accident was reported in the Pennington county area since Monday, with that mishap investigated by Deputy Sheriff Eugene Prestegaard.

New Parking Restrictions Take Effect

Maintenance Plan in Business District to Start Wednesday

Night parking on the streets of the business section of the city will have an added hazard starting on Tuesday of next week. On Wednesday the new restrictions ordered by the council to permit more orderly street maintenance will become effective.

On Wednesday, from 1:00 o'clock to 6:00 o'clock in the morning, no parking will be permitted on Main, LaBree, Horace and Atlantic avenues. On Thursday morning the paved portion of First, Second and Third streets will be restricted during these same hours.

This restriction will alternate from the Avenues to the streets, parking being banned on the avenues Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and on the streets Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

The restriction will apply on Main Ave. from the Great Northern tracks to Fifth Street, on LaBree from the hospital to Fourth, on Horace from First to Fourth and on Atlantic from Second to Third. First Street will be restricted from Knight Ave. to the bridge, Second from Knight to Atlantic and Third from Knight to the Soo tracks.

These parking controls will permit the street department to sweep all of the streets every other day, using the new mechanical sweeper to the best advantage. Penalty for violation of the new parking regulations to start with, according to city clerk P. O. Pedersen, will be the cost of removing the car to a parking lot. All of the streets and avenues have been properly posted.

Plead Guilty to Possession of Marijuana

Pair Who Stole A Car, Robbed Store, Get Prison Terms

Two transient Mexican laborers from Mexico, Tex. drew several 5-year sentences on charges of 2nd degree larceny, car theft and possession of marijuana in a session of district court held here Tuesday, before District Judge Paul A. Lundgren.

The two men, Juan Vidales and Isaac Llendro, were arrested by Marshall county Sheriff Oscar Erickson, after the theft of several watches from Holm's Jewelry in Warren. The show windows of the jewelry concern had been broken and everything within reach had been scooped out, it was charged.

Vidales pleaded guilty to charges of car theft and to possession of marijuana but pleaded not guilty to 2nd degree grand larceny.

Llendro pleaded guilty to all three charges listed above.

Vidales drew a sentence not to exceed five years in the state prison at Stillwater, Minn. on the motor vehicle charge and the same on the possession of marijuana charge, both sentences to run concurrently.

The case of his involvement in the jewelry store robbery is still pending. He claimed he was in the car but did not know his companion Llendro, was going to break into the jewelry store and that he had no part in the robbery.

Marshall County Attorney Warren Saethre is withholding action on the charge until he has checked Vidales prior record of convictions. If the convictions were for felonies, informations under the habitual criminal act may be filed, according to court reporter Arnold Pearson.

Llendro was sentenced to a term not to exceed five years in state prison on the larceny charge and a like term, to run consecutively, on the charge of possession of marijuana. He was also sentenced to a term not to exceed five years for car theft, this sentence to run concurrently with the marijuana sentence.

Roy Holmquist of the Warren law firm of Olson and Holmquist represented the defendants in the case.

Plan for Strict Enforcement to Reduce Accident

Law enforcement agencies in the city are preparing for the expected heavy holiday traffic. Capt. Walter Anderson of the highway patrol gave his force of National Guard troops final briefing this afternoon prior to their joining the regular highway patrolmen late today, Wednesday.

He also stated that he had been authorized by the park board to use the spraying equipment for the control of worms and aphids in trees.

At a meeting of the park board Monday night the problem of vandalism was discussed. A reward to $10 for information leading to the apprehension of any person known to have destroyed park property was authorized. Roy Brazen, president of the park board, stated that he had discussed the problem with local police and had been assured that routine patrol car inspections would be increased.

The need for more dock facilities along the river was discussed. It was proposed a dock 150 feet long could be installed parallel to the shore at the Boy Scout park. This proposal will be given further consideration.

It was reported that 24 tents had been pitched in the Riverside Park camping area over the week-end, all occupied by Canadian visitors.

July Meeting of Board to be Busy Session

Mid-year Business to be Disposed of; Act on Levy Later

The July meeting of the county board will be held at the court house Monday and, according to C. W. Rodekuhr, auditor, July meetings are always busy. The board holds only two meetings a year, one in January and the other in July, Rodekuhr explains. All other regular meetings are adjournal sessions. This means a heavier than usual batch of routine matters to be disposed of at the January and July sessions.

One of the matters generally disposed of at the July session is the tax levy for county purposes. This will be postponed, Mr. Rodekuhr states, because the session laws of the last legislature have not yet been made available and next year's financial needs may be affected by new laws.

One special order of business will be the opening of bids for repairs to county ditch No. 35, serving lands in Silverton and Smiley townships. In view of the flood condition in some areas of the county it is likely that other drainage problems will be discussed.

Disney's "Samoa" Coming to Falls

Other countries may claim to have more advanced civilizations, but Fa'a Samoa, which means the Samoan way of life, remains as one of the happiest modes of living existing today.

This fact is graphically and excitingly accented in Walt Disney's latest CinemaScope-Technicolor "People and Places" production, "Samoa," which opens at the Falls Theatre on Sunday. The centuries-old Fa'a Samoa as depicted so authentically in this beautiful film story, has resisted the intrusion of Western influences almost completely while jealously guarding the customs and rituals of their forefathers.

Fa'a Samoa, translated in terms of day-to-day living, means kindness in ruling, proficiency in work, and continuance and improvement of traditional crafts. The Polynesians have managed to make Fa'a Samoa almost an art.

Flood Damage Is Heavy in County Survey Reveals

mark. Individual losses range between 10 to 100 percent.

Fields are reported to be in comparatively good condition in the central section of the county that extends 7 or 8 miles on each side of Thief River Falls.

Farms in the western townships of the county are also suffering extensive damage according to Lawrence, who estimates that in Numedal, Bray, Polk Center and parts of Black River and Sanders the damage will average thirty percent.

In the fringe area of Mayfield township, Lawrence believed that the greater percentage of the crop could still be saved, with a loss of approximately 10 percent, providing the rain stops. Hickory township is near normal, with little standing water and the Red Lake river is approaching a normal level. However, the late cutting of hay may have reduced feed value.

What are the big problems that the farmers must now cope with? Lawrence and Culkins believe the main concern is feed. With the first cutting of alfalfa still standing there is likely to be a shortage of hay.

Weeds are also a serious problem. Mustard will cut the harvest in many areas. Unable to move spraying machinery into the wet, muddy fields there is little chance to destroy the crop killing weed.

According to the group in the survey, chances for government aid were not too good. Monday evening it looked like the only possibility of receiving government assistance would be in the form of emergency loans. At that time Pennington county had not yet been declared an emergency area. Early Tuesday morning, however, word was received that President Eisenhower had declared Polk, Pennington, Clearwater and Red Lake counties as disaster areas.

Feed Costs Biggest Item of Farm Expense

Feed costs are the biggest single production expense on Minnesota farms, according to a 1956 survey. The study was conducted by R. W. Cox, University of Minnesota agricultural economist, and R. A. Bodin and A. J. Schrimper, officials with the State-Federal Livestock Reporting Service.

Based on a sample of farmers, the researchers found that expenditures for production items averaged $6,052 in 1955. Feed costs made up $1,112, or 18 per cent of the total.

Second biggest cost item was for buying motor vehicles, machinery and other equipment — $845. Third largest was purchase of livestock and poultry, averaging $609 per farm.

Other high costs were; petroleum products, $522; repair and operating costs for vehicles and machinery, $430; construction and land improvement, $401 and property taxes, $337.

These data are intended, partly, to serve as a base for determining the net farm income and also for determining the index of prices paid by Minnesota farmers.

Highway Damage Heavy in Southwest Counties

Floods of the past fortnight caused more than $60,000 damage on more than 250 miles of Minnesota trunk highways in the Marshall area, alone, with more than 175 maintenance men working 10 to 16 hours daily, sometimes 24 hours at a stretch, to protect the roads, make emergency repairs and help control traffic. This was the report of Ken Pearson, assistant maintenance engineer of the state Highway department, who spent 10 days in the flooded Minnesota, Cottonwood, Redwood and Yellow Medicine river valley; in a 60 mile radius of Marshall, Trunk Highway 23 was the most heavily hit, with damage also reported on T.Hs. 19, 68, 59, 75 and 47. Some roadways were under six feet of water. Speed of the water's flow was accelerated by the rolling type of terrain and many tributary streams feeding into the rivers, he said. To augment department facilities, 30 extra men were hired and 30 pieces of private road equipment were rented.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—I want to sell my GI house because I just got a job in another city. Is it possible to find out in advance whether VA will restore my GI loan rights? Or must I wait until after I sell, and then find out?

A—You may find out in advance whether your GI loan benefit will be restored by making a request to the VA office that guaranteed your original loan and furnishing the reasons why you want to sell. VA is relieved of responsibility on the original loan. You can accomplish this by paying the loan in full, or by having the new purchaser do so.

• • •

Q—I was totally and permanently disabled in an accident recently, and I now plan to apply to VA for a pension. In figuring my annual income, do I include the money I earned before my accident? If so, I know my yearly income will go above the maximum the law allows.

A—No, you need not include the income earned before your accident. Your income will be computed on a proportionate basis, dating from the time you became totally and permanently disabled.

Thieves Meet Lakers in July Fourth County Fair Afternoon Game

Manager Gene Sack's baseball Thieves, entrenched in third place in the Northern Minny league standings, will attempt to hold that position as they meet the Red Lake Falls Lakers on the Fair Grounds diamond on Thursday afternoon, July 4th. The game, which is a feature of that afternoon's county fair program, will be at 2:30 P. M.

The two teams, the Lakers and the Thieves, played off an earlier postponement on Sunday night, with the locals getting a fine relief pitching job from veteran Jesse DuChamp, defeating the Lakers, 12 to 11.

According to tentative plans, manager Sack will line-up the Thieves as follows: catching, Gene Sack; pitching, Sid Vraa; first base, Glen Carlson; shortstop, Joey Poole; second base, Frank Gunderman; third base, Curly Gasperlin; and Duane Glass, Ross Sloan, and Bobby Helgeland patrolling the outfield.

The Thieves are somewhat short-handed as far as pitching is concerned for Lefty LeRoy Aasland, who had been expected to hurl against the Lakers on Sunday night, came up with a back injury. It is hoped that the southpaw will be ready for next Sunday's game at Fosston.

Other league games on the docket for July Fourth will find Fosston playing at Winger, and Bagley playing at Erskine.

Report Theft of Electric Tools

Loss of several electric tools, extension cords and light bulbs from the new elementary school construction project here was reported to local police Monday by Francis Capistrant of the Mandel Construction Co.

Missing, Capistrant said, were two ¼ inch drills and a Skil-saw, two extension cords and several dozen light bulbs.

Police are investigating the thefts, which are believed to have taken place during the weekend.

Deserving Champions

Local fans received their first look at Mel Brustad's 1957 edition of the Bagely Merchants baseball team on Sunday afternoon. And they saw an eyeful as the Merchants behind the pitching of southpaw Ken Severud, defeated the Thieves, 7 to 4.

Bagley, the defending league champions, are undoubtedly the class of the Northern Minny league again this season, and when they have Ken Severud on the mound, they are, or would be, a threat for the regional Class B title.

The one lack that could bother the Merchants when and if they move into regional competition, is the lack of strong power at the plate. On foot speed, defensive ability, and pitching strength, the Merchants are adequate. But except for the batting ability of chunky Earl Erickson, lanky Ken Severud, and burly Milt Prestemoen, the Bagley team isn't very awesome at the plate. And of these three, Erickson is the most dangerous. It was his over-the-fence blow that killed the Thieves on Sunday.

Worth the price of admission on Sunday was the performance of Ken Severud. If the term "artist" can be applied to the work of a baseball pitcher, then Ken is an artist, for his pitching has an artistic touch. Very stylish, and effective.

It was quite humorous to be in the Thieves' dugout and listen to the comments of the individual Thieves as they trudged back from the plate after swinging, or failing to swing, at Severud's assortment. Phrases such as this, "He's got nothin' . . . I should have hit the first pitch, it was right in there . . . I waited for his fast ball and he fed me the curve . . . I waited for the curve, and he came in with a fast ball . . . I hit at a ball that was in on my fists . . . I didn't get good wood on the ball . . . I'll murder him the next time up." And words to like effect.

But while we are singing this paen of praise in behalf of Bagley and the Severuds, Ken and Dave, leave us not forget the Thieves, who on Thursday afternoon, will be facing the Red Lake Falls Lakers on the Fair Grounds diamond.

The Thieves, along with Fosston, are the league's best on a purely home talent basis. And the locals are playing an entertaining brand of ball, too.

Couple of newcomers to the Thieves' squad, and they merit the attention of the local fans. Julian (Curly) Gasperlin, who really isn't a newcomer because he's the athletic coach at Goodridge high school, and as such is well-acquainted here, has fit well with Gene Sack's scheme of things, being able to play any infield position.

Curly is a native of Albany, Minnesota, and that town can rightly be called a "hot bed" of baseball. And a recent addition to the club is Frank Gunderman, a new druggist at Parkins Corner Drugs. Frank is from Ulen, and for the past couple of seasons he has managed the Ulen entry in the fast Norman-Polk league. Frank is a second baseman. His actions, and his oozing of self-confidence is reminiscent of Wayne Paul Gothe.

Short Supply

Announcement was made this week of the roster that will comprise the North All-Stars and who will participate in the North vs. South All-State football game which will be played in the Parade stadium in Minneapolis on August 28th.

On the thirty-man squad that will report to coach Bill Beven, only two players, Herschel (Pepper) Lysaker of Crookston and Sheldon (Don) Clay of Baudette, are from the eighth region. We are sure the "selectors" could have found two or three more boys from this region who are worthy of playing in the All-Star tilt.

There's no question but that Lysaker, a fine all-around back, and Clay, also an all-around athlete, are entitled to the All-Star honors they won.

Locally, we thought that Freddy Dablow and Jimmy Hall, members of Joe Mrkonich's squad last year, merited consideration and selection to the North All-Stars. Dablow, a guard, was prominently mentioned during the season, and he did "make" the WCCO radio all-state high school football squad. And Hall, a quarterback for the Prowlers, was as fine a competitor as the eighth region produced last season.

Days of the Sauger

We made our first trip to the Lake of the Woods on Monday, bringing our cedar-strip boat up to its anchorage (?) on Bostic creek. And of course, we fished for a couple of hours.

From our experiences, trolling along Pine Island and in the vicinity of Morris Point, the days of the sauger are upon us. The sauger, or sand-pike, the minnow dealer's best friend, were in abundance, and we must have caught a dozen or so. None were keepers.

The walleyed pike fishing, from the reports we gathered from Oscar Peterson and Curtis Cyrus, a pair of resort owners, has fallen away considerably this past week.

We performed an autopsy on a pair of small walleyes that we caught, and we found that they were crammed with the larva of the May fly. The May fly hatch is about due.

The fact that the commercial minnow seiners, who sweep the bars off Pine Island and Morris Point, were having difficulty in getting "shiners" may be a factor in the "slow" fishing, too. The walleye is bait-eating fish.

We were informed, by Orvis Olen, Lloyd Bennes, and Russ Embury that the walleye fishing in the vicinity of Quick's Light is just about the best-ever. That fishing, of course, is limited to the anglers who have an Ontario license. Quick's Light is about seven or eight miles north-east of the mouth of the Rainy river.

A Good Try

A wager was made this week, between Reuben (Slim) Lawson and Dennis (Cotton) Langevin, and Slim lost the bet. But not by much.

It seems that Slim, who has been a faithful fisherman of the pool below the dam, and who has been bringing in several limit catches of walleyes, made a wager that, on Sunday, he would catch six walleyes, and that each fish would weigh two pounds or better.

Came Sunday, and Slim was down below the dam, fishing from a location along the west side of the river. Slim's method of fishing is to use a bamboo pole, and still-fish a minnow that is hooked lightly just back of the dorsal fin.

It must be a deadly method, too, for Slim caught his limit of six walleyes, but he lost the bet as one of the fish weighed just a bit over a pound.

Attend State Convention Last Week at Duluth

Thief River Falls was well represented at the annual state encampment of the Minnesota Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary at Duluth last week. Roy Jorgenson, 9th district commander, Benhart Johnson, local post commander, Agnes Israelson, local auxiliary president, and Mary Reese, delegate, were the official representatives at the four day gathering.

The fact that the Wisconsin state meetings were held across the river in Superior those same days helped to swell the crowds and there was much exchanging of visits between the two groups.

A two hour parade was the convention highlite and it is estimated that 20,000 spectators viewed the long processions of marching units, floats and bands. Roy Jorgenson was officially installed as ninth district commander for the coming year.

During the past 25 years, the available future supply of oil has consistently been maintained in the ratio of 11 to 15 times annual production.

Kimball Explains Earlier Deer Season

A number of letters from sportsmen expressing satisfaction or disfavor with the November 9 deer opening this year has prompted James W. Kimball, director division of game and fish, to remind sportsmen that the 1957 Legislature was responsible for moving the season ahead.

"A large number of sportsmen are of the opinion that the department is solely responsible for setting the deer season. This, of course, is not so as the Legislature establishes the framework in which the season can run and also the maximum number of shooting days allowed."

Recent legislation set the framework during which the season could be open, from November 1-21.

In commenting on the November 9 choice Kimball asserted: "The Legislature obviously intended that the season should commence November 2 or November 9 if a full nine day season is subsequently warranted. We have to assume in our planning that a nine day season may be in the offering. Most hunters argue that a November 2 opening is too early and a November 16 opening does not leave us with a sufficient number of days."

The department of conservation did not sponsor the legislation for an earlier season.

"I wish to reiterate," continued Kimball, "that the department reserves the right to establish the season length on the basis of information provided us by our management and research staffs. It is even possible that the department could close the season completely in an area even though the opening date has been set.

Check Flooded Areas for Game Bird Losses

A team of game research biologists has moved into the flooded southwest part of the state to gather information on the extent of possible pheasant losses.

Extent of the pheasant range affected by recent rains and flooding has already been determined by an aerial survey of the region. Game officials flew the area at the height of the flood, taking pictures and nothing points of potenelal damage. The area affected by flood waters is great and of varying value in pheasant production. A census of the remaining breeding stock will be difficult to make at this time owing to the dense cover.

Meanwhile, Director James W. Kimball pointed out that surplus pheasant eggs presently on hand at the Carlos Avery game farm will be hatched and the young birds stocked in these areas. He estimated that 15,000 pheasants will be produced for this emergency in addition to all the day-old chicks reuested by sportsmen's clubs.

"With so large an area involved", said Kimball, "our contribution of stocked birds will not materially affect the situation if, in reality, we have sustained a heavy loss. Many of the hens will not be released until after the hunting season.

Also, state waterfowl biologist, Forrest Lee, announced he would make an inspection of the area to determine the effects on the resident duck population. Reports of paired ducks sitting on the edge of the flood waters is indicative of some nest losses, said Lee.

State Conservation Organization to Help in Civil Defense

In the event of a national or state-wide emergency, the personnel and equipment of the Minnesota department of conservation will become a part of the civil defense organization.

George A. Selke, commissioner and Clarence Prout, deputy, will administer protection of the natural resources with special jobs for some individuals.

The fire detection system of the division of forestry will be used for the spotting of aircraft, making reports by radio or telephone directly to the filter center located in Minneapolis. The radio communications network will be used not only for plane spotting, but also for fire, flood and other disaster emergencies communications.

The division of forestry and personnel are a part of the state rural fire defense committee, which consists of the state forester, state fire marshall, extension forester, Indian service, S.C.S. and U.S.F.S.

Francis W. Johnson, chief game warden, game and fish division, will serve in the police section of civil defense, for rescue and traffic control duties.

U. W. Hella, director of the division of parks, will be in charge of emergency housing, and will be located with the welfare section of the civil defense headquarters operational staff at Mankato.

P. Walle, chief research engineer for the division of lands and minerals at Hibbing, will serve as radiological chief of the St. Louis county mobile support unit.

At Least 16 Youths Drowned in State in Month of June

Vacation and the first warm days are made for swimming and in the month of June many youngsters have drowned each year. The incomplete record this year for June shows at least 16 youths under 19 are dead. Very few reports, however, list the number of people saved, and this year there have been four rescued from the accidents which caused death to others.

One death which is not listed is that of a young adult girl who recently went swimming in the Whitewater state park pool. For some reason she floundered in deep water and was saved by the alert park lifeguard. The park superintendent reported, "he was after the swimmer in a flash when he saw she was in trouble". This is the second incident in which state park lifeguards have averted a tragedy and should emphasize the necessity for swimming safety.

Swim at a supervised beach; if no lifeguard, swim with a buddy; if a beginner, stay in shallow water; if an expert, play safe.

Sign Penetrates Tree Three Inches

The speeding car that charged down the Third street boulevard one night last week, with two wheels on the pavement and two on the grass, picked up a speed limit sign and tossed it at a tree, penetrating the tree three inches cross grain. That is what the above picture shows. Also harvested was a light pole.

Mans The Wheel

U. S. Naval Academy Midshipman second class George E. Gifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olen D. Gifford, formerly of Thief River Falls, mans the wheel of a landing craft at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, Norfolk, Va.

He was one of 850 Naval Academy Juniors and 50 Royal Canadian Naval Cadets to undergo two weeks of amphibious training at Little Creek June 9-22.

June 8th Opening of Bass Season Was Satisfactory

Fisheries officials indicated today they were satisfied the June 8 bass opening this year did not result in a heavy take of fish who had not yet spawned. They further indicated that additional closing of waters to the taking of bass did not appear necessary.

In commenting on the evaluation studies made on different lakes throughout the state, fisheries officials pointed out that presence of a spawn in a bass caught by anglers does not necessarily mean cause for concern. They indicated that such a condition is not uncommon.

A case in point was 14 bass brought into the department recently by anglers who reported catching them full of spawn. Laboratory studies subsequently revealed that 11 were reabsorbing their eggs and would not have spawned further this year. Many bass which have successfully spawned retain part of their eggs and reabsorb them. The remaining three containing eggs capable of fertilization and of these, two were partially spawned out.

Evaluation studies on the June 8 opening are still underway in order that effects statewide may be fully known.

Oats Silage is More Nutritious than Grain

Oats harvested as silage produced 48 percent more total digestible nutrients (T. D. N.) per acre than did oats for grain in 1956 University of Minnesota research. At an oats silage demonstration at the Minnesota Valley Breeders association farm, Agronomist Rodney Briggs from the University said that in trials at 5 branch experiment stations last year, oats as silage averaged 2,374 pounds of T. D. N. per acre.

When put in the grain bin, the average was only 1600 pounds T. D. N. The increase in feed value from putting the oats up as silage, Briggs said, was equal to 17 bushels of corn or 33.0 bushels of oats grain.

He explained two ways to make grass silage:

One way, he said, is to cut the oats early, wilt it, and put it in air-tight silos at low-moisture. This method was demonstrated at the NVBA farm.

The other way — more practical for most farmers — is to let the oats get more mature, cut it in the early dough stage and store it in a conventional silo. It's extremely important to cut at the right time, Briggs said. Oats silage cut too early is apt to get sour. If cut too late, it may "carmelize" or mold.

Carp Trapping Now is at Peak, Moving Northward

Carp trapping by game and fish division crews is now at its peak with 650,000 pounds of rough fish, mostly carp, taken during the past few weeks.

A large territory is being covered in the carp trapping program this year.

Carp continue to show up farther north, say fisheries officials, and are now being trapped between Clitherall and West Battle lakes in Ottertail county.

While the territory which should be covered by carp control installations is increasing, the budget appropriation for this phase of the fish management program for the next two years has been further limited.

State to Sell $12 Million In Highway Bonds

To Be Used for Bridge Construction and the Buying of Right of Way

The state of Minnesota has issued a call for bids to be submitted July 16 for the purchase of $12 million of trunk highway bonds. The call provides that the money will be available by August 1. Seven million of the funds are to be used for the purchase of needed right of way, highway officials reported, and the remaining $5 million for construction of bridges.

The bond money for right of way will be expended on a revolving basis to accelerate purchase of needed right of way in anticipation of the receipt of federal aid authorized for trunk highway projects, including the new Interstate routes.

On the Interstate routes, the federal aid will replace 90 percent of the state's expenditures and on other state trunk routes, 50 per cent. Also, the bond funds can be used on trunk highway projects for which no federal aid is available.

The bond funds for bridges will go to meet the state's share of bridge construction costs on trunk highways.

The 1955 state legislature authorized $20 million of bonds for trunk highway bridges, of which $4 million were issued a year ago. The 1957 legislature authorized a similar $20 million of bonds for right of way purchases. The $12 million of bonds now to be sold are anticipated by state highway officials to meet right of way and bridge needs for the new fiscal year which began yesterday.

License or Franchise

Minneapolis is still arguing about taxi licenses. There are many applicants for taxi licenses in Minneapolis. The licensed few, however, have successfully maintained a monopoly. In spite of public demand and evidence that cab service is inadequate, the number of licenses issued has been strictly limited.

As a result of this limitation the right to operate a taxi in Minneapolis is a valuable franchise, said to be worth upward of $10,000. That is not the result that was intended when the licensing of taxis was first ordered. Licensing was adopted as a measure of control presumably in the public interest.

But this result is not unusual. It follows the general pattern and the abuses that are evident in the Minneapolis taxi monopoly exist to a greater or less degree in most licensed groups.

The license is the symbol of one of the greatest evils in our economic structure today. Instead of providing protection for the public it too often has become a grant of authority to prey upon the public. Too many of the professions and trades that have been granted the licensing authority, and the power to write their own rules and regulations and enforce them, have abused the privilege that has been given to them.

We are satisfied that John Stuart Mill, the great English liberal, was right in opposing the granting of any license that closed the door on competition in any field. He maintained:

"It would be giving too dangerous a power to governments, were they allowed to exclude anyone from professions, even from the profession of teacher, for alleged deficiency of qualifications: and I think with William von Humbolt, that degrees, or other certificates of scientific or professional acquirements, should be given to all who present themselves for examination, and stand the test; but that such certificates should confer no advantage over competitors, other than the weight which may be attached to their testimony to public opinion."

We still think the public interest is not being served by denying us the right to take our watch to the village blacksmith to be repaired. We think this is a matter in which only we and the blacksmith would have an interest. A license should never become an exclusive franchise.

We Need Them Good

Recent floods remind us that adequate drainage still are problems of major importance in our area and that there is a very real need for further improvement of our drainage system. Under conditions such as they are now, with thousands of acres of crops destroyed, these needs are easily recognized.

In wet weather we all agree that the leaky roof should be reshingled. In dry weather it is easy to think of many things we need more urgently than roofing repairs.

This natural human tendency to act only under the pressure of necessity has induced us to create drainage authorities with power to act for us in this important field, to plan wisely for protection from conditions that have occurred in the past and that we know will reoccur in the future. These agencies, during the dry years, seem to have lost interest in the problems they were created to solve.

It has been said that drainage is just as important to us as roads, and that we should maintain the same sustained interest in our drainage system that we do in our system of highways. That probably is true. But, we use our roads every day and are constantly reminded of their defects. Most of the time we don't need ditches. When we do, need them we need them good.

Let's Be Patient

Southern Democrats are preparing to stage another back-to-the-wall fight in the Senate when the civil rights bill comes up for consideration. This bill would end the discrimination that in a few states denies to Negroes the right to vote. By our northern standards the discrimination is bad. It is one of the convincing arguments used by the Reds in proving that we are still a nation of slave owners.

We think it would be well never-the-less to let the Southerners work out solutions for this and other race problems on a gradual basis. The need for such changes is recognized by the straight thinkers in those states. They are hindered in their efforts to bring about reform by the resentment that is caused by meddlesome Northerners.

We agree with those who say it was not necessary to fight a civil war to abolish slavery in our country; that such reform was inevitable and would have come in an orderly way under wise leadership. Abraham Lincoln was of that opinion. We agree that much of the responsibility for that unnecessary war, that did so much harm and accomplished so little good, can properly be attributed to the bitterness that was created by well intentioned but unwise northern abolitionists.

A few of the southern states are faced with a very difficult problem. The problem is a couple of centuries old. Let's not be impatient if they do not now solve that problem, as we want it solved, at once.

An Inheritance

(Wall Street Journal)

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, who has often complained of the fiscal mess he inherited, was forthright enough to remark the other day that his successor "is going to find no improvement in the mess."

Well, come to think of it, Secretary Snyder, who preceded Mr. Humphrey, didn't exactly come into a good inheritance from Secretary Vinson. Secretary Morgenthau, while he hardly improved matters in his decade, didn't walk into a very happy situation either. In fact since the days of Andrew Melon each succeeding Secretary of the Treasury has found himself confronted with a mess that seemed to get worse no matter how hard he wrestled with it.

One day, perhaps, it is going to occur to the country that we have given our Secretaries of the Treasury an impossible job. A man who is fast on his feet may do a little better than a sluggard when it comes to stopping up ten ratholes with nine plugs, but even his performance will be more a demonstration of agility than a success.

Robert Anderson, the next Secretary, will find that not all the agility in the world will end the Treasury's troubles unless the whole Government puts its entire financial house in order and permanently seals off at least some of the ratholes.

Unless that happens, then one of these days Mr. Anderson will be sadly making a like confession, that he too is handing on a sorry inheritance. The only question will be how many generations it takes a rich nation to dissipate a great estate.

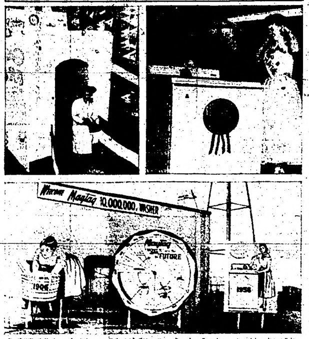
Maytag Produces 10-Millionth Washer



The 10-Millionth Maytag washer truly came off the production line with a "splash" as this independent home laundry appliance manufacturer set a production record unequaled in the industry. Aerial bombs signaled completion of the historic machine, christened with a flagon of cold water, symbolizing Maytag's pioneering in cold water washing for synthetic fabrics. Christening (upper right) was done by Mary Margaret Christianson, Maytag home service director, as Maytag Queen Jerry Bultvold looks on. The ceremony was held at the Newton, Iowa, automatic washer and dryer plant of the 63-year-old firm. Besides production line ceremonies, the 10-millionth celebration included an open house and plant tours for the community and an all-employe party and dance in an adjoining warehouse. Tour visitors passed through a giant replica of the Maytag All-Fabric automatic washer (upper left). Chronology of Maytag's 10 million washers was shown on a large sign (above). At a 10-millionth day luncheon, R. J. Hank, president of the American Home Laundry Manufacturers association, said, "This is a production milestone reached by no other company in the industry. One of the oldest companies in the home laundry appliance industry, Maytag is not only the leader today in the total number of washing machines produced, but also in the total number in use."

"THY WOODS AND TEMPLED HILLS..."

Samuel Francis Smith was a student at Andover Theological Seminary when he wrote "My country, 'tis of thee." That was in 1832, two years before he was ordained a minister.

"America" never became our national anthem—probably because it is sung to the tune of the British anthem, "God Save the King." But it has remained one of our greatest hymns, its words familiar to almost every American. In a simple, moving way it seems to express both the spirit of our nation and the faith of our churches. And in its stirring climax, addressed to the Author of Liberty, these become one.

Samuel Francis Smith, with other great Americans, taught us to seek our national welfare in constant religious devotion. He saw no denial of America's freedom—but rather its fulfilment—in the humble acknowledgment:

GREAT GOD, OUR KING!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Civil Defense - Firemen Sch[illegible]l Here Wednesday; Eight [illegible]nits to Participate

Firemen and civil [illegible] officials will consolid[illegible] operations at a school t[illegible] ducted at the Fair Groun[illegible] nesday evening, July 10. [illegible] demonstrations will be conducted under the direction of Ed Johnson, Area 3 commander, and Bruce Reski, Pennington County director of Civil Defense. Instruction in recommended fire fighting techniques will be conducted by Bill Herbert, Crookston chief, and Roy Langevin, chief of the Thief River Falls department.

The school is conducted primarily for Red Lake and Pennington county units but two Marshall county fire fighting organizations have also been invited to attend. Fire units that will be present are from Red Lake Falls, Plummer, Oklee, St. Hilaire, Goodridge and Thief River Falls. Also invited to participate are units from Warren and Newfolden.

Demonstration equipment will be brought from several of the communities. There will be fire fighting drills with smoke masks, ladder raising and safety, and demonstrations of equipment and its functions. Chief Herbert of Crookston is bringing a rescue truck and all firemen are urged to bring their own smoke masks.

The program will start at 7:00 o'clock and spectators will be welcome.

Thursday was Big Day at County Fair

At least one attendance record was broken at the 1957 Pennington County Fair, which ended with a brilliant fireworks display here Thursday, July 4, according to the estimates made by fair officials.

Stuart McLeod, one of the board members, said the Thursday evening stage show was attended by the largest crowd in the history of the fair when well over 2300 adults and children packed the grandstand and bleachers and seven rows of emergency seats to see the final stage performance, and fireworks display. McLeod said the stage show was well attended all four nights.

Overall fair attendance was about the same as last year's total. The 1956 fair was plagued by adverse weather; which cut down on exhibits and attendance alike, especially the first two days of the event. Attendance at the first two days of the 1957 fair ran ahead of the 1956 fair.

An encouraging feature of this year's fair, McLeod stated, was the best livestock show in the past 15 years. The early fair plus adverse weather cut crop exhibits but fair-goers and officials alike seemed impressed and pleased with the quantity and quality of the livestock exhibits.

One livestock exhibit that made an especially big hit with the children was the Shetland Pony show, staged for the first time this year. An unusually large number of Brown Swiss cattle were exhibited also.

This year's show marked the first time in recent years the livestock barn was packed to overflowing with exhibits. Had not repairs been made to the sheep and hog building room may have been lacking for all of these exhibits, he added.

Area 4-H'ers made an outstanding showing at the livestock barn and McLeod cited the fact there were 19 calves competing in one single division. Livestock judges were elated at the excellent turnout of animals, he said.

As for entertainment features McLeod said he heard only good comments from the public about the stage show. The 1957 fair marked the 8th year the show has been staged by Carl Marlo and the good attendance at the show made a good impression on the impresario and entertainers alike.

Basing their decision on past years experience the fair officials scheduled few afternoon events. One of these was the children's day Tuesday and the horse races the final day. The races were enthusiastically applauded by those in attendance but otherwise the largest crowds were on hand evenings.

Prepare Locally for National Civil Defense Operation

Section chiefs of the Thief River Falls Civil Defense Mobile Support Unit No. 3, met in the court house Friday evening to receive briefing in preparation for the National exercises "Operation Alert 1957."

Next Friday morning, July 12, the "yellow alert" will be sounded. At this time county and municiple defense directors will prepare to activate their control centers.

The exercise will simulate an actual atomic attack. There will be no physical movement of Civil Defense equipment, however, movement will be simulated and plans for movement of forces will be made according to plan. Upon receiving the "yellow alert" local section chiefs will report to the county agents office in the courthouse, the county control center, and run through plans on paper.

Time of attack, list of targets, location of ground zero, yield and type of bomb will not be known until the time of attack. This data will be mailed to local county mobile chief, Bruce Reski, in a sealed envelope by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. Until Reski opens the envelope, the emergency action of the local unit will be unknown. The official letter may read:

"Minneapolis bombed, 10,000 refugees coming to Pennington county," or since the Pennington county area is in the path of possible incoming aircraft there is a possibility of other types of action. The local unit may be faced with "downed" aircraft and crews and the possibility of action that the crews might do.

Once the envelope is open and the problem know, the local unit will take the necessary action.

The purpose of the assumed attack will be to determine present operational capabilities of the local unit and to test coordination of emergency plans with State and county units.

St. Hilaire Elevator Adds 50,000 Bu. Unit

During the harvest season last fall, the people who operate the grain elevator at St. Hilaire ran into a little trouble.

They found out, that one small elevator plus, one large harvest adds up to one big problem. Or, according to Henry Thoreson, manager of the St. Hilaire elevator, it was a little rough trying to run 400,000 bushels of wheat through a 15,000 bushel house.

Last winter the 200 stockholders of the St. Hilaire cooperative, who took over the grain elevator in 1952, decided to do some thing about this unhappy situation. They drew up plans for a bigger, better elevator; hired a contractor, ordered six carloads of lumber—enough to build 18 two-bedroom houses—and waited for the warmer spring weather to arrive.

On May 6th, 18 carpenters working 48 hours a week, at a weekly payroll of one-thousand dollars, began work on the structure.

Last Friday, two-months and some 7,500 pounds of spikes later, tinners were putting the finishing touches on the roof.

The elevator, measuring 24 by 40 feet, towering 104 feet into the sky, was constructed at a total cost of 30 thousand dollars and will hold 50 thousand bushels of wheat. Three times larger than the original elevator, the new structure will increase the total capacity of the combined elevators to 65 thousand bushels of wheat.

This, according to Thoreson, will make the 400 bushel harvest a little easier this year.

MILK VENDERS DISCONTINUE

Land O'Lakes Creameries has announced that it will discontinue milk vending machines in Thief River Falls.

Discuss Flood Damages at Gully Session

Explain Status of Government Grants In Disaster Area

Pennington county officials and township officials of eastern Pennington and Marshall counties attended a meeting at Gully Friday evening called for the purpose of considering flood problems in the four counties declared by President Eisenhower to be a disaster area.

Reports on the extent of the damage indicated heavy losses in the Lost River, Ruffy Brook and Clearwater river watersheds effecting farms in Clearwater, Polk and Red Lake counties. John Melby of Oklee estimated damages in Red Lake county at $800,000. Earl Wagner of north Clearwater estimated the losses in five northern townships at more than $200,000, and Claude Knutson of the Gully community figured the damage in East Polk county at $400,000. Senator Roy Wiseth of Goodridge stated the losses in northeastern Pennington were heavy.

An explanation of the status of the communities under the provisions of the law that provided for disaster area relief was made by Edward George of Denver, national disaster coordinator of the 6th region. Under the provisions of this act federal emergency assistance could be made available only to public bodies and not to individuals. Grants made available to local units of government would supplement money provided by the state or raised locally.

State money is available for such purposes in the sum of $200,000 to be distributed under the direction of the state emergency council. It was pointed out that federal funds could be used only for temporary repairs on public works and could not be used for permanent improvements.

N. C. Ellertson, deputy commissioner of agriculture in Minnesota, and William Connell, administrative assistant to Senator Hubert Humphrey, discussed other phases of assistance that might be made available. The main source of relief would be the U. S. department of agriculture and action by this department will be guided by the findings of a state disaster committee that Secretary Benson has already appointed.

One of the possibilities would be extended loans by the Farm Home administration at reduced rates of interest, including extention of due dates of loans already made. An emergency feed program is also a possibility along with special allowances for summer fallowing flooded lands.

G. E. Lyon, civilian chief engineer and Lieut. Col. DeBerg, executive officer of the St. Paul district of the Corps of Engineers, reported on the progress

County Road System to Be Established

Primary Roads Will Total 255 Miles; All May be on Federal Aid

One of the important items of business that the county board probably will dispose of at its meeting today will be the designation of county roads under the provisions of the act passed by the last legislature. County engineer Joe Seidel states that agrement has been reached with state highway officials. The approved plan provides for a primary system of state aid roads totalling about 255 miles.

This mileage includes the roads that have already been a part of the federal aid secondary system, extending across the line at the St. Hilaire-Hazel-River Valley level, with north-south connections with trunk highway No. 1 at five points. Mr. Seidel says that all of the designated state-county road system probably will be made a part of the F.A.S.

The selection of the 155 miles that now will be added to the primary system has not been an easy matter and there have been several meetings with state officials adjusting differences of opinion. In establishing this system the traffic patterns in this and adjoining counties were taken into consideration.

Under the new arrangement there will be a secondary system of roads to be known as county roads. There will be about 400 miles in this system. The plan that may be acted upon by the board at today's meeting provides for an entirely new numbering system for both the primary and secondary systems.

$56,539 Has Been Paid Soil Bankers

Checks totalling $56,536.54 have been mailed to 208 of the farmers who have reduced their wheat acreage under the provisions of the soil bank program, according to Pat Culkins, office manager of the Pennington county agriculture stabilization and conservation committee (ASC).

More checks are going out daily. There are about 300 Pennington county farmers participating and who have taken 4,600 wheat acres out of production.

The final figures for the payments to be made under the provisions of the conservation reserve program will be announced in August. Mr. Culkins states that $5.25 per acre is being paid for the seeding of vegetative cover and urges that farmers report promptly as soon as they have complied with these requirements.

Dr. Robert Watson, formerly of Thief River Falls and now practicing in Morris, has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and now is the regimental medical officer of the 136th regiment.

Widespread Storms, Wind, Hail, Do Extensive Damage Crops Take Hard Beating

Widespread storms have done extensive damage in several northwest Minnesota communities. Excessive rainfall along with high winds and hail have taken a heavy toll of crops, windows and automobile tops.

Storms that passed through Marshall and Red Lake counties late Saturday afternoon were especially damaging. One storm moved down Highway No. 75 in Marshall county, striking with varying degrees of severity from Stephen into the northern township of Polk county, according to Erling Weiberg, Marshall county agent. In places it cut a swath up to five miles wide and much headed grain will be a 100% loss he said.

In Stephen, Argyle and Warren, windows were broken and many car tops were badly dented. Another storm hit in the Vega area about eight miles west of Warren and there too damage was heavy.

The storm that swept across a section of Red Lake county started in the Wylie area according to Abel Anderson, Red Lake county agent, and did much damage in the Red Lake Falls community. It covered an area up to four miles wide in places and Mr. Anderson estimates damage to headed grain at 100% in some sections.

There were heavy winds and some hail north of Mavie and also north of Goodridge but apparently Pennington escaped the Saturday night storms with only minor damage. County agent Paul Steimaschuk reports damage in the southwestern townships by the same storms that swept into Red Lake Falls. He is making a survey today to determine the extent of the losses.

Despite the toll exacted by excessive rainfall and, in some parts of the county where hail did moderate damage an "average" crop has been predicted in Pennington county.

Damage to hay has been most severe. The worst flooding has been in the eastern townships.

Steimaschuk said he held little hope for recovery of waterlogged flax in high-lime areas in the county. These flax fields are badly yellowed and the chances of their comming through with a fair yield are very slim.

In the immediate Thief River Falls area he said, crops should run "average or better". In general, crops are at least a week behind the normal growth at this time of year. Corn, especially, has been affected by lack of warm weather.

These Signs Mean Business

NO PARKING
1 a. m. to 6 a. m.
MONDAY WEDNESDAY
FRIDAY

Streets in the business section have been posted for several weeks, warning all-night parkers to observe new regulations imposed to clear the streets and avenues on alternate nights for street cleaning. Starting this week they mean business, and those who do not follow the instructions will find their car in a parking lot the next morning. With it will be a price tag covering the cost of towing.

The regulation goes into effect Wednesday morning. That means Tuesday night for the car parkers.

Two Bus Loads of Area Scouts Left Yesterday For National Jamboree

Following a breakfast at the Zion church yesterday morning, two bus loads of Boy Scouts of the Lake Agassiz Council left here a little behind schedule for Valley Forge, Penn., where the fourth national Jamboree of the organization will be held from July 12 to 18. Of the 80 members of the group 15 were from Thief River Falls.

Saturday night storms in the Emerson area caused the late start Sunday morning and the busses arrived here late. It was about eleven o'clock when they resumed their journey following a breakfast and short service at Zion Lutheran church.

The outing actually started Thursday when the Scouts and officials assembled at Emerson for two days of pre-Jamboree training. On Friday the group moved on to Winnipeg where they were guests of the Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Boy Scouts of that city. They returned to Emerson Saturday evening and left there early Sunday morning for their scheduled breakfast at Thief River Falls.

Members of troops 22 and 23 of this city who are making the journey are David Fischer, Glen Haugen, Ronald Lindbergh, James Sculthorp, Gary Christofferson, Steve Embury, Darryl Williamson, Ronald Amundson, Leroy Kritz, Steven Mittelstadt, James Terrian, Jerry Wedul and David Rasmussen. Darryl Williamson and David Rasmussen are senior patrol leaders. Thief River Falls Scoutmasters in charge of units are Alvin Christofferson and Frank Baird.

Warren Scouts in the party are William Gilbert, Loren Knutson, Steve Nelson and William Pumala. Earl Johnson and Allen Pelowski of Roseau and Gary Overold of Middle River are other Scouts from neighboring communities in attendance.

The group was scheduled to spend last night at Ft. Snelling, tonight at Ft Sheridan out of Chicago, Tuesday night at the Armory at Wooster, Ohio, Wednesday night at Carlisle Barracks and arriving at Valley Forge Thursday afternoon.

The return trip will take them to Washington, Annapolis, New York, West Point, Niagara Falls and Detroit. They will be home July 28.

Two Brahma bulls escaped from a rodeo herd at Hallock Thursday and for a while caused some uneasiness in the community. They wandered off to a nearby farm however and were picked up without difficulty. A more serious problem for the fair management that day was the nearly two inch rainfall that flooded the grounds.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

There's no getting around some mention of weather these days. . . it held true to form over the Fourth. At least where we were it was strictly unpleasant with high winds, rain and thunder and lightening.

But, from what we hear it was very nice at the fairgrounds so the day can't be written off as a failure.

Dame Fortune certainly smiles on some fellows and looks down her nose at others . . . a fellow we know of had about 1200 slips in the drum at the fair and his name was called three times in the preliminary drawing for the car given away at the fair.

But, do you suppose he won the car? Nope . . . a fellow who had only ONE ticket tossed in among the many thousands put there by other hopefuls won.

Any time a guy that lucky tries to sit in a game we're playing we're gonna cash in our chips and become a spectator!

We didn't suffer any property damage from the recent heavy rainfall but became a casualty of the high waters nevertheless. Our Sacro-iliac took an awful strain while raising our dock at Union lake above the new high water level there, last Sunday.

If you see Yours Truly navigating the streets with a pronounced list to starboard you know what caused it!

We might add those chiropractic adjustments are no snap. Lousy pun, eh wot?

We see our highly talented sportswriter, Huck Olson, finally got his boat wet from the outside after months of catching the rain while sitting in his back yard.

But, about those saugers, Huck . . . are you sure they weren't what some folks call perch?

Since we're a sort of fair-weather sport we didn't even put our boat in the water over the Fourth but were content to amuse ourselves by fishing for sunfish and bluegills from the dock, using worms for bait.

It was a most pleasant surprise to have the largest bass we've ever had the the pleasure of catching almost tear the rod from our grasp. Most pleasant of all, however, was landing him after he got our line all fouled up in the weeds!

The "pumpkin-seeds" were biting for sour apples, tho.

Well, now that the Fourth is past summer is on the downhill drag. First thing you know local merchants will be running back-to-school promotions, to remind local small-fry that summer, like life, is a fleeting thing one should always make the very most of at all times.

To see the way some youngsters carry on one is almost inclained to agree with the fellow who said, "Youth is such a wonderful thing—it's a pity it has to be wasted on young kids." Oh my achin' back—and SO LONG!

Will Explain Egg Grading Law July 18th

Byron Allen and Staff Will Discuss New Regulations

Egg producers and dealers in this area are urged, by Byron G. Allen, State Commissioner of Agriculture, Dairy and Food, to attend a meeting to be held at 8:00 p.m., Thursday, July 18, at the Court House, when staff members from the department will conduct an educational and discussion session on Minnesota's new quality Egg Law, enacted by the 1957 Legislature, and proposed Regulations which will replace those now in effect and administered by the department.

This is one of a series of 22 such meetings being held between July 15 and 19, in various sections of the state. They are preliminary to the formal hearing on regulations, required by law, which has been announced for August 6, which will be conducted by Commissioner Allen in the Auditorium of the State Office Building in St. Paul.

"Before any new regulations are adopted," says Mr. Allen, "the staff of the department desires to inform farm people and especially the egg producers, handlers and retail dealers about the provisions of our state's modern egg law. Then we want to gain the opinion of all interested people on how to best implement the program for better quality eggs. We seek the opinions of all interested people, including the ideas of housewives and consumers, so that an informed public can serve with the department to elevate Minnesota eggs to a positions of 'Best in the Nation'".

Youth Treated for Cuts Caused by Car Crash July 4th

An accident on a county road July 4 resulted in the nearly total destruction of two cars and sent one youth to the hospital here with minor injuries, according to Deputy Sheriff Eugene Prestegaard in a report made here today.

The accident occurred about six miles east and one mile north of the city when a car driven by Wayne Harder, son of Hans Harder, rt. 4, city, and another driven by Mrs. Carl Berggren, Aurora, collided at an intersection.

Prestegaard said both cars were older models and that damage to both was so severe as to make repairs impractical. The injured youth was Allen Harder, brother of Wayne Harder. He was treated for lacerations and released from Northwestern hospital July 6. Both boys were thrown from the car by the impact of the collision.

Neither Mrs. Berggren nor Catherine Ann Billings, 5, a passenger, were injured.

In a Marshall county accident reported to the sheriff's office here neither Mr. or Mrs. Wilfred M. Sletten, Cudahy, Wis., were injured when their car hit a cow which stepped onto highway 219 ahead of them about 1:30 a.m. July 5. The accident occurred about five miles north of Goodridge. The Sletten car was damaged to the extent of about $75 and the cow, owner unkown, was reported killed.

Employment Down Eldevik Reports

Employment in the Thief River Falls area as of June 15, 1957 was 2,561, a drop of almost 3 per cent, compared with March 15, 1957, when total employment in Thief River Falls stood at 2,637 according to the quarterly report issued Thursday by R. S. Eldevik, manager of the local employment office. The closing of local public schools for the summer vacation season was largely responsible for this decrease.

There were only minor flucuations in the local trade where a fair upswing was noted. The increase in local trade was caused by a return to normal summer-time employment after the winter lull in trade activity.

The demand for workers has been lighter than is normal for this time of year. Construction work has been slow with little demand because of bad weather, and a drop in housing and commercial starts. The demand for qualified office and restaurant help has been moderate and steady.

The demand for workers in other areas such as the Jet Air Base in Grand Forks, North Dakota and the Iron Range has been very slow and consequently disappointing to many job seekers.

Robert Fuglien's mare, Lady Paula, proved to be the "winningest horse" on the program, winning the Rough Rider and Free-for-all events. The Roseau county mare was ridden by Junior Broten, and posted times for the half-mile events of 51.7 and 50 seconds.

In the Local horse event, Pearl, a mare owned and ridden by Dennis Carpenter, ran the half-mile in 50.1 seconds to win first place.

The four races on the program, utilizing the automatic starting gates of the Northwest Racing Association, were "run-off" with a minimum of wasted time.

The summaries:

Poole's Legion Juniors Won 3 Ball Games

Defeat of Fertile Friday Night Gave Team a Good Week

Coach Joey Poole's local American Legion junior baseball team won three games during the week's play, defeating Red Lake Falls, Crookston and Fertile. Playing at Red Lake Falls last Monday evening, the locals, on six walks, a pair of hit batsmen, an error, and a double by Keith Johnson, scored nine runs in the last inning, giving pitcher Arlan Hjelle a comfortable "cushion". The locals won the game, 16 to 5.

This week's schedule will be highlighted by the game to be played on the Fair Grounds diamond Thursday night, with the Bemidji juniors meeting coach Poole's club. Game-time has been set for 8:00 p.m.

In a district conference game played at Crookston's Highland Park on Tuesday evening, the locals broke up a 3-all game to score five runs in the 7th inning and won the game, 8 to 3. Jim Wegge and Jerry Jorgenson opened the frame with singles; Harlie Drees skied out to center-field; Darrel Wick bounced into a force play; Dean Bergland walked, loading the bases; Keith Johnson was safe on an error, with Jorgenson scoring on the miscue; Bob Hallameck walked, forcing in Wick; and Arlan Hjelle banged out a single, scoring three runs. Drees set down the Pirates in the 7th, giving up a walk and a single.

In a dramatic game played here Friday night, the locals edged out the highly-touted Fertile juniors to score a 5 to 4 triumph over coach Chuck Johnson's club.

A single, a walk, a stolen base and an error gave Fertile a tally in the 1st inning. And coach Johnson's squad gained a 2 to 0 lead when they added a run in the 2nd inning on an error, a walk, and a single by Sannes.

The game, and it was one of the finest of the season, moved into the 6th inning with the score at 2 to 0 for Fertile.

A single by Dean Bergland, walks to Hallameck and Wick, and singles by Mickey Hanson and Arlan Hjelle accounted for five runs for the locals in the 6th inning.

Fertile made a desperate threat to salvage the ball game in the top half of the 7th inning, scoring a pair of runs and having the tying run on second base and the go-ahead run on first base with two men out and the dangerous Arlo Brunsberg at the plate. Hjelle, who had replaced Harlie Drees on the mound for the locals in the 2nd inning, and who had pitched splendid ball; appeared to tire, and coach Poole called in Bob Hallameck to hurl to Brunsberg. Hallameck whiffed Brunsberg, getting the southpaw slugger on a swinging strikeout, "saving" the game for Hjelle.

Manager Mel Brustad's Bagley Merchants continued their unbeatable manner in the Northern Minny league competition by scoring a pair of "road" victories this past week, and boost their league lead to five full games. Playing at Erskine on the Fourth of July, Bagley defeated Erskine, 14 to 0, and playing at Red Lake Falls on Sunday afternoon, the Merchants racked up an 11 to 3 triumph.

It's possible that Bagley will get their hardest test on Wednesday night when they meet the runner-up Thief River Falls Thieves in a night game on the Fair Grounds diamond at Thief River Falls. In a previous game between the two teams, and also played here, Bagley defeated the Thieves, 7 to 4, gained their win by rallying for a pair of three-run innings.

Another important tilt on Wednesday nights' bill will find Erskine playing at Fosston. The two teams are engaged in a red-hot battle for third place in the league standings, with Fosston holding that rung by a one game margin at present.

Decorator's Notebook

by Alicia Joyce

Two Woods Give Group Great Charm

By the interplay of two lovely hardwoods — nut brown walnut and spice-toned cherry—a design of great simplicity achieves an air of timeless elegance in this six-drawer dresser.

All its companion pieces in a new, moderately-priced bedroom group have the same unadorned lines, but there is nothing severe in this design, primarily because fine cabinet woods of themselves offer great visual warmth. This is especially true when their grain patterns are the main decorative theme. Here, for example, the walnut surfaces reveal shell-like figures—the gentle, familiar wood pattern of which no one ever tires.

The lighter-colored cherry which "frames" each drawer is a luxurious note, suggestive of costlier decorator furniture.

Walnut "Warms" Glass

Polished brass pulls are thin, straight-lined — just a dash of accent on each drawer — to avoid distracting the eye from the wood. Note, too, how the gently rounded, plain walnut frame softens the "coldness" of the large mirror, and how its "off-balance" placement avoids monotony.

In this group the manufacturer has introduced a new size—42 inches—in chest pieces. It is a three-drawer version of the above dresser (which is 84 inches wide). There is also a "triple dresser" in which three much narrower center drawers are not banded with the cherry wood. Instead their walnut fronts form a single, eye-pleasing brown tier between cherry-bordered rectangles on either side.

In a low-scaled chest-on-chest, the upper deck has door fronts which also vary the design theme by being of walnut alone. Beds in this group offer a choice of headboard or bookcase styles, both with the appealing cherry-banded panels. Capacious two-drawer night tables follow the design of the dresser we've illustrated.

Benefits of "Bonded Woods"

For those interested in construction details, the dresser's frame, which includes the slightly "shaped" protruding posts in view, is made of solid walnut. But all the flat surfaces — sides, drawer-fronts, top — take advantage of the great modern process of "bonding" woods which has superseded what used to be called "veneering". Thanks to this development, these flat expanses are immune to warping, cracking or splitting, and have extraordinary durability regardless of weather or climate.

Discuss Flood Damage at Gully Session of the Lost River and Ruffy Brook channel improvement projects. Mr. Lyon stated that the improvements contemplated would have reduced the damages materially but not entirely, this being what he classified as a sixty year flood.

Three resolutions were adopted by those present. One favored extention of FHA loans due this fall, and in some instances a complete cancellation of such obligations. Another called for a special soil conservation program, encouraging deep tillage and summer fallowing as a means of restoring damaged land, and the third asked for special FHA emergency loans extended up to the five years at an interest rate not greater than 3%.

Representative Ben Wichterman of Plummer presided at the meeting.

Crabgrass Control A Problem Again

Crabgrass Control

Crabgrass will be a problem again this year. Although it's not easily recognized in the juvenile stage, control must begin while the weed is quite young in order to eradicate it.

An annual plant, crabgrass is produced each year from seed. The stems are smooth and stout and usually root at the joints when prostrate. The leaf blades are a fourth to a third of an inch wide and are usually somewhat hairy. Leaf sheaths, especially the lower ones, are densely hairy. A seed head has three to ten segments in a finger-like arrangement.

Crabgrass control begins with good cultural techniques for the lawn. Spring fertilization will stimulate growth of good grasses and so will tend to smother the germinating seedlings of crabgrass.

Set the lawnmower higher so the longer grass will shade the young crabgrass seedlings and discourage their growth.

Commercial preparations of phenyl mercuric acetate (PMA) or potassium cynate will give good control. Make two or more applications of the chemical at 10-day intervals after seedlings appear. Water the soil thoroughly the day before for best results.

Slight burning of the bluegrass after application of the chemicals should not alarm the home owner. Usually the bluegrass will revive after a week to ten days. Make a second application of fertilizer in early August to help the bluegrass regain its vitality.

N. Central Gets Nonstop Flight; Duluth to Chicago

The Civil Aeronautics Board has announced that it will approve North Central Airlines' application to provide nonstop service between Duluth-Superior and Chicago.

The Board also announced that it will approve the airline's application to extend service from Duluth-Superior to Sault St. Marie, Mich., via Ironwood, Hancock-Houghton and Marquette, Mich.

Issued in press-release form, the announcement said the CAB will cancel Northwest Airlines' authority to service Duluth-Superior and reject NWA's proposal for an equipment interchange with North Central out of the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

The CAB also stated that, in addition to Chicago nonstop, it will further authorize North Central to provide one-stop service between Duluth-Superior and Chicago via Madison, Wis., and two-stop service between Duluth-Superior and Chicago via Green Bay and Milwaukee, Wis.

Hal N. Carr, North Central's president, today said the airline will inaugurate the Chicago nonstop service within 60 days after the final decision is issued. Carr said the decision will probably be issued in about a month.

HOME Garden TIPS

C. GUSTAV HARD
ORRIN C. TURNQUIST
AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE
UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA ST. PAUL 1, MINN.

Cultivation and Weed Control

One of the steps to a successful garden is the control of weeds that compete with garden crops for moisture, nutrients, light and air.

A weed is merely a plant out place. If we have a dozen carrots in an inch of row where one should grow, 11 of them are as much weeds as purslane or pig weed. If plants like carrots or beets are too thick in the row, the crop will be both poor quality and poor size at harvest time. Volunteer vegetables which come up where we do not want them should be either transplanted to a desirable place or removed by cultivation.

Today several chemicals are on the market for controlling weeds in the garden. Unfortunately, no one chemical will kill all weeds without injuring some of the vegetables. Commercial vegetable growers my find some chemicals very desirable for weed control in specific crops, however.

Early cultivation still remains the best method of weed control in the home garden. Cultivation should always be shallow to prevent injury to the roots of the vegetables plants. If roots are injured, they cannot absorb water and nutients. Close cultivation around tomato plants may cut shallow roots and result in curling or rolling of the leaves and even blossom-end rot on the fruits.

Cultivation has other functions besides weed control. It provides a soil mulch and so conserves moisture. It also aerates the soil, thus promoting the development of beneficial organisms.

But don't cultivate when the soil sticks to your shoes or garden implements. Wait until it's dry to maintain good soil condition.

Often it's good idea to take out some weeds from the garden area after cultivation. This is especially true of purslane which may easily re-establish itself in the garden after its roots are removed by cultivation.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representative at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—If a veteran dies without naming a beneficiary for his GI insurance policy, and the money is paid to his estate, how will it be paid—in one lump sum or in monthly installments?

A—The insurance proceeds will be paid in one lump sum to his estate.

Q—I'm planning to sell my house and let the buyer assume my GI loan. In applying to VA for a release of liability, will there be any charges involved?

A—Yes. Either you or the proposed purchaser will have to pay for a credit report on the purchaser, as well as recording the Assumption Agreement and Release, if recording is necessary.

Q—Is on-the-farm training allowed for young men or women eligible for an education under the War Orphans school program?

A—No. The law limits War Orphans education to classroom studies only. Farm training would be prohibited.

Q—My GI term insurance policy lapsed a month ago because I forgot to pay my premium. Will I need a physical examination in order to reinstate it?

A—Not necessarily. You may reinstate within three months from the date of lapse without taking a physical examination, provided you are in good health as you were when the policy lapsed, and submit a signed statement to that effect to the VA.

Q—Part of my Korean Conflict military service was spent as a cadet at West Point. Does that time count toward my eligibility for Korean GI training?

A—No. Under the law, time spent as a cadet or midshipman in one of the Service academies may not count toward GI training eligibility.

Q—I am a "six-month enlistee," and I have just completed my active training duty. If I need VA hospital care, under what conditions could I get it?

A—For you to be eligible for VA hospitalization, you must have been discharged under the other-than-dishonorable conditions for a line-of-duty disability, or you must be receiving compensation for a service-connected disability.

Keep Marilyn in Bed a Few Days

How often mothers hear this advice when small children are slightly ill. It sounds easy, yet keeping a sick child in bed can be a trying experience. Three simple ideas may help.

Give Marilyn Something To Look At

Especially before she is well enough to want to do things for herself, she will watch for long periods—a bird feeding station on the outside window sill, gold fish in a bedside bowl, passing traffic seen from a window, pictures, her own art work, or designs made from buttons or yarn pinned to a sheet tacked on her wall.

Give Her Something to Hear

While over excitement is to be avoided, music is usually entertaining. Phonographs have the advantage of program suitability over the radio or TV, but all may be used sparingly. A comb covered with tissue paper will make music when she blows or hums through it; rattles, castanets, maracas, or harmonica are entertaining (and not too noisy). Marilyn may also enjoy [illegible] with thimble-[illegible] on a small [illegible] plastic [illegible]. [illegible] and guessing games are another realm of sound that will interest a sick child as "Name all of the words that rhyme with boy."

Give Her Something to Do

Quiet activities can be done on the surface of a cardboard carton turned upside down and with knee holes cut from the sides or on a card table with two legs folded so that the top rests on the bed and the other two legs on the floor. Pin pictures made by outlining a simple picture and punching around the outline are fun to hold up to the light. Children like paper-folding and cutting, with the prettiest designs later pasted on the sickroom windows. Bubble blowing adds variety. Pin wheels cut from a five inch square of heavy paper (cut diagonally from each corner to almost the center with the "points" fastened onto a clothespin at center with a strong pin) will turn gaily in the breeze from the window sill.

Keeping Marilyn in bed should merely add novelty to play which and child share regularly—because it could be uncomfortable revealing if Marilyn were to say, "I'll just stay sick, Mommy, because you play with me, then."

Vraa Pitches 2-Hitter to Win Over Lakers in Fourth of July Game

For eight and one-third innings on Thursday afternoon the Thieves' righthander, Loren (Sid) Vraa, had a no-hit no-run game on the score-board. With one man away in the top of the 9th inning, the Red Lake Falls Lakers' Curt Demarais looped a single into rightfield. Dennis Syvock forced Demarais at second base, on a second to short play. Don Majeres lofted a short fly which fell safely behind first base for a single. Earl LaChance bounced to third baseman Bob Hallameck, and was out, third to first, giving Vraa an 8 to 0 two-hit victory in a Northern Minny league game played as a county fair feature.

After two scoreless, and hitless, innings the Thieves clubbed southpaw Ernie Berry's delivery for four hits and six runs in the 3rd inning. Vraa opened with a walk; Ross Sloan was safe when center fielder Syvock gloved a line drive but failed to hold the ball; Frank Gunderman dropped a sacrifice bunt down the third-base line, and all hands were safe when Majeres fumbled the ball. Gene Sack sliced a ground-ball past third base, scoring Vraa and Sloan. Glen Carlson whiffed, but muscular Bobby Helgeland poled out a double, scoring Gunderman. Joey Poole strolled; Duane Glass popped to shortstop; Bob Hallameck beat out a hit to third base, scoring Sack; Vraa, up for the second time in the inning, singled over shortstop, scoring Helgeland and Poole, to give the Thieves a 6 to 0 lead.

The locals added a pair of runs to their total in the 7th inning off the left-handed slants of Dale Perusse. A walk to Vraa and singles by Sloan and Gunderman accounted for the two tallies.

Meanwhile, the Lakers were handcuffed by the fine pitching of Vraa. During the game, the Lakers were unable to move a runner beyond second base.

Although the Piggly Wiggly squad was outscored by Soo Line, 144 to 148, on a net-stroke basis in Wednesday evening's city golf league play, the grocerymen continued to hold down first place in the league standings. The Piggly Wiggly have a five-stroke margin over the Soo Line, who moved ahead of the Brooks Cheese team to take second place.

The Soo Line quartet of John Moum, Harry Ellefson, Ted Hellie, and Roger Nygaard, had the evening's low-net total. The individual scoring was as follows, with the gross and net: Moum, 41-36; Ellefson, 41-34; Hellie, 43-36; and Nygaard, 51-38.

The Piggly Wiggly squad carded the evening's second low net, with a 148, and that total was accomplished in this manner: Otis Wold, 49-36; Ken Liden, 50-37; Lloyd Bennes, 41-36; and Justus Larson, 45-39.

Roger Tunberg's Tunberg Motors team failed to have a four-man quorum in attendance, and consequently their team totals are incomplete.

Fosston Held to Five Hits by Hallemeck; Thieves Win 16 to 4

Bobby Hallameck, turning in a five-hit nine-strikeout performance, pitched Gene Sack's Thieves to a 16 to 4 win over Fosston in a Northern Minny league game played at Fosston on Sunday night. The win boosted the locals into second place by one-half game over the third place Fosston club.

On Wednesday night of this week, July 10th, the league-leading, and defending league champions, Bagley Merchants will meet the Thieves on the Fair Grounds diamond. Play ball time will be at 8:00 p.m. The game was originally slated for the Bagley diamond, but a switch in dates has been made, and the Thieves will play a return game at Bagley on July 28th.

Gene Sack gave the Thieves a 1 to 0 lead in the 1st inning of Sunday night's tilt when he blasted one of Dave Carlin's tosses over the left-field fence. Carlin was the first of three pitchers that Fosston used in an effort to stop the Thieves' offense, the others being righthanders Sonny Johnson and Stan Otness.

The locals added a two-run cluster in the 4th inning on a single by Bob Helgeland, a double by Curly Gasperlin, and a single by Joey Poole.

The Thieves totted up three runs in the 5th, on three walks and a pair of singles; and, after picking up a lone run in the 6th inning, the locals put together a pair of four-run innings, the 7th and 8th, to take a commanding lead.

Meanwhile young Hallameck was pitching superlative ball, giving up a single to Dave Norberg in the 3rd inning, but otherwise being hitless until the 6th inning. An error, plus singles by Wally Olson and Don Otness accounted for a Fosston tally in the 6th frame; and in the 8th inning, a two-hit outburst, capped by Stan Otness triple, plus a walk, an error, and an infield out, plated three Fosston runs.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Reminiscence

Lieut. Col. John Lindenmeyer and Mrs. Lindenmeyer were in town last week visiting with Mrs. Lindenmeyer's mother, brother, and sisters, and renewing acquaintances with old friends.

John will be remembered as being the athletic coach at the high school from 1939 through 1941, and again, following World War II service, from 1945 through 1947. Lindenmeyer is now stationed at the Air Force base in Montgomery, Alabama.

We had a long talk with Col. Lindenmeyer, and he wished to send greetings to all of his squad members. In his conversation, John stated that the game that lingered the freshest in his memory was that football game against the Moorhead Spuds in 1940.

That game, played one October night on the old Lincoln field, found the Spuds being rated as top-heavy favorites. Moorhead's powerhouse attack featured the plunging of their 265-pound fullback, Norm Erickson, and the all-round play of quarterback Alvie Lund. Against that veteran squad the Prowlers lined up with Babe Peterson and Don Olson at the ends, Orrin Pederson and Armand Pederson at the tackles, Bob Michalsky and Bob Wright at the guards, Doug Snelling at center, John Parbst at quarterback, Jim Ferguson and captain Tommy Carlisle at the halves, and LaRue (Andy) Anderson at fullback.

The Spuds held a 14 to 0 lead at the half, and a 14 to 12 advantage entering the fourth quarter; but in that hectic fourth period, hitting through the air, the Prowlers scored three touchdowns to defeat the Spuds, 32 to 14.

Other squad members that contributed to that "upset" victory were John Dablow, Don Berg, Luther Fjelstad, Eddie Flash, Irv Wilson, Roman Paulson, Jim LaFave, Orlin Gjernes, Dake Ayers, and Connie Geston.

John is right in ranking that game with the memorable Prowler football victories. In our football scorebook that game ranks with the Prowlers' 27 to 0 win over Bemidji in 1943 (when the Jacks had such performers as Bomber Brown and Phil Feir), and the Prowlers' 23 to 0 over the North Dakota state champion Grand Forks Central team in 1945.

Weren't They Fine?

Referring, of course, to the ball games that were played on the Fair Grounds diamond on Thursday and Friday. And sorry must be the fans who missed the two games.

On Thursday afternoon, in a senior baseball game, a Northern Minny league tilt, the Thieves defeated Red Lake Falls, 8 to 0. The score, and the victory, was incidental, for the excitement of the game was caused by Sid Vraa's bid for a no-hitter.

Sid the righthander, with a strong wind boosting his fast ball, pitched no-hit no-run ball for 8⅓ innings, and in that time the Lakers had lofted but four balls into the outfield, with center-fielder garnering a pair of fly balls, and right-fielder Bob Helgeland grabbing a pair of fly balls.

Came the 9th inning and, with one man out, Curt Demarais, a right-handed batter, blooped a hump-backed fly ball into rightfield; and, after Syvack had hit into a force play, Don Majeres looped a Texas Leaguer over second base for another hit. Plenty of credit must go to Sid for the effort he made.

But it was Friday night's Legion junior baseball game that produced the thrills. First, the strong Fertile team gained a 2 to 0 lead, and this lead held up until the 6th inning when Joe Poole's club scored five runs.

Those five runs appeared ample insurance for young Arlan Hjelle (Hjelle, incidentally, had pitched seven innings of baseball on Friday afternoon, hurling the local midgets to a 5 to 2 win over Crookston, and when starter Harlie Drees, on Friday night, came up with a troublesome elbow in the 2nd inning, Poole called on Hjelle for a relief job) as the righthander had been setting Fertile down in order.

But Fertile rallied for two runs, and had the tying run and go-ahead run on base, and Arlo Brunsberg at bat. At this point, Bob Hallameck came in from shortstop to pitch, relieving the obviously tired Hjelle. And against the most dangerous batter, a southpaw hitter, in Legion baseball in this district, Hallameck, with the poise of a professional, threw the ball past Brunsberg three times for a whiffing strikeout. It was a classic.

Miscellany

Marvin (Ninak) Carlson, a former Prowler athlete, attended the Fertile vs. Thief River Falls Legion junior baseball game on Friday night. Ninak renewed acquaintance with Fertile's coach, Chuck Johnson. The two were team-mates while attending Valley City Teachers College. Ninak played quarterback while Chuck was the fullback for the VC's.—The leading hitter on the Austin Packers baseball team of the fast Southern Minnesota loop is Jimmy Sack. Jim, who is an infielder, playing at shortstop or second base, is batting at a .429 clip. Jim is a younger brother of the Thieves' manager, Gene Sack.—It perhaps verges on the "believe it or not" to report that Mickey Hanson, who has played for the senior Thieves as a catcher and as a third baseman in Northern Minny league, is eligible to play "midget" ball, he's that young. In addition to playing with the "midgets" and the Thieves, Mickey also plays with Joey Poole's Legion juniors. — Did you notice that item that stated that Moorhead's fine Legion pitcher, southpaw Bill Korn, would perhaps pitch some ball games for Dick Siebert's Edina team? That's the Edina team that is being used as a "prep" club for the Gophers. Bemidji's Clark (Corky) Johnson is playing with Siebert's team this season. — Bob Hallameck will be spending a few days at Edina this week, and Minnesota's Dick Siebert will have an opportunity to look at the righthander's pitching assortment and style.

V.A. Explains Status of Patients Covered by Workers' Insurance

Non-service connected patients covered by workmen's compensation or other industrial accident insurance will be transferred from veterans administration hospitals when their condition warrants, the VA said today. Mr. W. B. Carroll, manager Fargo VA center, said no veterans will be transferred or discharged under the new policy until his entitlement to necessary treatment elsewhere at no expense to himself has been established clearly.

VA's 173 hospitals across the country have been directed to make the transfers or discharges from the hospital as soon after this entitlement has been established as possible without endangering the patient's "life or limb."

The order applies only to veterans without service-connected disabilities who are admitted to VA hospitals for treatment of occupational injuries or diseases incurred in or as the result of their employment. Since most veterans brought to VA hospitals for on-the-job injuries are emergency cases, the extent of industrial accident insurance coverage provided by the employer or by workmen's compensation statute or law usually cannot be determined until after admission, Mr. Carroll said.

These non-service-connected veterans are admitted to VA hospitals on their statement, under oath, that they are unable to defray costs of hospitalization elsewhere, he said.

In such cases, Mr. Carroll said, insurance or workmen's compensation coverage will be determined by correspondence between the hospital and the veteran's employer.

Mr. Carroll said if in these circumstances a veteran refuses to transfer, his file will be sent to VA central office in Washington for review and possible referral to the Department of Justice, which may prosecute.

Demonstrated New Silage Making Idea

A new idea in forage preservation—low moisture, baled grass silage—was unfolded before farmers attending the annual Station Day at the University experiment station at Rosemount Wednesday.

The system was explained by Rodney Briggs, University agronomist. He said the method will be extensively tested in the future, but there's little reason why it shouldn't be successful.

Rosemount station staff men showed how it works: They cut the hay, let it wilt until it contained about 40 percent moisture, then baled the hay without chopping it. They stacked the bales on one end of a large sheet of plastic, then pulled the loose end of the sheet over the stack and stapled it together so that the result was an air-tight bag of baled silage.

Low-moisture silage itself is known to be successful. But in the past, it's been stored only in glass-lined, airtight upright silos—which few farmers have. Briggs used the same principle, but baled the hay instead of chopping it and stored it in plastic bags, which have already worked out well for all kinds of silage.

Briggs said the system should simplify harvesting, eliminate most spoilage and make the silage easy to handle.

Farm Accident Death Rate is Declining

The death rate from farm work accidents in Minnesota is steadily declining.

In 1956, there were 52 fatalities from agricultural work accidents in the state—about 20 percent below the average for the past 10 years.

These figures come from Glenn Prickett, extension farm safety specialist at the University of Minnesota, who points to a recent report from the Minnesota Department of Health. Prickett reminds state residents of Farm Safety Week, July 21-27.

There were 57 farm work accident deaths in the state in 1955. Sixty people died from these accidents the year before and the toll was 73 in 1950. Average for the past 10 years was 65 deaths annually. From 1940-49, the annual average was 83.6 deaths from farm work accidents.

At the same time, tractors on Minnesota farms increased from 152,000 in 1945 to 255,000 in 1951. Combines jumped from 16,000 to 61,000 in the same period. No field choppers or field balers were listed in the Minnesota census at the end of World War II, but there were 15,000 choppers and some 25,000 balers in 1954.

These machines have made an increase in accident danger, Prickett points out. Yet, the number of deaths from machinery accidents has changed little from year to year. There were 27 farm machinery deaths in 1956, 28 in 1954 and 33 in 1950.

After a four-year decline, farm home accidents increased in 1955 and 1956, Prickett adds. Fatalities from these accidents totalled 94 in 1956, 81 in 1955, 63 in 1954, 77 in 1953, 78 in 1952, 99 in 1951 and 107 in 1950.

Air Conditioning for Cars Increasing

The demand for all-weather automobile air conditioning has soared 500 per cent over last year, according to L. F. Desmond, Dodge Vic President who added that sales of the units no longer are a seasonal matter.

In previous years, sales were confined almost exclusively to spring and summer months, Desmond said.

As major factors in the upsurge of customer demand for air conditioning units, Desmond cited lower price, introduction of a new combined heater and air conditioner, universal adaptability of air conditioning to all model cars, including convertibles, and the ever increasing desire for more automobile luxuries.

Making Progress

Encouraging progress is being made in correcting the gross inequities that had developed in tax valuations among the counties of the state. These differences had become a problem largely because they were a determining factor in the distribution of equalization aid to school districts. Districts with low valuations per pupil received proportionately more equalization aid, and this, of course, encouraged low appraisals of property values by local tax officials.

Several sessions ago the legislature made funds available to the tax department to conduct a survey of such inequities. A spot check clearly indicated the need for a thorough examination of the facts. The relationship between the assessor's estimated full and true value and the actual market value of property in each county was then established. As a result of this survey and continuing examinations, equalization aids are now adjusted according to a new formula based on these findings.

School districts in Pennington and Red Lake counties have benefited substantially by the new formula. Red Lake county was at the top of the list in the state in the relationship between the assessor's full and true and actual value in the 1955 ratings, the ratio being 52 percent. Pennington was in fourth place with a ratio of 47.5 percent. Marshall county placed sixteenth from the top with a ratio of 42.1 percent. The state average for 1955 was 35.8 percent. The low county was 16.9 percent.

Assuming the state average to be a fair ratio the low county was underassessed nearly 20 percent—and we were overassessed more than ten percent.

The figures for 1957 indicate that we are moving in the direction of greater equality in assessments thruout the state. The ratio in Red Lake county had dropped from 52 to 42.5 percent. Pennington dropped from 47.5 to 40, and Marshall from 42.1 to 35. In the meantime the state average had also lowered to 38.7 percent.

In this field we seem to be moving in the right direction.

Soil Bank Extended

It now appears quite certain that the soil bank program will be continued. We believe it deserves a fair trial, which it has not had up to now. Mistakes have been made, and some of them have been serious, but they have been due largely to inexperience and too limited a time for proper administration.

If the authority is extended there no doubt will be important changes in the regulations. Secretary Benson told a press conference last week that the department is considering several revisions that would correct abuses and unfair practices.

The soil bank theory makes sense because it would restore balance to supply and demand by taking land out of production. The government is now spending a million dollars a day for storage alone, and that is spending that does not benefit the producer.

Whether the program will prove to be as workable in actual operation as it is sound in theory can be determined only by experience. All evidence points to the probability that our production will have to be limited more and more to the needs of our own domestic market. The world market is going to become increasingly competitive and dumping in any form probably will be effectively discouraged.

The ultimate answer to the production problem probably will be the organization of marketing associations through which producers will be able to maintain fair prices by regulating sales. The pattern is already established by several successful organizations.

A Diminishing Need

The announcement that most of our military forces in Japan will be brought home was welcome news for Americans as well as for the Japanese. While the administration stated that this action is not intended as a first step in a withdrawal of American soldiers from all foreign bases, it should tend to reduce the anti-American feeling in other countries where our troops are stationed. And we can see no good reason why they should not all be brought back in the course of a few years.

When the United Nations exercised its police power by moving a task force into the Suez area it established a precedent for the handling of other explosive situations. It is significant that that assignment was carried out successfully without direct American participation.

Our present military outposts are maintained as defensive units for the union of free nations that is loosely organized to combat Communism. The United Nations, with communist nations included in its membership, could not take over these assignments for obvious reasons.

But with the United Nations now organized to control the brush fires, the need for our far-flung system of military outposts should rapidly diminish.

Safety Belts

A Cornell University committee on transportation safety, after studying the case histories of 5,000 accidents, has concluded that properly designed and installed seat belts will "increase a car occupant's chances of escaping injury in an accident by nearly 60 percent." No claim is made that a seat belt will make motoring foolproof or reduce deaths and injuries to zero. The studies do strengthen the argument that such gadgets will improve materially a motorist's chances of survival.

We can see no good reason for questioning these conclusions. It is reasonable to assume that safety belts in automobiles would save the lives of motorists just as water wings save the lives of many boaters and bathers. We suspect, however, that safety belts would be less effective than the Cornell report estimates mainly because, like the excellent equipment that is available to us to keep us from drowning, too often they would not be properly attached when the need for them suddenly occurred.

That of course is not an argument against either safety belts or water wings. What we need along with such safety appliances is greater awareness of the dangers to induce us to take reasonable precautions at all times.

Give Additional Safety

(St. Paul Pioneer Press)

The tragic boating accident in the Mississippi river near Hastings last Sunday points up a significant fact that should be remembered by all water sports enthusiasts. There are times when even good swimmers or experienced boatmen need life jackets.

Four persons drowned in the Hastings accident. They were pulled under by the fast current and heavy undertow of the river. Only one young girl survived—because she was wearing a life preserver.

For several years, there have been unsuccessful attempts in the Legislature to get a requirement into the small boat act that boats for hire must be equipped with life belts. It would give an added measure of safety even for those who can swim.

There will be more and more needless drownings unless some precautions are taken. Certainly a substantial number of the 38 persons who already have drowned this year would be alive today if they had that added measure of safety.

As the nation which boasts of the most bathtubs, soaps, sweepers, sprays, and cleansers—all of which supposedly earn for it the reputation of the "highest" standard of living—it is a must [illegible] something paradoxical about a society that preaches endlessly about emotional security and then sets such high standards of order and cleanliness in its homes that its children are literally forced right out of them to any place where there is some good constructive dirt and "goo," and no one to hover over them with "don'ts" or "ughs!"

It is just possible that our soap has been substituted for a real interest in children and their freedom to develop? Or that our bathtubs are not being used enough for water play (which includes splashing!)? Or that our cleansers are being used to spot clothes that are too nice to wear for play, anyway? Does our "highest" standard of living include serious evaluation of the feeling side of our children?

No one likes to live with needless dirt and disorder, which is demoralizing as too high standards. But there is constructive dirt and meaningful disorder which gives a home a lived-in look. Mr. Lane, a father often seen playing with his two sons once said, "We try to distinguish between the hum of industry and the noise of battle," and between "goo" and "ish," and then we get along fine. Not too scientific, perhaps, but quite a practical guide.

In a lived-in home which houses children, a visitor might see cut out stickers reflecting the season pasted on the windows, a roughly laid out flower bed with botchy [illegible] in a childish scrawl, a model airplane on the table, children's books alongside adult literature, a pair of skates by the door, a dish of gum drops, a torn doll dress in the mending basket [illegible] view that children live here, too."

4-H NEWS
— FROM YOUR —
Marilyn Balstad

Hello folks. Having been in your county for 2 weeks has been only the start of a very enjoyable experience for me, as your county 4-H Assistant. The hospitality you have shown me has been greatly appreciated. If you have any questions, please feel free to call or stop in at the office and I shall do my best to answer them for you.

Kabobs Are Good Eating Outdoors

Outdoor meals bring out the best in talent and ingredients—so it's little wonder they sharpen appetites, comments 4-H Club Assistant, Marilyn Balstad.

Four-H'ers and other young people who want to make a reputation for themselves as outdoor chefs might try kabobs as the main course for the next outdoor meal, Marilyn suggests.

On individual skewers or smooth green sticks thread chunks of pineapple and pimiento olives alternately between cubes of Swiss cheese and cubes of sliced baked ham. Swiss is a good cheese to use because it doesn't melt away over the open fire. For extra fine flavor, brush the olives and pineapple chunks with melted butter. Grill 5 to 10 minutes over coals, or until the kabobs are tender and a luscious brown color.

Another kabob combination calls for balls of seasoned ground beef centered with small chunks of sharp Cheddar cheese. Make the ball 1 to 1½ inches in diameter. If desired, wrap each ball with half a slice of bacon. Alternate the meat on the skewers with small onions, tomato wedges and mushroom caps. Grill the kabobs from 10 to 15 minutes, basting the vegetables with butter while grilling them. If you want the meat rare, slip the meat balls and vegetables close together on the skewer. Place them farther apart if you prefer the meat well done.

Before cooking the kabobs, start thinly sliced raw potatoes frying in butter in a skillet. They will take 20 to 30 minutes over a grill. They are luscious!

We are real proud of the fine showing that our 4-H club members made at the county fair last week. Keep up the good work! I would also like to express my appreciation and thanks for the fine cooperation you gave me during our Pennington County Fair.

Cool Water Safest for Fruit Stains with Most Fabrics

Boiling Water is Apt to Cause Damage. Treating Stains Immediately Best

Cool water may often be safer than boiling water for removing the fruit stains that are a perennial summertime problem.

It is true that laying stained fabric over a bowl, then pouring boiling water on the stain from above is a fast and effective way of getting rid of fruit stains, particularly on table linen, according to Athelene Scheid, extension clothing specialist at the University of Minnesota.

However, she reports that recent research shows that boiling water will damage some fabrics. Boiling water removes some special finishes on cotton, shrinks Dynel and some wools and may fade or affect the texture of silk.

Cool water may be used safely on any fabric that will not water spot. If the stain is mostly on the surface, you may be able to sponge it off with a damp cloth.

If the fabric is washable and will be going into the laundry anyway, soak it overnight in cool water. Work the stain between the hands to soften the fabric and loosen the fruit particles. After soaking, rub soap or synthetic detergent on the stain, wash it and then rinse thoroughly.

The sooner you treat the stain, the easier it is to remove. If possible apply water while the stain is still moist.

An angry man is Sylvester T. Bly,
Who today was sold a piece of "blue sky."
He'd stepped in a showroom—out of the rain,
Was sold a new car before he could explain!

How he hated the styling—so high and square
And in new features it was really bare.
"I got a real bargain—the buy of my life—
But how do I ever convince my own wife?"

Moral: You're paying for a new car...make sure you get one!

When you buy a new car, put your money on tomorrow—not yesterday. Swept-Wing Dodge actually obsoletes other cars in its field. Should you invest in high, boxy styling when Dodge offers the low, low look of tomorrow? Should you invest in outmoded coil springs when Dodge offers new Torsion-Aire Ride? Should you invest in an old-fashioned lever-type transmission when Dodge offers the ease of Push-Button Driving? In other things, too—engines, brakes, interiors—Dodge is years ahead. So put your money on tomorrow. See your Dodge dealer. Join the swing to the Swept-Wing Dodge!

Tips on How to Take Heat If Summer Comes

The combination of high temperatures and humidity means a certain amount of summer-time discomfort, but a bulletin from the Minnesota State Medical association gives a few tips to help you weather the hot days ahead.

Actually your body temperature seldom rises in the warm weather, provided you are free from disease or infection. When changing weather conditions cause the temperature outdoors to rise or fall, a small center in the brain, acting like a thermostat, turns loose the mechanisms that help the body maintain its normal temperature.

In this automatic adjustment to temperature changes, the evaporation of perspiration from the body surface aids in reducing heat; so if you perspire freely, you are more comfortable than those who do not.

Because heat is also produced by food, another hint is to cut down on the amount of food ingested, but not to point where an improper intake produces fatigue. If your body is improperly nourished, the "tired out" feeling cannot be attributed to the hot weather; you are just not getting enough fuel to keep your body machine functioning.

And watch your disposition. An outburst of temper can actually cause your body temperature to rise, and this heat is frequently slow in cooling.

It may not be easy, but the best advice is to stop complaining about the heat; at least it's finally here after months of complaining about the cold!

For A Slim-Dandy Barbecue Use Sauce Low in Calories

Who doesn't drool at the savory aroma and tangy flavor of the cook-out? It's part of summertime's finest fun.

And here's good news: weight watchers who haven't gotten to first baste with barbecue can stop sniffing their neighbors' smoke now and start cooking up their own storm.

Dieticians have come up with a low-calorie sauce which, brushed generously over lean meats such as chicken, will turn out barbecue guaranteed not to go to waist.

Saccharin gives it just that touch of needed sweetness, but without adding a single calorie. Although 400 times sweeter than sugar, it is calorie-free; can be used for any summertime sweetening to avoid heat-producing calories.

Barbecue Sauce

Mix in a quart saucepan:
1 saccharin tablet
(¼ grain)
3 Tbsp. cider vinegar
2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 Tbsp. grated onion
1½ tsp. finely cut garlic
3 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
¾ tsp. salt
½ cup water
¾ tsp. paprika
¼ cup tomato paste
⅓ tsp. chili powder
3 drops Tabasco sauce
1 Tbsp. bottled mustard

Cook and stir until mixture boils. Lower heat and cook five minutes longer. Use to barbecue lean pork chops, hamburgers, chicken and frankfurters. Makes about two cups. Calories in ¼ cup: 40.

Backyard Poison Ivy Is More Common

Most people think of poison ivy as a picnic hazard or something to watch out for during camping trips and summer outings in the woods and fields. Unfortunately, warns a bulletin from the Minnesota State Medical association, this three leaved menace can be a very near neighbor. It is turning up more and more frequently in backyard gardens and has been known to form a beautifully luxurious growth up the side of a house or apartment building.

Keep an eye out for the poison ivy bushy plant; both can be easily recognized by the glossy green leaves grouped in threes.

There are several chemicals and sprays which kill the ivy; these are most effective from May through July and in sunlight rather than shade. Follow the manufacturers' directions carefully. Several applications may be needed.

Burning may rid your yard of the dead ivy plants but stay out of the smoke as it can carry the oil to your skin. This oil from the ivy clings to anything that touches the plant. Remember to handle with caution anything that may have touched it—any tools, pets or clothing. Occasionally a case of poison ivy dermatitis comes from petting a dog which has brushed against the plant.

The rash caused by poison ivy is allergic; this means that one or more exposures to it may cause a reaction, but no one should count on permanent immunity. One of the best ways to remove the oil of the ivy from the skin is to wash immediately after exposure with a heavy lather of any good soap.

Alfalfa Winterkill Records Reported

At a University Rosemount Station Day program Wednesday Laddie J. Elling, University agronomist, told visitors that winter hardy alfalfa varieties showed up well during the 1956-57 winter in field plots. Last winter, he said, was one of the roughest in years and therefore put all alfalfa varieties through a severe test.

Where the alfalfa was properly managed—not clipped in the fall—Vernal winterkilled 12 percent, Narragansett 16 percent and Ranger 18 percent. University breeding stock winterkilled 14-15 percent. Dupuits and Lahonton, both less winter-hardy, winterkilled 53 and 75 percent respectively.

The tests also showed the importance of correct legume management, Elling explained. Where the alfalfa was clipped in September and again in November, only 10 percent of Ranger and 42 percent of the Vernal plants survived the winter.

Fall clipping, Elling said, is not recommended for newly-established alfalfa. All varieties in tests had been seeded in spring, 1956.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

THE STATE FLOWER

Minnesota was the second state in the Union to adopt a state flower. In 1893 the state legislature designated the wild lady-slipper as Minnesota's official state flower. Oklahoma, the first state to name such a flower, had selected the mistletoe.

A state flower was chosen at that time because a group of Minnesota women, who were preparing an exhibit of state products for the World's Fair at Chicago, decided they needed an official flower to decorate the display. Since the legislature was in session, the group petitioned for the adoption of the wild lady-slipper as the state flower. A resolution to this effect was introduced in February, 1893, naming "the wild lady-slipper or moccasin flower, Cypripedium calceolus."

Some years later it was discovered that this type of lady-slipper does not grow in Minnesota. As a result, during a special session of the legislature in 1902, a resolution was adopted that changed the state flower to the "pink and white lady-slipper or moccasin flower, Cypripedium reginae."

This wild flower is a rare member of the orchid family, the largest of all flower families. It usually grows in shady marshes and blooms in June and July. The first law protecting it was passed in 1925. The present law forbids picking or digging the state flower under penalty of a fifty-dollar fine.

MINNESOTA GOVERNORS

Minnesota has had twenty-nine governors since it became a state in 1858. The present chief executive, Orville L. Freeman, is the twenty-ninth. The first governor of the state was Henry H. Sibley, American Fur Company representative in the area, who had also served as Minnesota Territory's first delegate to Congress. The state's second governor, Alexander Ramsey, had also been the first governor of Minnesota Territory.

The first fifteen governors of the state were not born in Minnesota. The sixteenth, John A. Johnson, was the first chief executive to be born in the state. Of the first fifteen governors, two — Knute Nelson and John Lind — were born outside of the United States, Nelson in Norway and Lind in Sweden.

Four governors of the state were residents of St. Peter — Henry A. Swift, Horace Austin, A. R. McGill, and John A. Johnston. Five had their homes in St. Paul — Sibley, Ramsey, Cushman K. Davis, William R. Merriam, andJ. A. A. Burnquist — and Harold Stassen lived in South St. Paul. Six lived in Minneapolis — John S. Pillsbury, David M. Clough, J. A. O. Preus, Floyd B. Olson, Luther W. Youngdahl, and Governor Freeman — and a seventh, William R. Marshall, came from St. Anthony, now part of Minneapolis.

BATTLE OF KATHIO

The most crucial Indian battle in Minnesota history probably occurred about the middle of the eighteenth century on the west shore of Lake Mille Lacs. In its effect on the future of the Indian inhabitants of the state, it has been compared with the great battles of Thermopylae and Gettysburg, for it marked the turning point in the Chippewa struggle to push the Sioux out of their traditional lands in eastern Minnesota.

The first white man to visit Mille Lacs was Daniel Greysolon, sieur du Luht, who found the Sioux living there in 1679. He visited the three principal villages, the largest of which was Izatys, or Kathio, as it is erroneously but more generally known. The area was rich in fish and wild rice, and it was highly regarded by the Indians.

The Chippewa had carried on intermittent warfare against the Sioux for many years and, whether for revenge for some previous wrong or because they coveted the lovely Lake Mille Lacs, they attacked the Sioux villages there about 1750. After a brave defense of the first village, the Sioux retreated to the earthen lodges at Kathio. The Chippewa won the battle by climbing upon the lodges and dropping gun powder through the smoke holes. When the powder exploded in the lodge fires, it killed most of the Sioux within.

The remnants of the defeated Sioux fled from the Mille Lacs area under cover of night, eventually reaching the Mississippi River which they followed southward. When soldiers arrived in 1819 to build Fort Snelling, they found the Sioux living in the Mississippi and Minnesota river valleys of southern Minnesota. They were especially concentrated in the area around present-day Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Gas Lights

On September 19, 1857, the "streets of St. Paul were lighted with gas for the first time," according to a contemporary diary in the collections of the Minnesota Historical Society. The diary was kept by Chandler Adams, a native of Massachusetts, who came to Minnesota in search of a healthful climate. In St. Paul he was employed as a surveyor, and later he taught school at Champlin in Hennepin County. Adams wrote that "It was very pleasant walking up Seventh St. to see the lights, here and there, upon the right and left, shedding their bright beams around." He added that "It was very cloudy and dark tonight and the streets appear to good advantage."

NAMES FROM EGYPT

At least four place names in Minnesota are of Egyptian origin. Darfur, a village in Watonwan county, was named for a province of Egypt. Cairo township in Renville county and the well-known Douglass county resort center, Alexandria, perpetuate the names of ancient cities of Egypt.

The mining village of Soudan and its mine of the same name on the Vermilion iron range were named by D. H. Bacon, first general manager of the mine, for the Soudan area of Egypt. Bacon said that he selected the name "Soudan" because of the great contrast between northern Minnesota's cold winters and the Egyptian desert's searing heat.

Tourists A Hundred Years Ago

Minnesota's tourist business is well over a hundred years old. George Catlin, the famous painter of American Indian life, who visited Fort Snelling in 1835, is credited with suggesting a "Fashionable Tour," a trip by steamer up the Mississippi from Rock Island or Galena to the Falls of St. Anthony. The idea caught on quickly, and in the next twenty-five years a stream of visitors made the novel pilgrimage up the river to Minnesota.

Travel in that period was limited to steamboats and stagecoaches, so tourists did not range over much of what is now Minnesota. Before the Civil War the Falls of St. Anthony at Minneapolis were the chief tourist attraction in the Minnesota country. Minnehaha Falls, also now in Minneapolis, ranked second and Fort Snelling was third in capturing the tourists' attention. Stages met the excursion boats and took tourists overland to see these scenic attractions.

In 1854 the strong appeal of the upper Mississippi country was demonstrated when approximately a thousand members of the Rock Island excursion, celebrating the completion of the first railroad to reach the Mississippi, arrived at the St. Paul levee in a flotilla of steamboats. "No sooner had the boats landed," reported the "St. Anthony Express" of June 10, 1854, "than every vehicle of every kind, description, shape or age . . . was at once seized by the impatient crowd, anxious to visit the great points of interest and attraction, the Falls, Minnehaha, and the Fort."

The Cardiff Giant

The Cardiff Giant, one of the most famous hoaxes of the nineteenth century, once visited Minnesota. On June 26, 1871, P. A. Older's Museum Circus and Menagerie came to Stillwater. Among the many curiosities of the "Instructive Museum and Gigantic Menagerie" and sharing usual billing with the "Living Horned Horse" and a "Wild, Uncouth Sea Cow," was none other than the Cardiff Giant.

According to the "Stillwater Messenger," it was the "identical petrification which caused so much journalistic speculation at the time of its discovery — Come and see it," the paper advised, "and judge for yourself what it is."

A large stone statue over ten feet in height and weighing 2,990 pounds, the Giant was "discovered" on a farm near Cardiff, New York in 1869. Carved in Iowa, the statue was shipped to New York, where it was buried in 1868 and dug up by prearrangement a year later.

Many people believed it to be a petrified man, a giant who once inhabited the region. Although the Giant was a highly profitable practical joke perpetrated by a man named George Hull, it was the talk of the country from October to December, 1869, when Hull revealed that it was a fake. It is now preserved in the collections of the New York Historical Association.

Old-Fashioned Huckster

Advertising copy seems to have changed surprisingly little over the years. The following ad for Fuller Brothers' general store in St. Paul appeared in the first issue of the first newspaper printed in Minnesota, the "Minnesota Pioneer" of April 18, 1849.

It read: "Examine if you please, Ladies and Gentlemen, the prime staple and firm texture of these woolen goods! Here is a 'jam up' article of sheep's gray, for pantaloons;—of if you want something finer, look at this Kerseymere. Here are Santenetts which are warranted to wear like buckskin, and which we could sell for all wool, if we were not too honest.

"My dear sir, if you want a FASHIONABLE CAP, there is the article for you! And do not forget to bring your wife and daughter in with you next time; we engage to show them something they have not seen, in the way of cheap and FASHIONABLE DRESSES, of some new styles, for which names are not yet invented."

Names From Ireland

Many place names reminiscent of the "Emerald Isle" may be found on the map of Minnesota.

The villages of Lismore in Nobles county, Avoca in Murray county, and Cashel and Clontarf in Swift county are all named for villages in Ireland. Lismore in Ireland's County Waterford is distinguished for its unusually beautiful old castle; the valley of the river Avoca in Ireland was celebrated by Thomas Moore in one of his poems at "the sweet Vale of Avoca"; Cashel is an ancient city in Tipperary; and Clontarf is a popular seaside resort near Dublin.

Croke township in Traverse county was named for Thomas W. Croke, Catholic bishop of Australia from 1870 to 1874 and later archbishop of Cashel, Ireland, who was generous in helping many Irish settlers to go to Minnesota.

Parnell township in Traverse county was named in 1881 for Charles S. Parnell, a prominent Irish statesman, who visited the United States in 1879 and 1880.

Erin township in Rice county, Dublin, Kildare and Tara townships in Swift county, and Derrynane township in Le Sueur county are among the many places in Minnesota whose lilting and musical names betray their Irish origins.

A Mild Summer Beverage

The following humorous recipe for "a mild summer beverage" appeared in the "St. Paul Pioneer and Democrat" of July 18, 1860: "Take one pint of whiskey; add one pint of whiskey and beat well with spoon." If this did not suit the reader's palate, the editor suggested: "Flavor with whiskey to suit your taste." Then he advised that the reader take "a gallon of water and have a servant carry it away beyond your reach."

If this drink was not entirely consumed at one sitting, the editor recommended that the leftover portion be preserved by adding "sufficient spirit to prevent souring."

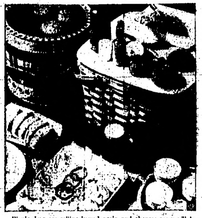
Cold Cuts Cater to Summer Menus

Who could get through a sizzling summer without the help of cold cuts? There are more than a hundred to choose from, such as the cervelat, salami, souse, tongue, ham, bologna and liver sausage in the picture. So good to choose from for sandwiches or for serving with traditional potato salad. And no fussing over a hot stove when cold cuts serve as the main dish. Like the meats you cook at home, cold cuts have complete high quality protein that is the mainstay of a meal. They are nourishing and attractive, and good appetite coaxers in hot weather.

For a quick and cooling snack or summer meal, an assortment of cold cuts makes it easy to cater to everyone's fancy. And plan to add some new cold cuts to your repertoire. Try some of the sausage group you may not have had before such as Thuringer or Goteborg. You'll like new "shapes" in sausage, too, such as liver sausage in loaf form rather than the familiar round sausage. The loaf form makes just the right shape slices for sandwiches.

Perk up menus too with some of the meat loaves that vary from one section of the country to another, and are so delicious in every form. There are many different kinds of salami that you will find worth trying, including the famous Genoa salami which is air-dried and made with pork. Pepperoni is an air-dried sausage without garlic which is also popular.

Tabasco Sparks Picnic Fare



Picnic days are rolling 'round again and chances are you'll be looking for new ways to pep up the traditional hamburger. For tops in enjoyment, add just the right amount of Tabasco, the famous liquid pepper seasoning from down south, to the ground meat before you grill it.

Another hint for giving a new look to this year's picnic is by adding spark to your potato salad. Here again, Tabasco does the trick. The piquant flavor of this red pepper seasoning adds new interest to an old favorite. In fact, you'll want to use Tabasco in many other picnic favorites this year for happier eating.

Picnic Potato Salad

2 pound potatoes (6 cups diced)	⅔ cup mayonnaise
1 small onion, chopped	1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1½ cups diced celery	1 tablespoon vinegar
1½ teaspoons salt	½ teaspoon Tabasco

Cook potatoes in skins until tender. Peel and dice. Add onion and celery; sprinkle with salt. Mix together mayonnaise, mustard, vinegar and Tabasco. Add to potato mixture. Mix lightly with a fork being careful not to break potatoes, chill. To serve, garnish with salad greens and tomato wedges. YIELD: 8 servings.

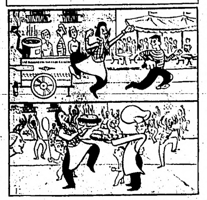
DOG ON THE RUN—SAVED BY A BUN



For over a half century, the perfect complement to any picnic has been the hot dog on a bun. Thus the fact that July is coincidentally both Picnic Month and National Hot Dog Month smacks of poetic justice.

Although the ways to serve the hot dog are infinite, its natural habitat seems to be within the crunchy confines of the hot dog roll. Smothered in mustard, catsup or relish, the hot dog on a bun has become not only our national food favorite but a goodwill ambassador throughout the world.

Dog Meets Bun

The historic marriage of the hot dog and the bun is a colorful slice of our cultural history. One popular account traces this gastronomic milestone to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis in 1904. The idea is said to have been the collective inspiration of two erstwhile entrepeneurial giants known today only as Sigmund and Otto.

Sigmund was a vendor of hot food specialties at the Exposition. He was doing a land office business peddling his roasted sausages, but it proved to be a losing proposition. It seems that the savory dogs came off the stove so hot that Sig served them to his customers on a fork. The pleased patrons were wandering off nibbling the dogs on the forks with disastrous efforts on poor Sigmund's silverware bill.

Dog in a Glove

In order to protect his customer's fingers from the steaming sausages, Sig decided to distribute white gloves with which to handle them. Unfortunately, the gloves began to go the way of the forks with similarly catastrophic effects on Sigmund's profit picture.

At this point, enter Otto with an idea of mutual profit to them both—and to the bakers of America for future generations. The idea of course was to tailor a bun that would provide a delicious wrapper for the hot dog.

This widely circulated history has its critics however. One A. M. White of Eatontown, New Jersey, says that the hot dog on a bun was served commercially as early as 1886. He claims that he and a partner sold fancy fruits, soft drinks, cigars, salt water taffy and hot dogs on buns. According to White, hot dogs had been popular favorites at Asbury Park, New Jersey, since 1876, and it was natural that hot dogs on buns should have been introduced there with success two decades later.

School Bonds Sold at 4.624% Interest Rate

Officers Reelected at Organization Meeting Held Monday

The last batch of bonds authorized by the voters to carry through the present school expansion program were sold at the regular meeting of the school board Monday evening at a considerably higher interest rate than had been obtained for the earlier issues. The average rate that will be paid on this issue of $300,000 is 4.624 percent.

J. M. Wain & Co. of Minneapolis was the successful bidder. There were two other bids, one from a group of Twin Cities banks calling for a rate of 4.815 percent and the other from Juran & Moody at 4.706 percent. The bonds are payable starting in [illegible] and continuing through [illegible]. Bonds due in 1973 and later are callable in 1968.

The first sale of the authorized issue was on May 1, 1956, when a $500,000 lot was sold at an interest rate of 3.247 percent. On January 1 of this year a $400,000 lot was sold at an interest rate of 3.8638 per cent.

The Monday session was the first meeting of the new board. All of the officers were re-elected, Dr. Milton D. Starekow, president; Elmer Bratsch, vice president; Arnold Pearson, clerk, and William Thompson, treasurer.

The application of Gladys Paulson of Badger to fill the vacancy as Grade 4 teacher at Knox was approved. There now are two unfilled positions on the teaching staff.

A request by a representative of the employee's union for a three week vacation for custodians with ten or more years of service was denied.

Meet at Warren to Consider Expanded Library Service

Local library officials and members of the Pennington county board will meet at Warren tonight with representatives of other communities in Northwestern Minnesota to consider a program of expanded library service in this area. Hannis Smith of the library division of the state department of education will be present to explain the purposes of the federal library service act and the federal and state funds that have been made available to encourage the program.

The program would require sponsorship on an area basis with a share of the costs being distributed among participating counties. A service would be provided for the smaller communities from whatever central points would be established.

St. Hilaire Farmers Harvest Hospitalized Neighbor's Hay Crop

4-H Assistant

Filling a summer position as 4-H Club assistant is Marilyn Balstad, Fosston, Minn. Miss Balstad, is a junior at the University of Minnesota majoring in Home-Economics.

The future looked pretty uncertain for farmer Dan Johnson last week. Dan didn't mind being in the hospital for ten days with a stomach condition . . . a hospital is a pretty nice place to be when you're sick. And Dan was sick. Very sick. But Dan's a farmer. And he was worried about the hay that needed cutting on his farm east of St. Hilaire. As Mrs. Johnson said, "we didn't know what to do."

But Dan's neighbors knew what to do. Last Monday while Dan was still in the hospital, they went to work on his hay crop.

They mowed Monday; Tuesday they raked. And when Dan returned home Wednesday, they were busy baling his 23 acre hay harvest.

Dan was in the field yesterday. He talked to the men and watched his hay stack grow larger with each load. And, according to Dan, "it's a good harvest." Dan's wife too, was in the field. She was busy handing out coffee, ice-water, cake and sandwiches.

The Johnson's were two happy and grateful people yesterday. All because a few people took time of to be neigborly.

And what has Dan to say about the whole thing: "Isn't it wonderful to have such neighbors."

Marshall Board Acted on Several Drainage Matters

Drainage problems occupied much of the time of the Marshall county board during the three day session that ended yesterday, according to Sofus Bjertness, of Grygla, fifth district representative.

Acting on petitions filed by property owners on county ditches 20 and 27 the board authorized preliminary surveys to determine the probable cost of the proposed repair work. Ditch 20 serves as an outlet for ditch 27, both draining the south tier of townships.

Following a final hearing on a repair project for county ditch 25, west of Mud lake, it was decided to authorize the improvement and bids will be opened at a meeting to be held August 12. Estimated cost is about $19,000, Mr. Bjertness states.

Commenting on the storm damage in the Warren area he said the damage to crops and property are tremendous. Many fields are a 100 percent loss. In the court house 48 windows were knocked out, and the roof was damaged.

Much Interest Shown in Night School Courses

Many inquiries are being received about possible night school courses in adult education, according to Stanley Nelson, director of the Area Vocation school. There evidently will be a strong demand for advanced training in various phases of office work, he says. These inquiries are being classified and an effort will be made to arrange a schedule of classes that will provide the kind of training most in demand.

There is a possibility that a course in auto body and fender repair will be provided, Mr. Nelson states. There seems to be a special need for training in this field he said.

Actual enrollment in some of the regular day school courses has already started and for one of the courses more applications have been received than can be accepted. The door is not being closed as yet, however, and all applications will be carefully screened before any rejections are decided upon.

Hot and Humid Through Friday Says Weatherman

Man the sprinklers! Turn on the fans! The weatherman has decreed, hot, humid weather again for today and Friday so the Tindolph Park pool will again be the most popular place in town, as it was yesterday, when the temperature soared to a muggy 89.

Since Monday the high temperatures, with the exception of Wednesday, have been in the pleasant seventies and the low temperatures ranged from 50 Tuesday to a sticky 67 Thursday.

Only .04 inch of rain has fallen during the period, despite the high humidity.

The forecast is for hot and humid weather through Friday with a chance of local thundershowers in the afternoons. High temperatures will be 95-98 and lows will range from 70-75.

Bond Purchase Encouraged at Soo Line Meeting

Employees Urged to Use Payroll Deduction Plan in Buying Securities

Soo Line officials and representatives of employees of the Winnipeg Division met at the Elks Club rooms yesterday afternoon to discuss a program for encouraging more general participation in the purchase of government bonds on the payroll deduction plan. Representing the government at the meeting was William Fisher, Minnesota deputy director of the savings bond division of the U. S. Treasury department and Harold Wheller and Horace Whitman of the North Dakota organization.

Heading the list of Soo Line officials present at the meeting was J. D. Bond, general manager. Others from the Minneapolis office were J. W. Lydon, advertising manager and editor of the Sooliner, a company publication, and R. W. Schultz, supervisor of safety.

These People Took The Time To Be Neighborly

When Dan Johnson returned from the hospital Wednesday and found his neighbors busy harvesting his 23-acre hay crop, all he could say was, "Isn't it wonderful to have such neighbors." Some of the people present when the picture was taken were: Alfred Rasmussen, Roy Walseth, Thorsten Walseth and son Robert; Robert Peterson, Axel Johnson and son Glenn; Horace Dalager, Ernest Erickson, Charles Hasnedl, Birdean Anderson, Nancy Hedlunk, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Johnson.

Board Adopts New Highway Designations

Ditch Contract is Let; Dispose of Routine Matters

Pennington County's new system of highways, reorganized in conformity with the laws passed as the result of the adoption of the amendment to the constitution changing state highway fund distribution, was officially approved by the county board at its July meeting Monday.

This system consists of about 255 miles of state aid roads that will be eligible for state funds, and 400 miles of county roads to be supported mainly by local levies. The state aid roads include all of the 100 miles of federal aid secondary roads in the county and it is expected that all of the roads in this system will be made a part of the FAS.

Under the new system of numbering the state aid roads the east-west roads will start with No. 1 at the Red Lake county line and progress northward to a No. 9 designation. The north-south roads will start with the ridge road in the west end of the county being designated as No. 10 and progress eastward to the most easterly which will be No. 28.

The repair of about 4½ miles of ditch No. 35 in Silverton and Smiley townships was let to William Clark of Stephen with a low bid of $5,841. The high bid was $7,298.94. Four quarters of land that were a part of the ditch No. 18 system were set off from the ditch No. 35 system.

Bids were opened and a contract awarded for a program of gravelling thruout the county, the low bidder being the Mahnomen Construction Co. of Mahnomen with a figure of $12,950. The engineer's estimate had been $12,880. A contract was awarded to the Western Oil & Fuel Company of this city for fuel oil for the court house, the low bid being 11.89 cents per gallon.

An appropriation of $1,288 for the Oakland Park Nursing Home was authorized. This was the county's share of the cost of certain capital improvements that had been made, the main item being a water softener system. Herman Kjos was reappointed to membership on the board of the Sunnyrest Sanatorium at Crookston for a term of three years.

The dissolution of a small area in joint school district No. 124 in Polk Center township was authorized and this area will now become a part of the Red Lake Falls district.

A meeting as the county board of equalization was postponed from the regularly scheduled date of July 15 to August 8.

Several delegations from various parts of the county appeared before the board on drainage matters. The board voted to attend a meeting on flood problems to be held at Oklee July 17.

Drainage Relief Meeting Called

A drainage relief meeting for Star and Riener townships has been called by Albert Kotrba to be held in the schoolhouse of District 59 Tuesday evening July 16. The meeting is called for 9:00 o'clock and all interested parties are invited to attend.

Senator Humphrey Calls Flood Meeting at Oklee

Eight Northwestern Minnesota Counties Invited to Attend

Word was received yesterday by Omar Sundrud, editor of the Oklee Herald, that Senator Hubert Humphrey had called a meeting to be held at Oklee Wednesday evening, July 17, to consider flood problems in eight counties of Northwestern Minnesota. The meeting will be held at the Oklee school auditorium starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Counties named in the message relayed to Mr. Sundrud by representative Ben Wichterman of Plummer, from St. Paul, included Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Kittson, Roseau, Beltrami, Clearwater and Polk. Four of these counties, Clearwater, Polk, Red Lake and Pennington, had previously been declared by President Eisenhower to be a disaster area. Mr. Sundrud stated that Senator Humphrey would not attend the meeting in person but probably would be represented by his administrative assistant William Connell.

Announcement of the meeting had been made previously, the members of the Pennington county board having voted at their Monday session to attend. It is presumed that this is a follow-up of the meeting that was held at Gully on Friday evening of last week.

In the meantime the disaster story has shifted from flood damage to destruction of crops by hail. The Warren Sheaf, after a check on the results of the storm that swept across western Marshall county Saturday night estimates the crop losses in that area at two million dollars. It [illegible] that 400 cars suffered hail damage and damage to other property was extensive.

The Middle River Record reports extensive damage from wind and hail Saturday night, crop losses ranging from 50 to 100 percent in some spots. It states that a small twister struck the Arthur C. Olson home south of Newfolden Sunday morning, completely demolishing two sheds and lifted a third building off its foundation.

Closer to home three townships Bray, Polk Centre and Black River, in southwest Pennington county bore the brunt of the hail-storm which dumped destruction over a wide area the past weekend, according to Pennington County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk. This storm moved southwest into Red Lake county and damage was heavy in the Red Lake Falls community.

Stelmaschuk reported damage up to 75 percent was caused by hail, although the amount of damage varied from field to field and was spotted throughout the three affected townships. It was a heavy blow to farmers in the area because it added to losses already suffered from excessive moisture there.

Goodridge and Reiner townships, hard-hit by the excess moisture that fell in June, received unwanted rain and some hail over the weekend.

Giving Life Insurance To Youngsters

Quentin Jones, director of Tindolph park, helps these Goodridge children get acquainted with the water. Swimming lessons at Tindolph are adapted to each childs degree of swimming proficiency. Small groups and personal attention make learning a pleasure.

Quentin Jones firmly believes, that the best way to insure your children from drowning is to teach them to swim. And that's what the people at Tindolph would like to do, providing parents send their children to them.

Swimming Classes at Tindolph Pool Are Well Attended

They're giving away "life insurance" at Tindolph park this month in the form of swimming lessons.

Quentin Jones, head of waterfront activities, firmly advocates, that "the best way to insure your child against drowning is to teach him how to swim." And that's just what Jones and his staff would like to do.

Although swimming conditions have been far from perfect, Jones and his two instructors have handed out "swimming insurance" to 150 Pennington county children. Swimming conditions are now much better, Jones reports, the current is back to normal and the water is a clear 65 to 70 degrees.

Parents interested in having their children learn to swim may send them to Tindolph park any day of the week, except Saturday and Sunday, from 9 a.m. to noon. Jones would prefer that younger children (under 7 years) show up for their lessons around 10 a.m.

Special classes are arranged for out-of-town children with St. Hilaire scheduled for Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and Goodridge Tuesday, and Thursday. Jones stated that all children may, however, participate on any day. Lessons are not arranged in series. Children who show up are assigned to classes adapted to their degree of swimming proficiency. To facilitate learning children are asked to come at least three times each week.

Each day at 10 a.m., Beverly Wegge, Red Cross swimming instructor, teaches a class for intermediate and advanced girls. Girl Scouts can take advantage of this class to fulfill their merit badge qualifications.

All youths over 12 years interested in receiving the necessary instructions to qualify for junior and senior life saving certificates should contact lifeguards Beverly Wegge or Phil Beadle as soon as possible. With the swimming program scheduled for the remainder of July only, plans are being arranged to conduct an extensive five day week course in lifesaving techniques.

The course will run Monday through Friday from 2 to 4 p.m. and will consist of 15 hours of classwork plus, practical training in water safety measures.

For all who can swim already, or for those who just want to cool off in the shallow water the water-front will be open under supervision each day for the remainder of the month form 9 a.m. till 9 p.m.

The local program is broken down into 22 departments and steps are now being taken to organize an effective telephone warning system. He spoke briefly of the local responsibility in the national alert exercise that will be conducted Friday.

Christmas Starts in July in Viking

Santa Makes Annual Gift Bearing Trip in Reverse

To people of all ages the month of December is associated with the singing of Christmas carols and the giving of gifts in the Christian spirit. To the youngsters Christmas is that time when Santa with his sleigh loaded down with toys, begins his long trip from the North Pole.

But in the community of Viking, Christmas comes a little early each year and they turn the Santa story around a little bit.

To some of the small-fry in far off Alaska, Santa, is an organization called the Lutheran Daughters of the Reformation (LDR), and each year in the month of July he—whatever small Alaskian children call Santa—loads his sled in Viking, Minn. to begin his long trip to Alaska; arriving Christmas morning loaded down with lots of new toys.

A new switch to an old story, all because each July members of the LDR in Viking hold a Christmas party for the children in Alaska.

Families in the community are asked to give donations, which are sent to a central office of the LDR. With this money gifts are purchased and sent to Alaska.

Last week the Viking LDR held their annual Christmas party. In the traditional yuletide fashion they opened their meeting singing "Silent Night" and "Joy to the World". Readings were given by Lois Thompson and Eileen Carlson, and the Rev. Weltzin showed films.

After the meeting closed with the singing of the appropriate "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" lunch was served by Mrs. Hjalmer Stokke.

Haying Operations Are Late But Good Progress is Made

The improved weather the past week has permitted farmers to get at haying operations, which had been set back considerably by the rains and flooded fields, County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk reports. Hay of good quality has been reported being taken where it has been possible to get at it. Weather remains a delaying factor.

Meanwhile, those crops not badly effected by hail or excessive moisture have made excellent progress during the past week, Stelmaschuk reported. Some fields have severe weed infestations because it was impossible to get into them with ground sprayers and aerial sprayers had such a large backlog as to prevent their filling all orders.

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Picnic

Gravel from Halma Pit for N. Dak. Air Base Starts to Roll

"Operation Gravel" got under way on the Soo Line Friday when cars started rolling from the Halma pit on their way to Grand Forks where the washed gravel will be used in the laying of the air force base now under construction. Ed Hamerski, division superintendent, says that by the end of the week he expects to be moving about forty carloads a day and that this will mean employment for two extra train crews.

The cars are moved from Halma to Forest River, North Dakota, by Soo Line and at that point are transferred to the Northern Pacific. The trip will be made daily, hauling loaded cars one way and empties back.

The operation is expected to continue through the summer. There are five paving machines now at the airport and two more will be added. The runways have been excavated to a depth of six feet. They will be back filled with granular material obtained in North Dakota pits. All of the washed gravel for the 18 inches thick top slab will come from Halma.

The washing and loading operation at the pit one mile north of Halma is handled by the Hallet Construction Company. They are equipped to load three cars an hour.

Chief Reminds Fishers of Net Regulations

New regulations governing the tagging and possession of nets are still not well known by some fishermen, points out Francis W. Johnson, chief warden, Minnesota game and fish division.

Johnson called attention to the new Commissioner's Order 1473 which provides, "it shall be unlawful to possess any fish net, except minnow nets not more than 25 feet in length and four feet in depth, landing nets, dip nets, or nets held in stock for sale by dealers, unless there is attached a metal tag bearing the name and address of the operator when the net is in use. Such tag shall be of metal material and shall be of a minimum size of two and one-half inches by five-eights inch and shall be provided by the owner or operator of such nets."

Johnson also reminded fishermen that nets do not need the twenty-five cent net tag. This requirement was abolished by the 1957 legislature.

The metal tags shall be attached to the net as follows: net-on the top rope of the back side of the pound or crib; Fyke Net-on the top side of the end hoop opposite the lead; Hoop net-on the top side of an end hoop; Seine-on one end of float line near first float; Gill net-on one end of float line near first float.

Crafty Escape Plan Good But Didn't Work

Floyd T. Odom, Edorado, Arkansas, was tagged out in a game of hide-and-go-seek with police here early Friday morning.

He was leading local police in a hot chase out of town on E. 3rd. St. about 2:30 a.m. and as he approached the city outskirts he suddenly switched off his lights, swung into the T-59 Motel driveway and started to drive around the southeast corner of the building, planning to completely circle it, and give his pursuers the slip.

Odom's plan might have worked out but a car meeting him from the south not only was a highway patrol vehicle but the patrolman appraised the situation at a glance and followed Odom around the motel.

The city police meanwhile, were close enough to recognize the patrol car following Odom so headed around the building in the opposite direction.

According to police here Odom was more than flabbergasted at this turn of events, and abandoned the flight.

City police booked him for speeding and the highway patrol charged him with careless driving, on which he forfeited bonds totalling $45 and left the city in much less hurry.

In the city police car were officers Don Olson and Benny Miramontes. Driver of the highway patrol car was Mitchell Johnson.

The Art of Sliding

Down at Tindolph they refer to this part of the swimming lessons as "sliding." Translated into laymans language, it means a gentle head-first dive into the water. It's half-way between a belly-flop and a "dunk."

Well, call it what you'like, it's designed to help the youngsters overcome any fear they may have of the water. Here Quentin Jones, Tindolph instructor, gies a little advice to, left, Diane Borgen, and, Karen Noper, city.

NOTICE OF BOND SALE
$185,000 ELECTRIC PLANT REVENUE BONDS
City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota

NOTICE is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, will meet at the Council Chambers in the City Hall in said city on Tuesday, the 23rd day of July, 1957, at 7:30 o'clock P.M., Central Daylight Saving Time, for the purpose of receiving and considering sealed bids for the purchase of $185,000 Electric Plant Revenue Bonds of the city dated July 1, 1957, said bonds to be in the denomination of $1,000 each, to bear interest at the rate or rates designated by the successful bidder, payable January 1, 1958, and semiannually thereafter on January 1 and July 1 in each year, and to mature serially on July 1 in the years and amounts as follows: $15,000 in 1960 and $10,000 in 1961 to 1977, both inclusive, all bonds maturing on July 1, 1971 and thereafter subject to redemption in inverse numerical order on January 1, 1968 and any interest payment date thereafter at a premium of 3% if redeemed on or prior to July 1, 1968, [illegible] if redeemed January 1, 1967 or thereafter to and including July 1, 1970, and at par if redeemed January 1, 1971 or thereafter.

The bonds are issued to pay for improvements to the electric plant and system and are payable solely from revenues of the system. The city council has adopted resolutions providing for the issuance of bonds and prescribing customary terms and provisions for their repayment.

The bonds will be made at any suitable bank designated by the purchaser. The city will furnish printed bonds and approving legal opinion of Messrs. Faegre & Benson, Minneapolis, Minnesota, both without expense to the purchaser. Delivery will be made at the purchaser's office within forty days after the date of sale, accompanied by legal opinion and customary closing proofs, including a certificate as to the absence of litigation affecting said bonds.

All bids must be submitted in writing enclosed in a sealed envelope, accompanied by a certified check, cashier's check or bank draft, payable to the order of the city, in the amount of at least $3,700, to be forfeited as liquidated damages in event the bid is accepted and the bidder fails to comply therewith.

Split rate bids may be submitted stating the same rate or rates of interest from the date of issue to maturity for all bonds having a common maturity date and not more than four such rates (in integral multiples of one-quarter or one-tenth of one per cent) for the issue and the maturities of the bonds split not more than four ways for the purpose of designation of such rates, provided that any such bid may also provide that all or some of the bonds shall bear a higher interest rate with two sets of interest coupons for any interest period or periods of the term of the bonds. The bid offering the lowest net interest cost (total interest from date of issue to stated maturities, less any premium offered) will be deemed the most favorable. No bid for less than par plus accrued interest from date of issue to date of bond delivery will be considered. Oral auction bids will not be received. The right to waive any informality and the right to reject any and all bids are reserved.

Thieves Slug Bagley 12 to 3 with 15 Hits; Vraa Allows Only 5

Supporting righthander Sid Vraa's five-hit pitching with a fifteen-hit attack on Bagley hurlers Jerry Allen and Dave Severud, manager Gene Back's Thieves, in a game played on the Fair Grounds diamond Wednesday night, defeated the Bagley Merchants, 12 to 3. The loss was the first of the season in Northern Minny league play for the Bagley Merchants, who continue to pace the loop with a twelve wins and one loss record.

The Thieves "resolved" the game in the 3rd inning when they racked up a seven-run cluster, driving starter Jerry Allen off the mound and bringing the knuckle-balling Dave Severud in as a reliefer. The locals, on Joey Poole's triple and an error, had tallied a run in the 2nd inning to take a 1 to 0 lead.

In the 3rd inning, Vraa led off with a single, Ross Sloan sacrificed, Frank Gunderman poled out a single, Gene Back and Bob Helgeland walked, Curly Gasperlin drove out a two-run single, Glen Carlson strolled, and Joey Poole doubled to the fence in right-center, and a two-base throwing error on Vraa's infield tap accounted for seven runs.

Meanwhile Vraa was pitching handily, setting the heavy-hitting Merchants down with but five hits. A pair of double plays, around the horn, from Gasperlin to Gunderman to Carlson, helped Vraa out of a pair of "tight" spots. In the 3rd inning, with a runner on first base, Tom Wolhowe bounced to Gasperlin who pegged to Gunderman, and Frank's throw to Carlson completed the twin killing. In the 5th inning, when the Merchants started an uprising that scored three runs, Ken Severud grounded to Gasperlin, who whipped to Gunderman to force Prestemoen, and Gunderman's throw to Carlson was in time to erase Severud. That double play was a rally-snuffer-out.

The Thieves will travel to Erskine on Sunday for a night game with manager Lyle Westrum's Merchants. There is intense rivalry between the two clubs, and Sunday's tilt should be a thriller.

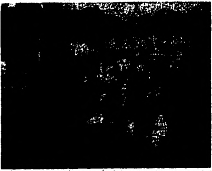
Prefers Water At Tindolph To Pacific

Taking advantage of the summer sunshine at Tindolph Beach last week were many local and regional families. Sitting in the sun were, left: Mrs. John Monsos and daughter, Pacific Palisades, Cal., and Mrs. Ken Nelson, son John and daughter Mary, Warren. When asked what she thinks of Tindolph, Mrs. Monsos replied, "I like the water here better than the Pacific ocean."

Summer School At Tindolph Park



Going to school in the summer time isn't too bad for these youngsters. Here they get a little expert instruction from Beverly Wegge, lifeguard and Red-cross swimming instructor, at Tindolph. Swimming classes for beginners are held each day Monday thru Friday from 9 a. m. to noon at the water-front.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

It's a Fact

After an audit of the league secretary's statistics, a certification of the targets, and an investigation of the trap loads the boys have been using, it's a fact that Roy Jorgenson's Northern Chevrolet trap shooting squad is, at the end of the first round schedule, in first place in the league standings. The Chevvy's have a four wins and one loss record for an eight-point total, or a two-point lead over the Wilson Bros. and Oen's Appliance, who are sharing the runner-up post with six points.

So that proper homage can be paid to the league leaders we'll recite the names of the squad members, and the handicaps that these individuals carry: Roy Jorgenson, 3; Frank Rinkel, 8; Howie Brandt, 6; Walt Anderson, 1; Erling Torgerson, 4; George Mackenroth, 4; Walt Jung, 5; and Henry Granum, 2.

But if you think that the defending league champion Wilson Bros., are going to stand "idly by" and allow the Northern Chevrolet to win the title this season, well, you, don't know Stan Wilson, or the Wilson squad. This evening's schedule, Thursday, will find the Chevvy's meeting the Wilson's, and for the past week Stan and his boys have been holding strategy meetings in preparation for this "crucial" match.

Why not drive out to the trap shooting range on Thursday evening?

Tryout Camp

The Pittsburgh Pirates will conduct a tryout camp at Grand Forks on Tuesday and Wednesday July 16 and 17. The sessions, which will begin at 9:30 A. M. daily, will be held at the Municipal Stadium, the home of the Grand Forks Chiefs.

Players must be at least 16 years of age to be eligible to attend, and no American Legion Junior player will be permitted to participate in the tryouts if such participation interferes with any of his Legion activities. Legion players will be permitted to participate if they have a letter of approval from their Legion coach or the Commander of the Legion Post he represents in Legion play.

Players are expected to furnish their own baseball shoes, uniforms and gloves. The Pirates will provide the bats, balls, and other playing equipment. Tryout players will also be responsible for their traveling and living expenses, with the understanding that all expenses will be reimbursed to those players signed to contracts with the Pittsburgh organization.

How Come?

It is probable that the most unpopular man around the golf club, especially on golf league Wednesday evenings, is John Moum. John, you known, is the high commissioner, the chief handicapper, and the court of last resort in the golf league organization. It's by and with the advice and consent of Moum that individual golf league handicaps are established.

John complains, though, that the conversations he has with the golfers are getting monotonous. They proceed like this: "How come? How come that I have a handicap of five, and so-and-so has a handicap of six, and that so-and-so has a handicap of seven?" And so on into the evening. John is hoping that someday a golfer will come up to him and say, "John, how about lowering my handicap a stroke or two? I'm shooting better golf than my handicap." That will be the day.

Here's a catalog of the golf league's low handicap players: Stan Larson, with a handicap of 3, is the city's low handicap player; and bunched with handicaps of 5 are Phil LeGault, John Moum, Larry Perkins, Wally DuChamp, Bill Watzke, Rudy Mehlhoff, Lloyd Bennes, and Hans Chommie.

That's fair enough handicapping, and we think that John Moum is doing a fine job in managing the league's operation.

Back in Action

After five consecutive rain-outs, on Sunday dates, the local baseball Bums finally got back into action when, in a North Six league game played on the Fair Grounds diamond on Sunday afternoon, they defeated the Grygla Red Sox, 9 to 4. It was a well-played game, too, and the handful of fans that was in attendance enjoyed the game.

This week, on Sunday afternoon, the Bums will be playing at Trail.

Bemidji Juniors Here Friday

All junior baseball fans, and senior baseball fans, too, should make a note to be in attendance at the Fair Grounds on Friday night, for on that date the Bemidji juniors will meet Joey Poole's local juniors.

The local juniors, getting top-flight pitching from Bob Hallameck, Harlie Drees, and Arlan Hjelle, and strong defensive play from such players as Keith Johnson, Mickey Hanson, Jerry Jorgenson, Dean Bergland, Dave Berg, Tony Wald, and others, are as fine a club as the 9th district possesses. The boys are worth watching.

Four Teams Ready to Start in Girls' Softball League

Legion Juniors Play Crookston in First Sub-district Game

Lowell Collins, supervisor of the city girl's softball program, announced that a fourth team will be organized to participate in the league competition. There will be two games played each Tuesday and Thursday evenings. One game will be played on the Lincoln high school field, and another game will be played on the Northrop school field. Game time will be 6:45 p.m.

The league will be composed of the following teams: Gunder Grovum's Dodgers; L. R. Hartz' Gophers; the Medics; and the Cities Service.

The Medics were declared the winners of the first half of the season, which was concluded this past week.

This evening's Thursday, schedule, will find the Dodgers meeting the Cities Service team on the Northrop field; and the Medics playing the Gophers on the Lincoln high school field.

Poole's Legion Juniors Won From East Grand 5 to 2

Harlie Drees Had Game Under Control Last 5 Innings; Bemidji Next

Coach Joey Poole's American legion junior baseball team defeated the East Grand Forks juniors, 5 to 2, in a well-played game at East Grand Forks on Tuesday evening. On Thursday night, with play ball time at 8:00 p.m., the local juniors will meet the highly-touted Bemidji juniors. The Bemidji club will have a number of this season's Bemidji high school team in its lineup, and the Lumberjacks, it will be recalled, won the regional high school title.

The locals jumped into an early, and commanding, lead in the 1st inning of Tuesday evening's tilt at East Grand Forks. Lead-off batter Jerry Jorgenson drew a walk, Mickey Hanson and Bob Hallameck followed with singles, and walks to Darrel Wick, Keith Johnson, and Harlie Drees gave the locals a 3 to 0 advantage.

East Grand Forks came back in their half of the 1st inning to tally one run on Wayne Goschen's triple and a double by Noyes.

Those two hits proved to be the only hits that righthander Arlan Hjelle gave up until the 5th inning, when he neted relief from Drees. And the stocky St. Hilaire hurler set the East Siders down in order.

The line score:

Thief River Falls	300 101 0	5	[illegible]	[illegible]
East Grand Forks	100 100 0	2	[illegible]	[illegible]

Contracts Awarded for 3 Lake Projects

Three lake improvement projects are scheduled to begin in the near future following acceptance of bids recently submitted by Minnesota construction firms.

A carp trapping area on lake Waconia, Carver county; a carp control dam on Witka lake, Blue Earth county and a water-level-control dam on Sand Hill lake, Polk county, have been recommended by the bureau of fisheries.

At present, carp trapping operations on lake Waconia are hindered by seining difficulties and control must be carried on by trapping. The new trapping area and jetties will improve carp control immeasurably on the lake.

Migration of carp into approximately 500 acres of waterfowl area on Witka lake will be effectively controlled by the proposed dam.

Maintenance of proper water levels to benefit fish and waterfowl will now be possible with the dam scheduled for Sand Hill lake.

Bids were received from Don Gordon of Searles in the amount of $5,010 for lake Waconia project and $1,662 for the Sand Hill lake job. The Ralph C. North Company of Mineapolis submitted a bid for $1,849 on the Witka lake improvement.

Minnesota Wins National Award

A national "Award of Achievement" for outstanding performance in its driver licensing program has been awarded to the State of Minnesota, according to an announcement received by L. P. Zimmerman, commissioner of highways. The award was made by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators for activities reported in the annual inventory for traffic safety for 1956.

To qualify for an award, the state must have a performance record in driver licensing of 85 per cent or more for the year as scored by the Board of Judges of the association. Minnesota was one of eight states so qualifying, and the only state in the Upper Midwest to be so honored.

This is the fifth award made to the state for its 1956 traffic safety program.

Trunk Highways on Reservation To Be Surfaced

Maintenances contracts have been awarded totaling $258,651 for construction of base and bituminous surfacing on various trunk highways in the Minnesota Highway department's Bemidji, Brainerd and Rochester maintenance districts, the department reported today.

Included in the jobs let in the Bemidji district is a surfacing program on the Red Lake reservation, described as follows:

Bemidji district. T.Hs. 1 & 89—On T.H. 1, construction of bituminous base and road-mixed bituminous surfacing between a point 1.3 miles southeast of the north line of Clearwater county and the south Jct. T.H. 89; and on T.Hs. 1 and 89, road-mixed bituminous surfacing as follows: On T.H. 1 between the south Jct. T.H. 89 and a point one mile east of Redby, and on T.H. 89 between the south boundary of the Red Lake Indian reservation and the south Jct. T.H. 1, Belanger Bros., International Falls, $120,099.

AUTO IS FOURTH HIGHEST KILLER

The automobile stands fourth among the causes of death in America and it is the chief killer of people under 44 years of age, according to a recent traffic safety study. The best preventive against a death dealing highway accident is a continuous dosage of safe driving.

WORLD CHAMP IN AQUA FOLLIES—Bruce Harlan, Olympic and world champion diver, will display this diving form when he is featured with Pat McCormick and Joaquin Capilla in the Aqua Follies at Theodore Wirth Pool in Minneapolis July 17-28. Tickets for the 14 performances are on sale at the Aquatennial Ticket Office, Main Floor, Northwestern Bank Building, Minneapolis, and at Field Schlick Ticket Office, St. Paul: $3.56 for box seats; $3.08, $2.56 and $2.00 for reserved seats, tax included.

Fire Fighter Smokey Gets Help from Hokey

The United States Forest Service after a long nationwide search has found at last, in Minnesota, a helper and companion for their famous Smokey the bear. Kenneth Korpi, state forest ranger, stationed at Norris camp in the Beltrami Island state forest trained his little cocker spaniel dog "Hokey" to put out and bury lighted cigarettes that are carelessly tossed on the ground. Hokey like all dogs likes trees very much and wants them to grow up and serve a useful purpose.

On a trip through Minnesota this spring J.W.K. (Bud) Holliday of the Milwaukee office watched the dog do this tree saving act and immediately realized the possibility of exploiting the canine fire fighter. Holliday on his return to Milwaukee suggested "Hokey" as a companion to Smokey. The suggestion received enthusiatic approval and the idea was referred to the Washington, D.C. office.

Now a script is in process of preparation for making a movie short adaptable to television as an episode in "Smokey" bear promotion. The week of August 12 has been set for filming an adventure of Hokey and Smokey in Minnesota. The U. S. forest plans to use this production nationwide in their 1958 forest fire prevention campaign.

Highway Patrol's Two Airplanes to Put in Long Hours

Harry A. Sieben, state highway safety director, has given a word of caution for careless motorists about the state Highway patrol's two new airplanes. He pointed out that the planes are patrolling and will continue to patrol the state's highways seven days per week, every week.

The Highway air patrol is now no holiday or weekend operation, he said, but a full week effort to locate and help apprehend traffic violators and to aid in the ground control of traffic movement in congested areas. Before the Highway department purchased two planes last month, it borrowed planes from the state Conservation department for patrol on holidays and other times of especially heavy traffic.

More than 174 million barrels of diesel fuel were sold in 1955. Railroads were the biggest users, consuming 46 per cent or 80 million barrels.

Who Are Responsible?

It is noteworthy that some of our leaders in Washington are taking the steel industry to task for increasing the price of steel. These price increases are inflationary, and inflation is a bad thing. Our dollar is losing buying power, adding to the difficulties of millions of our people whose income is limited.

And with these statements we wholeheartedly concur, although the price increase for steel did not come as a surprise. It was announced a year ago when the industry entered into a three-year wage agreement with the unions, providing for a wage increase each year. We expressed our views on the matter at that time and our opinions have not changed.

During the past ten years our dollar has lost value at the rate of about three percent a year, and we think much of the blame for this can properly be charged to the selfish irresponsibility of the leaders of big business and big labor.

But there is another group of powerful citizens in our country who must also share in the responsibility for this dangerous decline in the dollar's buying power. They are the politicians whom we send to Washington to manage our public affairs, and they are an especially guilty lot, and some of those who now are yelling the loudest about industry have been most active in advocating inflationary practices by the government.

The government itself must be held responsible for most of our inflation. Not only has it failed to apply adequate curbs on continuing cycles of wage and price increases but it has actually encouraged these cycles by an extravagance that has been manifested in many ways.

There are responsible leaders in Congress who recognize the danger and who are making a sincere effort to hold the line against further inflation. Those who represent our state seem to be interested mainly in more spending, pumping more gas into the inflation balloon.

They Are Confused Too

When Krushchev succeeded Stalin as secretary of the Communist party, a government by committee was announced. There was to be no more one man dictatorship, and in "the committee" were included leaders of conflicting views. The big question now therefore is whether the purge of the Krushchev opposition means that the "personality cult" has been restored and Krushchev takes over as a new police-state dictator.

In doing our arm-chair guessing on the significance of the changes that are now taking place, we can safely come up with one conclusion — the questions that are confusing to us are also confusing to many of the people of Russia. There is a spirit of revolt among them, as there is amog all people, and dissenters become braver when confusion exists.

The knowledge that our disagreeable neighbors are having differences among themselves gives us a more comfortable feeling of security. Let us hope that the business of restoring harmony at home will keep them occupied for a long time.

Big, Promises, But —

We were hopeful for a while that Congress would really apply the brakes on spending. The attacks that were made on the administrations budget, and the cuts in appropriations that were recommended in some of the early hearings, seemed to indicate that the opposition was serious in its criticism.

It now appears that what is going to be done will be in no way related to what was promised. The opposition is reverting to type and in some instances is approving expenditures in excess of what the President requested.

Argument Ahead

Canadians have been critical of the methods we have used in dumping surplus farm products. As a result of our give-aways, and accepting payment in foreign currency, the Canadians no doubt have lost markets that they otherwise would have served. And while our surplus of wheat has been reduced slightly, theirs has increased. While our wheat surplus still is larger, their wheat problem is relatively more serious. On a per capita basis we have less than 6 bushels per person to worry about. In Canada the wheat surplus is about 87 bushels per person.

The new Canadian government probably will act to meet our competition in the world market, and that may necessitate some changes in our marketing methods. Getting rid of our surpluses probably will become a more complex problem as time goes on. Dumping in any form could bring retaliation in many forms.

High Cost of Pork

It is not the cost of pork chops we have in mind in this complaint about the high cost of pork. It is the billions of dollars that are wasted year in and year out on pork barrel political projects that irritate us no end.

The following comment, clipped from Basic Transportation, cites an example of this kind of wasteful spending here in our own state of Minnesota:

> "Recently we saw a television show about a southern politician who, on being accused of building a dam where there was no river, hastened to assure his critic that the next plank in his platform was to build a river where the dam was. In Minneapolis, we are seeing a replay of this same comic tragedy in the so-called Upper Harbor Development for extension of navigation above St. Anthony Falls.
>
> "It has been astonishing to people of Minnesota to see some of our firmest advocates of economy and efficiency in government promoting a project for pouring money down a rat hole.
> "After having sunk almost $12,000,000 in this project already, the promoters now want to spend an additional $20,700,000 of Federal funds and an additional $3,500,000 of the City of Minneapolis funds to extend the navigable channel of the Mississippi 4.6 miles above St. Anthony Falls.
>
> "In the face of originally adverse recommendations of the Army Engineers, the recommendation now is to throw "good money" after admittedly "bad money"."

The cost of this particular raid on the treasury is set down at $20 million, but that is only a part of the story. The Minnesota representatives who have promised a few of the Minneapolis bosses that they will deliver this slab of bacon to the city probably will have pledged their support for hundreds of other equally worthless projects in order to get support for their own.

This little $20 million kick-back is only a small portion of the total grab.

There is a law that forbids the buying of votes. Unfortunately this law makes illegal the buying of votes only with private funds. Buying votes with public money still is common practice.

DON'T BUY ANY CAR BEFORE YOU DRIVE A CHEVY . . . ITS BEST SHOWROOM IS THE ROAD.

Beauty in motion—Chevrolet Bel Air Sport Sedan with Body by Fisher.

Here's why Chevy's best showroom is the road!

Because Chevrolet's sleek good looks, its advanced features, are only part of the story. The big bonus is its remarkable roadability, the crisp precision handling that has posted an entirely new standard for cars in every price class. There are reasons for this, of course: Chevrolet's balanced weight distribution that takes excessive loads off the front wheels, the wide stance of outrigger rear springs, Ball-Race steering, spherical-joint front suspension. Sure, you can admire the sculptured lines in the showroom. But Chevy's a car specifically designed for beautiful motion—you have to travel in this one to know just how terrific it is. Try it, this week!

Original Stockholders of 50 Year Old Holt Creamery Honored

At a picnic in the school yard next Sunday afternoon, commemorating 50 years of operation of the Creamery, citizens of the Holt community will honor 11 remaining members of the stockholders who formed the organization in 1907.

To some of the old-timers in the Holt community this gathering will bring memories of the picnic program that was held long years ago when the creamery had been built.

Present at the gathering will be Ole Hagen, who, as a young fellow, was the first operator of what then, was the biggest creamery in Marshall county. When he arrived from Fertile in June of 1907 the building was nearing completion and his first job was to install the machinery. With the help of several local volunteers this job was completed by July 10 and the plant was ready to go into operation.

To Gunder Sorter and C. L. Heinze goes the credit for delivering the first cans of milk and they were recognized at the grand opening picnic which was held on July 15.

That was a red-letter day in the town that then was known as Sandridge (changed to Holt in 1909). A Thief River Falls high school band provided music, an all-day outing for the band members who travelled by delivery stable horsepower.

John Sorum, first creamery secretary, presided over the meeting that was held in a temporary pavilion. He introduced J. G. Winkjer, a creamery inspector, and M. J. Cort, representing the Creamery Manufacturing Co.

The early records no longer are available but according to Hagen, as he recalls it, the first board members were Risberg, president; Sorum, secretary; Folden, Olson (Doc), and a farmer named Smith.

At that time there were two stores in the village, Relerson's and Gunheim's and the Northern Light was edited by Charles W. Latta.

There will be disagreement on some of the facts about what happened on that auspicious occassion fifty years ago, but the folks of the Holt community will enjoy the opportunities to exchange views and prod each other's recollections at the anniversary gathering that will be held next Sunday.

The original stockholders to be honored Sunday include: John Knutson, Rt. 4, Thief River Falls; Mrs. T. Brunsvald, Thief River Falls; Mr. Erick Johnson of California; Mrs. John Engstrom, Holt; Mrs. J. A. Sorum, Thief River Falls; Alvin Knauf, Thief River Falls; Mrs. H. O. Ekerdohlen, Newfolden; Mr. S. G. Svenkerson, Canada; Mrs. C. H. Grinheim, Holt and Mrs. Guy Anderson, Thief River Falls.

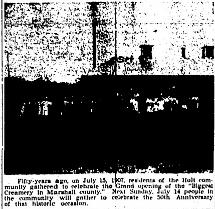
July 15, 1907 Grand Opening



Fifty years ago, on July 15, 1907, residents of the Holt community gathered to celebrate the Grand opening of the "Biggest Creamery in Marshall county." Next Sunday, July 14 people in the community will gather to celebrate the 50th Anniversary of that historic occasion.

50 Years In The Creamery Business

Ox-drawn wagons were used to bring cans of cream to Holt when the Creamery was first opened 50 years ago. Reproduced from a post-card dated Sept. 27, 1909, this now dimmed photo shows some of the early residents of the community, including the first manager of the creamery, Ole Hagen.

Seated in the front seat of the wagon are Mr. and Mrs. Hans Fosholm. Mrs. Fosholm holds her daughter, now Mrs. Paul Anderson. The young lad standing is Henry Fosholm and the man holding the cream can is O. A. Storvick. Manager, Ole Hagen stands in the doorway.

Grooming The Garden

The little extra chores in the garden that give it a manicured appearance constitute garden grooming.

• • •

Edging along the flower borders, sidewalks and driveways, for example, brings out the design areas. However, don't dig a deep trench along the sod edge. Such a trench makes mowing difficult and the sod edge tends to dry out.

• • •

Removing old flower heads from shrubs will improve flower production next year and add to the appearance of the shrub.

• • •

After hybrid tea roses have bloomed, prune them back to the first five leaflets to provide a stronger bud for new growth.

• • •

One of the ways to increase the period of bloom for both annuals and perennials is to remove the dead flowers.

Crop Association Annual Meeting Will Be Thursday

The annual meeting of the Red River Valley Crops and Soils Association will be held at 3:00 p.m. in the library of the Northwest School and Experiment Station, Crookston, on Crops and Soils Day, Thursday, July 18, according to Robert Backstrom, president of the Association. Mr. Backstrom asks that all members of the Crops and Soils Association please note the change in time. The meeting will be given over to routine annual business. There is a special item that will come up for consideration, according to President Backstrom. All members are urged to attend.

Acreage of farmland planted in sorghums is still on the increase, with nearly 16 million acres being planted this year. It has been predicted that by next year almost all such sorghum will be from hybrid seed.

Game and Fish Leaders Hold Midwest Session

The Midwest Association of Game and Fish Commissioners opened their 24th annual meeting yesterday at Itasca State Park with Arnie J. Suomela, U. S. commissioner of fish and wildlife and Governor Orville L. Freeman, scheduled to address the gathering.

The three day conference will see conservation administrators from thirteen midwest states, Manitoba and Ontario in attendance. Approximately 125 delegates will hear papers on a variety of natural resource topics.

Association President James W. Kimball announced that many of those attending the meeting planned to vacation in Minnesota.

Tractor accidents kill more than 1,000 farm people each year. About one-third of these fatalities occur on highways.

Cattle with a severe case of pinkeye have been known to die, because they couldn't see well enough to find food or water.

Westerners eat more beef than people in any other region of the country. The Deep South eats the smallest share.

LOOKING FOR GOD

Some say you find God just as well in a garden, in the woods, or on a golf course as in a church—that God is everywhere. But be honest about it.

Are you not more apt to think of weeds, or mosquitoes, or a poor shot than you are of God? And after all, you have made this outing to seek pleasure.

But when you go to church, it is with the specific intention of worshipping. Here you engage in prayer, praise and thanksgiving. Here you mingle with people who are seeking God and have come to feel His presence. In the quiet beauty of a church you find few outside distractions, and you know that this place is dedicated to the service of God.

For peace and happiness which comes from really feeling God's presence, worship in the house of the Lord this Sunday—make it a regular practice.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

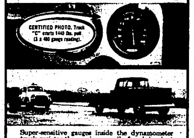
DODGE outpulls "other two" low-priced trucks!

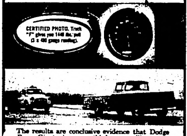
CERTIFIED PHOTO. Dodge provides 1950 lbs. pull (3 x 650 gauge reading).

Here's the scientific way to measure the actual pulling power a truck can deliver to its rear wheels. All three low-priced trucks were hooked up, one by one, to a special dynamometer truck. Each was comparably equipped and test-loaded.



CERTIFIED PHOTO. Truck "C" starts 1440 lbs. pull (3 x 480 gauge reading).

Super-sensitive gauges inside the dynamometer truck register the maximum pull of each truck at 10 m.p.h. Insets in photos above show actual gauge readings in each case. To convert these readings into pounds, simply multiply them by three.



CERTIFIED PHOTO. Truck "F" gives you 1440 lbs. pull (3 x 480 gauge reading).

The results are conclusive evidence that Dodge Power Giants give you a third more pulling power than either of the "other two" low-priced makes. And this is just one of a series of tests that prove Dodge is the best truck of the low-priced three.

● Your Dodge truck dealer has proof that Dodge leads in many ways. Come in ... see other certified test-photo sequences... and take a demonstration ride!

Tests Clear up Back-log of Break-ins

Lie Detector Brings Confessions from 7 Local Juveniles

A back-log of early spring burglaries, car-prowls, larcenies and vandalism were cleared up last week when a group of local youths, confessed to authorities after taking lie-detector tests at the University of Minnesota.

Arrangements were made to test the youths at the University Wednesday morning, July 10th, by local authorities as part of an investigation procedure.

The seven youths had recently been tried in Juvenile Court for the June 15th burglary of Noper's Motel and the April 19th break-in at the Eagles' Club. Their sentence was stayed pending investigation.

The Noper's case was reported to the local police on June 16th, after two parties from Canada found their cabins had been broken into. Several six-packs and a bottle of whiskey were taken from the cabins. Information on the Noper's case was obtained when patrolman Don Olson picked up one of the youths on June 25, for drunken driving after a wild chase through the east side residential district. When further investigation by Capt. Larry Runger, of the local police, proved that the whiskey found in the car was part of the liquor taken from the Noper's break-in authorities proceeded to pick up the rest of the youths involved.

The Eagles' Club break-in was reported on April 20th, when it was discovered that someone entered the building and made off with a case of assorted whiskies.

Elton Cummings, local police chief, and Chuck Richards, county sheriff, working with agent Lawrence Hedin, of the State Crime bureau, decided to take the youths to the University when evidence showed reason to believe that these same youths might be involved in earlier crimes.

Cummings, said that in the past this type of testing had been used in individual cases, but that this is the first time it has been tried on a group. Results, said Cummings, will make this type of testing very helpful in the future.

According to authorities, the parents of the seven youths were contacted and were in complete agreement with the proposed testing.

The group left Thief River Falls at midnight Tuesday and returned midnight Wednesday. Each of the youths consented to make the trip. And each submitted to the tests voluntarily.

The tests were given at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The results of the tests, said authorities, proved conclusively that the boys were not telling the truth, when questions were presented regarding earlier break-ins and larcenies.

Once the youths were convinced that they could not beat the machine, and that all the evidence pointed to their guilt, they confessed to authorities.

Local authorities, said the youths have signed statements admitting their part in the break-in at Cliff's Food Market and Phillips' Auto Wrecking Service.

Information that will be helpful in solving other cases was also obtained through the testing procedure. A complete report will be made after the court action is completed.

Legislative Law Supplements Are Now Available

Copies of the laws of the 1957 session of the Minnesota legislature are now available upon request at the Times office. One of the reasons for their unusually late distribution is the fact that they are larger than usual, being 108 pages.

They contain 966 laws passed in the regular session and 22 passed in the special session. One chapter, dealing with school matters, is 40 columns long. Another providing changes in the statewide highway system, required 30 columns.

Marshall County Group Tours Soil Problem Areas

Visits Directed by Fred Heck, Marshall County Soil Conservation Agent

Sixteen people attended the problem area tour of the new Marshall County Soil Conservation District on Tuesday, July 9, reports Fred Heck, Marshall County Soil Conservation Agent.

Those in attendance included Mr. Yngve Berggren, Mr. Oscar Oswald and Mr. Emil Anderson, county committeemen for the Marshall County Agricultural Stabilization (ASC) office. The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) of Marshall County was represented by Mr. Wally Fredericks and Mr. Paul Beckel. Also in attendance was Mr. Maynard Scelley, Mr. Herb Halverson, Mr. Claire Mahannah of the Area Soil Conservation Service from Thief River Falls. Representative Richard Fitzsimons of district 67, Mr. Matt Thorfinnson, secretary of the state soil conservation committee and the new district supervisors, Mr. Norman Anderson, Leonard Yutrzenka, Kenneth Dufault, Orville Elseth and Richard Field. Present also were the county Extension agents.

The problem area tour consisted of seeing the different areas in the new district which are special in their own as far as soil types and the farming and conservation hazards encountered with them.

The group toured the following areas: Viking area and north, Newfolden area and west, Strandquist area north and southwest, Florian area north and west, Stephen area east and west and Argyle area west.

A general summation of the problems described were that most of the Marshall County soils are subject to wind erosion and need protective farming practices applied. Nearly all the soils are by nature poorly drained and need supplemental or additional drainage plus a planned crop rotation with green manure or deep rooted legume crops included in the crop rotation to help the internal drainage. Nearly all Marshall County soils are grouped as class II or poorer, meaning that all the lands do have a farming hazard which must be dealt with.

Marshall County has one of the widest varieties of soil types found in any county in the state.

The group agreed that soil surveys would prove very valuable in helping farmers decide on a long range proper land use program on their farms. Some also felt that they had seen Marshall County soils differently than they had ever thought of them before.

Allen Calls Egg Meeting Here Thursday

To Discuss New Law Requiring Purchases on Graded Basis

Egg producers and dealers in northwestern counties are urged to attend a meeting to be held at the court house here Thursday evening for the purpose of discussing proposed marketing regulations under the new egg grading law. The meeting, starting at 8:00 o'clock, is called by Byron G. Allen, state commissioner of the department of agriculture.

This is one of a series of 32 such meetings being held in the state between July 15 and 18. These are preliminary to the formal hearing on regulations, required by law, which has been announced for 10:00 A. M. Tuesday, August 6, which will be conducted by Commissioner Allen in the Auditorium of the State Office Building in St. Paul.

"Before any new regulations are adopted" says Mr. Allen, "the staff of the department desires to inform farm people and especially the egg producers, handlers and retail dealers about the provisions of our state's modern egg law.

"Then we want to gain the concensus of all interested people on how to best implement the program for better quality eggs. We seek the opinions of all interested people, including the ideas of housewives and consumers, so that an informed public can serve with the department to elevate Minnesota eggs to a position of 'best in the nation'."

"To Minnesota, the egg business means a gross income of $120,000,000, each year, according to Mr. W. K. Dyer, Director of the Division of Poultry Industries of the Department. The new legislation is designed to lead the way toward better production, purchase, packaging, transportation, storage and retail methods by such means as requiring purchase from farmers on a graded basis, maintaining them in storage and at retail out-lets at proper temperatures and by informing the consumers of the meaning of the various retail grades.

"These local meetings are being held because it is not to be expected that those we want to consult with on regulatory matters can afford the time and expense of a trip to the formal hearing in St. Paul on August 6," Mr. Allen stated.

Demonstrate Fogging Method to Extinguish Oil Fires

West-end Farmers to Meet Friday to Discuss Drainage

Black River Watershed Group Held Preliminary Session Wednesday Night

A meeting of farmers of the Black River watershed in western Pennington will be held at the court house Friday evening to consider their drainage problems. This is a sequel to a meeting held Wednesday at Norden township when a number of farmers met with county officials and representatives of several government agencies. Norden, Numedal, Bray, Sanders, Polk Centre and Black River townships were represented.

Don Lawrence, S.C.L. farm planner, spoke briefly about how the S.C.S., working through the Soil Conservation District, endeavors to help farmers with problems in soil and water management. He stated that the District program recognizes that good water management, which involves drainage, is a preliminary step to a good soil management program.

Ralph Hauswirth, area Engineer for the S.C.S., stated that during the past two years considerable survey work had been done in the area. He said that his work has gone about as far as possible until the people in the area decide what they want to do but that information so far gathered is available to the people.

H. G. Halvorson, Area Conservationist for the S.C.S. outlined some of the main provisions of Public Law 566 (The Federal Small Watershed Act). Under this act it is necessary for the local people to have their county soil conservation district submit a request for assistance. He said that if the problems and solutions are of such a kind that they cannot be adequately handled by local people that it is possible for the Federal Government to provide a part of the cost of the improvements He pointed out that this is a slow moving program and that immediate relief could not be expected. If the people wanted to do something soon they should proceed under existing state laws, he suggested.

Joe Seidel, County Engineer, outlined the steps and procedures required for ditch repair and ditch improvement.

Carl B. Anderson, County Commissioner in the area suggested that some action be taken at once. It was decided to call the meeting which will be held in the court house Friday evening.

The Black River Watershed is a part of Judicial ditch No. 25, according to Mr. Lawrence. This ditch system drains in 3 directions, he states. Besides the Black River which drains into the Red Lake River, there is a branch that drains north into the Snake and also one that drains west to the Red.

PLUMMER FARMERS UNION TO MEET

A meeting of the Farmers Union local of Plummer has been called for Tuesday evening, July 16 at the Plummer hall starting at 8:00 o'clock. There will be a speaker and movies. "Absolute" Means That's It—For Sure

Something new has been added to the speed limit markers on trunk highways. It's a small sign with the words "absolute." And, according to state and local authorities, it means exactly what it says: the posted limit (30 or 40 miles per) and not one mile faster. These markers are being placed at the approaches to all cities and villages in the state.

Senator Thye Wires Chairman and Others Will Attend Session

A telegram to the Times from Senator Edward J. Thye received Friday states that the Emergency Committee of the department of agriculture will attend the meeting to be held at Oklee Wednesday night to consider flood problems of this area. "Floyd Sjolander, state chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Committee, is chairman of the committee. Civil Defense, Agricultural Extension Service and Farm Home Administration will be represented," the telegram said.

On Friday Joe Rosengren, supervisor of the Farm Home Administration for Pennington and Red Lake counties, informed the Times that the department of agriculture had added Kittson, Roseau and Marshall counties to the distress area previously announced and eligible for emergency loans. There now are [illegible] counties so designated in Minnesota, seven of them in this area.

In a conference of state and federal officials called by Governor Freeman in St. Paul Friday the question of what various federal agencies can and cannot do under their present authority was discussed. Press reports of this meeting indicated that federal agencies may make emergency loans and under certain conditions may authorize feed and seed grants but have no authority to extend direct federal aid. Only the regularly established welfare agencies have the right to grant relief in distress cases.

These are questions that probably will be discussed at the Oklee meeting along with questions as to what can be done at the local level to meet the needs of many farmers in the seven-county area who are suffering heavy losses as a result of floods and hail.

A letter received from Representative Ben Wichterman of Plummer this morning sheds new light on the sponsorship of the Oklee meeting. It now is called by Edwin H. George and General J. E. Nelson, the federal-state disaster coordinators for Minnesota, and further, "This meeting will be organized and conducted by Representatives Ben Wichterman of Plummer and Representative Everett Battels of Roseau."

A later flash from Wichterman says "please add the following, Norris C. Ellertson, deputy commissioner of agriculture for Minnesota will attend the meeting as personal representative of Governor Orville Freeman."

Mercury Hits 94 in City Thursday

Continued Warm Weather in Prospect This Week

"In the Good Old Summer Time" . . . and it certainly was. Last weekend anyway. Plenty of sunshine and a Thursday high of 94 degrees, with weekend temperatures between 94 and 90 degrees and a steady, comfortable low of 67, made last weekend the ideal time to hold that family picnic in the park, or to take that long planned trip to the lake.

With today's forecast calling for more sunshine, and a high of 90, it looks like the beginning of another perfect week.

Scattered afternoon and evening thunder showers may cool things off a little. Tonight's low, however, will be between 65 and 70 degrees, with continued high humidity.

MORE RAINS ADD TO FLOOD PROBLEMS

Some areas of eastern Pennington and Marshall counties, already suffering from too much water, received up to two inches of additional rain since Thursday. The rain came in the form of local showers and the area was spotted.

Early Peaches Said to be Best for Freezing

Freeze early Elberta peaches if you want top-quality frozen fruit.

That recommendation comes from J. D. Winter and Shirley Trantanella of the University of Minnesota food processing laboratory as a result of tests which show that early Elbertas—sometimes called July Elbertas—are among the best peach varieties for freezing.

Early Elbertas are now in from California. This variety comes on the market about 10 days to two weeks earlier than the regular Elberta peach and is superior to the latter variety for freezing. Early Elbertas from Colorado are usually on the market during the first half of August.

If peaches are not fully ripe when they are purchased, it is recommend that consumers allow the fruits to ripen at temperatures between 65 and 75, if possible. Peaches that ripen at warmer temperatures will have poorer flavor and color, will be more subject to browning and decay and will be difficult to peel. For best results, peaches for freezing should be wall ripened—slightly riper than for canning.

Here are directions for preparing peaches for freezing from Miss Trantanella and Winter:

Dissolve 3 cups of sugar in a quart of cold water and let the syrup stand until clear. When you are ready to prepare the fruit mix ½ teaspoonful of pure ascorbic acid in a small quantity of water and add it to the syrup, mixing thoroughly. Dip only three or four peaches at a time into boiling water until the skins loosen; chill quickly in iced water. Peel. Pack the halves or slices directly into the prepared syrup to which the ascorbic acid has been added. Work quickly. Exposure to the air at this stage may cause darkening of the fruit. Completely cover the fruit with syrup, but leave about ½ inch for expansion. Keep top slices submerged in the syrup by placing a generous wad of crumpled locker paper under the lid.

If ascorbic acid is not available, pack peaches in glass jars for best results.

Funeral services for Gunder K. Nesland were conducted Saturday, June 13 at St. Olaf Lutheran church in Grygla with Rev. Arthur Dale officiating. Interment was made in the St. Olaf cemetery. Mr. Nesland passed away July 10 at the age of 81 years.

Gunder Nesland was born April 22, 1876 in Satersdal, Norway and came to the United States with his parents at the age of 17 years. They settled in Fisher, Minn. where he resided until 1898 when he was united in marriage to Miss Jonond Berg in Grand Forks. In 1899 they moved to Benville township, Beltrami county where they made their home until 30 years ago when they moved to Pennington county where he made his home until his death. He served on the school board and also on the township board in Benville for a number of years. He was a charter member of St. Olaf Lutheran church.

Survivors include two daughters, Miss Tillie Nesland at home; Mrs. Cecil David (Inga) of Houghton Lake, Mich.; Ole of St. Paul; Knute of Hatton, No. Dak; eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, two sons and one daughter.

Terrance Loeffler Baptized June 19

Terrance Scott Loeffler, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Loeffler was baptized Wednesday evening, June 19 at St Bernard's Catholic church. Rev. Keough Patnode officiated and sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stodola of Elk River, Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Holen returned last weekend from a trip to Glacier and Yellowstone National parks, made in company with Mrs. Holen's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Rank of Minneapolis.

Joins Holstein-Friesian Association

Clyde Christiansen, one of northwestern Minnesota's outstanding dairymen, has become a member of the Holstein-Friesian Association, a nation-wide cattle breeders' registry organization.

In the above picture he is using as a background a couple of his high producers. He expects 700 pounds of fat this year from one of his 11 year-old cows and he has some young cows that he thinks will develop excellent production records.

He now has a herd of 60 registered Holsteins and is milking 35 at the present time. His herd average last year was well over 400 pounds of fat and that is an official dairy herd improvement association test.

Horticulture is Major Business in Minnesota

Horticultural crops bring nearly $150 million annually in total sales to farmers and food processors in Minnesota. Leon C. Snyder, head of the University horticulture department, says that the fruit and vegetable processing industry alone does a $60 million annual business, and about $20 million of that total goes to farmers.

Listing other horticultural enterprises, Snyder said farmers sell about $17 million worth of potatoes annually and vegetable and truck farmers market $5-10 million. Nurserymen do a $7 million annual business and florists in Minnesota sell about $15 million worth of material every year.

The commercial fruit industry sells about $3 million worth and home fruit and vegetable gardens are worth another $20 million, Snyder said.

Snyder noted the importance of ornamental plants, without which many farm homes would be quite drab. Right now, he said, the University is testing some 800 varieties of woody ornamentals. He said plans are now underway to develop a landscape arboretum near the Fruit Breeding farm at Excelsior.

He also stressed the importance of fresh fruits and vegetables from the home garden in improving the diets of farm families.

FARMING TODAY

By your County Agent

Paul Stelmaschuk

County Fair

Pennington county held its 56th County Fair last week. The barns were loaded to capacity with livestock. Even the horse barn was full of livestock. The 4-H'ers had to double up with their sheep and swine exhibits. The livestock was of high quality and in fine condition for showing.

In this area livestock is essential for maximum income from farms. Small farms cannot produce sufficient income from grain farming to make them profitable. Through livestock most farms can yield a satisfactory income in this area where our potential for hay production exceeds the capability of many livestock producing areas.

With many fine herds of cattle in the area as seen at the fair, other farmers have a good supply of breeding stock. This breeding stock can be improved as breeders continue to exhibit and select their livestock over a period of time.

Standby Generator

A standby electric generator can help avoid a crisis on the farm when a thunderstorm forces a temporary power failure.

There are two general types of standby generating equipment that can be used on Minnesota farms, according to V. M. Meyer and D. W. Bates, agricultural engineers at the University of Minnesota. They are engine-driven and tractor-driven units.

Some engine-driven units—and also the most expensive—are automatic, but are needed only when it's important that there be no power interruption for more than a few minutes. With this type of unit, the engine automatically starts when power fails.

A manually-started engine driven unit is satisfactory for most farms. This is less bother to use than a tractor driven unit, but is also more expensive because of the engine.

An advantage of a tractor-driven unit is that the tractor—which is in use most of the year—is normally in good operating condition and therefore more reliable in an emergency. A generator with its own engine, on the other hand, may be used so seldom that there may be trouble getting the engine started when it's needed. Also, a tractor mounted generator is handy for using electric welders or other electric hand tools in the field.

When you get a standby generator, first decide which electrical equipment must be used in an emergency. Add up the wattages of all pieces of equipment and select a generator that size or larger. For example, it would take a 5,000 watt or larger generator to operate a 1 h.p. milker, a 1 h.p. milk cooler, a water heater, ½ h.p. water pump and lights in a dairy barn, all at one time.

When using a generator, remember that the starting load of a motor may be 2 to 7 times the operating load. So always start the largest motor first and let it build up to full speed before adding any other loads.

There's more information in University agricultural engineering fact sheet No. 3, "Standby Electric Generators for Emergency Use." You can get a copy from the office.

Get Rid of Turkeys if Bluecomb Hits

If bluecomb disease hits your turkey flock, the only way to completely eliminate the disease is to sell all the turkeys on the farm before starting a new flock.

That advice comes from J. T. Tumlin and S. Pomeroy, veterinary scientists at the University of Minnesota.

After getting rid of the turkeys, thoroughly cleanse and disinfect all houses and equipment. Then wait at least 2 weeks, longer if possible, before replacing the birds.

Bluecomb—one of the worst turkey diseases—caused Minnesota turkey growers a million dollars loss in 1956, and death losses from the disease usually don't go over 50%, but complete loss may occur in some flocks.

Recent research shows that the disease is apparently caused by a viruslike agent. Field trials also show that antibiotics won't completely eliminate the disease, though. But they may be helpful in controlling secondary bacterial infections.

When the disease occurs in growing and range turkeys, the veterinary scientists recommend these steps. Give the birds a flush of epsom salts, a 1 pound per five gallons of drinking water, or 1 pint of molasses per five gallons of water for half a day.

Then use an antibiotic in the water or give it at 100 to 200 grams per ton of feed. Use the antibiotic in the water or feed. Use the antibiotic 4 to 5 days or as long as the flock is sick.

Don't use the flush for bluecomb-infected poulets. Instead, use high-level antibiotics at 500 grams per ton feed, or 250 parts per million in drinking water.

To break the disease cycle, though, the only certain way is to "completely de-populate" the farm of turkeys for at least two weeks.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Be A Champion Bread Baker

Have you taken a close check of the last loaves of bread you have made? Do they have the many characteristics of a perfect loaf of bread which are:

Outside:
—good proportions with both sides alike
—a smooth, well-rounded top
—an even golden brown color
—a thin, tender, crisp crust

Crumb:
—a creamy white color
—a slightly moist feeling
—a uniform fine grain
—elastic or springy feeling
—a well-baked appearance

Weight:
—light in proportion to size

Flavor and aroma:
—sweet and nutlike (no "off" flavors)
—pleasing in aroma

If your loaves do not come up to these standards you may welcome the recipe and procedure of Florence Anderson, 4-H Baking Champion from Pennington Co. Florence is the daughter of Orvin Anderson's of Goodridge, and is a member of the Highlanding 4-H club. This is the second consecutive year that Florence has been Pennington county's bread baking champion.

For her recipe Florence uses:

1 cake or pkg. yeast
¼ cup water for soaking yeast
2 cups liquid (all milk or ½ milk and ½ water)
2 Tbsp. sugar
About six cups flour
1 Tbsp. salt
2 Tbsp. shortening.

Dissolve yeast in ¼ cup of water. Use lukewarm water (98-100 Degrees F.) for compressed yeast, a temperature up to 110 degrees F. for dry yeast. Let stand 10 minutes.

Add sugar to liquid (all milk or ½ milk and ½ water).

Add half of the flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in yeast.

Add salt and soft fat.

Add remaining flour mixing after each addition to form the dough.

When sufficient flour has been added the mixture forms a dough ball which follows the spoon around the bowl. When adding flour put it in a circle around the bowl rather than in the middle. Turn out on a floured board. Clean and grease your bowl. Turn the bowl over the dough to rest. Wait 10 minutes before kneading.

To knead use the heel of your hand rather than the fingers. Thorough kneading helps produce a fine grained, white bread. It blends the ingredients, incorporates air needed by the yeast and develops elasticity in the gluten. Kneading may be started with the rolling pin, but should be finished by hand. Let the bread rise.

Of the two methods of shaping a loaf of bread, Florence uses the Rolled Dough method. Divide dough into even portions and precede as follows.

Step 1. Set bread pan in front of your ball of dough. With a rolling pin or with the heel of your hand pat out the dough into a rectangular shape, about 3 inches narrower than the length of your bread pan and about 12 to 18 inches long. Break down all the gas bubbles along the outer edge of the dough.

Step 2. Starting at either end, roll the dough up like a jelly roll and seal it after each turn. Use the heel of your hand or the fingertips, depending on whether are rolling toward you or from you. Seal final seam carefully pushing it into the loaf with your fingertips. Avoid pinching it together in a ridge.

Step 3. Seal ends by pressing with the edge of your hand.

Step 4. Fold sealed ends under using fingers. Avoid tearing dough, and try not to leave a ridge. Roll loaf.

This recipe makes two loaves of bread.

Berry Stains

Now that the berry season is here, many of you may have questions regarding some of those stubborn fruit stains. "Pour on boiling water" is not always the best rule for removing fruit stains, says Marilyn Balstad, 4-H club assistant.

Cool water may be safer.

Atheline Schied, extension clothing specialist at the University of Minnesota points out that laying the stained fabric over a bowl, and directing a stream of water on the stain from above is as fast and effective way of getting rid of fruit stains particularly on table linen, especially if the stain is fresh.

However, boiling water may damage some fabrics, recent U. S. Department of Agriculture research shows. Boiling water may remove some of the special finishes on cotton. It shrinks Dynel and some wools, may fade or affect the texture of silk.

Using cool water is safer. Cool water may be used on any fabric that won't water spot. If the stain is mostly on the surface, you may be able to sponge it off with a damp cloth. Or, you may lay the stained fabric, face side down, on a pad of cleansing tissues or on an absorbent cloth, and force water through the stain with an eye dropper or small syringe. This is to remove the stain without getting much of the surrounding fabric wet. It may be the best way to treat a fresh stain on a wool garment, for example.

If the fabric is washable—especially if it's going into the laundry anyway, give it an overnight soak in cool water. Start by working the stain between the hands to soften the fabric and loosen the fruit particles. After soaking, rub on soap or synthetic detergent and wash it. Rinse thoroughly. If a trace of the stain remains, a mild bleach may be needed. Use bleach diluted ether. Avoid chlorine if there's a chance that the fabric has a resin finish, as many "washable" cottons have these days.

The sooner you treat the stain, the easier it will be to remove. Apply water while the stain is still moist, if possible.

In next week's issue watch for Champion Pie recipe by Loralea Larson.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Well . . . at last the time we've looked forward to for the past two years has arrived. When you're reading this (we hope you do!) yours truly and the misses will be on our vacation, enjoying the beauties of Union Lake and frolicking in the cool waters while you less fortunate folk swelter. (Not wishing you discomfort—but we do hope the weather is warm!)

We have another good reason to hope it's warm next week, too. My brother, Delmar and his family will be spending the week with us and the last time here they were anything but impressed with the climate . . . you guessed it—it rained every day but two of the whole two weeks they were at the lake with us! Being from the state of Virginia they got the impression it was still winter up in the North Woods.

As a matter of fact there's a very potent reminder of winter in one of our local stores where they have a Christmas doll display set up—artificial snow and all!

That's pushing this Christmas selling season a little far—after all, none of our local merchants feature swimming suits in December. We get the chills every time we pass that store display!

Some people really have it made . . . our local banks and saving institutions have joined the growing ranks of those who close Saturdays. Now, with the Friday evening store hours and all why don't we just roll up the sidewalks, block off the streets and close everything in town Saturdays except the essential businesses?

We're dead serious about this . . . in other cities where the stores are open one night a week the stores also close one afternoon per week to give their employees an equal or greater amount of time off to make up for the evening's work.

In such cities the store employees appreciate the half-day off and don't complain about working the evening the stores are open. They feel better toward their employers for giving them the little break in work hours.

Yep, we're glad to see the banks close Saturdays. We'd like to see even more establishments follow suit, or, at least, close a half-day Saturdays. There's no justification for some cities being so far behind the times in such respects.

That is one of the greatest factors, we believe, in the decline of the smaller towns and cities. The people who want the advantages of working in a big city will go there to get them, and the small town has only itself to blame for not making an effort to keep the people there by making some small adjustments occasionally.

The Newcomers Club held its annual picnic in Riverside Park last Wednesday evening and we're glad to report a good time was had by all. The club does a fine job of bringing newcomers together here and gives them a sense of "belonging."

In fact we think Thief River Falls as a whole does a mighty fine job of making newcomers welcome. As George Grim says in the Tribune, "We like it here!" So long!

Something New Has Been Added

ABSOLUTE
SPEED LIMIT 30

The speed limit markers on the trunk highways leading into the city now say "ABSOLUTE," and that word means just what it says. Above, Sgt. Thomas Scanlon of the state highway patrol an Rene Werner of the Thief River Falls police, are calling attention to the word that the photographer almost left out of the picture. The absolute sign means that any speed in excess of the posted limit is a cause for a ticket and a sure fine. In these zones there are no "extenuating circumstances."

TB Mortality Rate in Co. Drops to 4.5 per 100,000 People

During the past five years there have been only 11 new cases of tuberculosis in Pennington county and three deaths, according to Minnesota department of health figures. The county's new case rate is 21.2 per 100,000 population, and the death rate 4.5.

Nation-wide, there are approximately 800,000 people in this country with either active or inactive TB who need medical supervision, according to Dr. James E. Perkins, managing director of the Nation Tuberculosis association.

"Today's big task is to find out where the areas of greatest infection are. An excellent tool for this is the tuberculin test.

Finding cases early is essential if there is to be a quick recovery for patients, and if germs are to be kept from spreading to other people." Only through case finding, will TB ever be wiped out, according to the Christmas Seal Statement.

Quarter-Mile Racing Bowl Is Being Built

A Thief River Falls racing association has been formed and a program of stock-car racing will soon be announced.

According to Bud Mercier, member of the association, bulldozers are now at work cutting a circular quarter-mile track three miles west of the city on Highway 1. The track will be named the Thief River Speedway.

Officials of the association will be appointed in the near future. According to Mercier, official flag man last year for the Indianhead Stock Car Racing Ass'n., all races will be held under strict supervision and safety regulations will be rigid. All races will be run according to regulations set up by the National Association. No one under 18 years will be allowed to race; those under 21 years must have the consent of their parents.

All cars will be painted in bright colors for the races and will be in spotless condition, said Mercier. Drivers will wear white uniforms and regulation crash helmets.

Each car must meet safety requirements before it can qualify for the track. And immediately before each race, the drivers and the cars will be given a final safety check by Mercier himself.

The Bagley Merchants after being upset by the Thief River Falls Thieves, 12 to 3, at Thief River Falls on Wednesday night, moved back into the win column on Sunday afternoon, defeating the Winger Tigers, 10 to 3, at Winger. The Merchants' win, their 13th of the season, just about clinched the league tilt for manager Mel Brustad's club, for Bagley holds a four-game lead over the runner-up Thieves.

The Thieves and Fosston are engaged in a nip-and-tuck struggle for second place in the league standings, with manager Gene Sack's locals holding a half-game edge over Fosston. The Thieves, with a home barrage, (Bob Helgeland poled out a pair and Sack connected for one) trounced the Erskine Merchants, 18 to 11, at Erskine on Sunday night. Fosston kept pace with the Thieves by shutting out the Red Lake Falls Lakers, 3 to 0, at Fosston on Sunday night.

Bridgeman's Cinch for Tie in City Softball League

Gordy Kaushagen Pitched T & S to 3 to 2 Win Over Bjorkman's; Allowed 4 hits

Bob Carlson's Bridgeman's softball team, winning a pair of games during the week, clinched at least a tie for the city softball league championship. And, incidentally, the Bridgeman's by their two victories, ran their win streak to eight games.

The best game of the week, though, and one of the best of the season, was the Tuesday evening tilt between the T and S Implement and the defending champion Bjorkman's. The T and S team, behind the steady four-hit pitching of veteran Gordy Kaushagen, who gave up but four hits, defeated Milt. Reierson and the Bjorkman's, 3 to 2. The defeat was the fourth of the season for manager Lowell Collin's club.

This week's schedule will be highlighted by the Bridgeman's vs. T and S Implement game on Tuesday evening; and the Bjorkman's vs. Bridgeman's tilt slated for Thursday evening. Those two games are all that prevent Bridgeman's from posting an undefeated record.

For the third successive week, the consistent-shooting Piggly Wiggly squad, carding a 153-stroke total, held first place in the City Golf league standings.

The Brooks Cheese quartet, getting a gross 38 and a net 32 from Emil Larson, totaled a 150-stroke aggregate to move into second place in the league standings, moving up one rung from last week's ratings. Emil Larson's 38 was the low gross for the evening, and his net 32 tied Stan Dahlen for the evening's low net.

The First Federal squad had the low net team total on Wednesday evening, carding a 145. And here's the individual scoring of that squad: Stan Dahlen, 44-32; Frank Tunberg, 48-40; Al Berge, 49-36; and Elmer Benson, 41-37.

The second low team total was credited to the Hardware Mutual Insurance team with a 148-stroke total. Dr. A. E. Jacobson had a 42-34; Russ Embury, a 44-34; Rudy Mehlhoff, 44-40; and Arnie Lee, 51-41.

Not Invincible

The aura of baseball invincibility that has surrounded the Bagley Merchants since the start of the Northern Minny league season was proven a myth on Wednesday night when, on the Fair Grounds diamond, the Thieves trounced Mel Brustad's club, 12 to 3. The Thieves' victory snapped a twelve-game winning streak that the Merchants had compiled, but the loss didn't do much damage to Bagley's standings in the Northern Minny league, for the Merchants have a four-game lead over the runner-up Thieves.

There were mitigating circumstances that softened the Wednesday night loss for Bagley and their fans, and likewise, took some of the sweetness out of the win for the Thieves. On Tuesday evening, in a game played at Bagley, the Merchants, with lefty Ken Severud on the mound, defeated Bemidji, 2 to 1. That game, from all reports, was a standout pitcher's duel, with Severud besting Bemidji's Corky Johnson. As a result of "working" that game, Ken Severud wasn't available for Wednesday nights' game here. Without the expert pitching of the lanky southpaw, the Merchants are just another team. Offensively the Bagley club was hurting on Wednesday night by the absence of second baseman, Earl Erickson. Erickson, who was suited up, and did play the final inning, was side-lined because of a leg injury.

But it was a well-merited win for the Thieves and righthander Sid Vraa. Vraa, who has turned in a pair of stellar performances in just two outings, gave up but five hits to the league leaders, and it was only in the 6th inning that the Merchants were able to bunch their hits, getting a pair of singles, which, with a couple of walks and an error, accounted for the three Bagley runs.

The game to which we are now looking forward, and which should be a season highlight, is the Thieves vs. Bagley tilt at Bagley on Sunday, July 28th. Will you wager that Ken Severud doesn't pitch that one?

Portents

It is highly probable that three of the boys who appeared in the lineup of the Bemidji junior baseball team here on Thursday night — first baseman Ray Cronk, pitcher Marc Kolden, and shortstop Fred Swenson — will comprise the "front line" of next season's Bemidji Lumberjacks basketball team. Cronk, an all-state selection, is a fixture at center, and Bemidji cage coach Clarence (Bun) Fortier thinks highly of the potentials of Kolden and Swenson.

If this trio should develop into the Jacks' "front line" next season, with Kolden and Swenson flanking Cronk, Bemidji would have a towering set of forwards, and which would average close to the six-foot four-inch mark. As is this hot weather wasn't enough of a problem, now we'll have to worry about the Bemidji Lumberjacks basketball team for next season.

But it is nice to know that Bemidji is worrying about the Prowler cage squad for next season, too, for the Jacks realize that they were extremely fortunate to edge out the locals in the regional last spring.

You know next season should be one of the best ever in basketball for the eighth region's fans. For in addition to the recognized power of Thief River Falls and Bemidji, Fosston will have an all-veteran club, and the Fertile Falcons will be a threat.

Atom Bomb

The Jamestown, N. Dak. proving ground will be the scene of an "atom bomb" explosion on Sunday, August 4th. Well, maybe that isn't the way that this item should be phrased. What we mean is that on Aug. 4th, Bob Carlson's Bridgeman's team will play an exhibition softball game against a team coached and managed by Grover (Blackie) Stephens. The game will be played at Jamestown, and it should be explosive.

Baseball fans, and senior fans in particular, will long remember the sturdy service Blackie provided the Thieves in 1951 when the locals won the regional Class B title and participated in the state tournament. It was Blackie's catching that gave the Thieves their regional crown.

Remember that regional finals game against Ada, which was played at Red Lake Falls? The Thieves, with Bob Johnson pitching, held a 4 to 3 lead entering the top of the 9th inning. Ada's Earl Anderson, with two men out, doubled to the fence in right center; pitch-hitter Cliff Vokerding singled to right field, and lefty Phil LeGault fielded the ball and hurled a strike in to the plate, and Blackie, blocking the plate expertly, made the tag on a surprised Anderson to retire the side and end the game. It was a perfect defensive play.

The Rooney Bushes

A welcome visitor in town this past week was Paul Rooney. Golf fans of course, will recall Rooney as the winner of the local club's Invitational tournament in 1950.

Paul was in the upper bracket of the sixteen-man championship flight, and in his first round match he defeated Detroit Lakes' Johnny Buck, winning by a 2 and 1 margin. In his next match he met up with long-driving Gordy Peterson of Minneapolis, and won by a 2-up margin. The semi-finals found Rooney besting Dick Evenson of St. Paul, 1-up. That win set the stage for Paul's championship finals match against Minneapolis' famed Pat Sawyer.

Sawyer, who had won the medalist honors with a 34-37, was shooting splendid golf, but in the finals against Rooney he gave up a stroke on the 4th hole, taking a bogey while Paul scored a par. And on the long 5th, both golfers had river balls, and Paul finally won the hole with a six to go 2-up.

But it was the 7th hole that was the clincher. Paul's drive hooked slightly and ended up in that clump of bushes to the left of the fairway and about one hundred and twenty-five yards from the pin. Sawyer was down the middle. Rooney, forced into a cramped position by the bushes, and with his swing restricted, punched a seven-iron shot to within ten feet of the cup. The two golfers halved the hole in par fours. And when Rooney also gained a half on the 8th hole, with a par three, the match was over, with Rooney the winner by a 2-up margin.

No wonder that that clump of bushes has been dubbed the "Rooney bushes."

Thieves Take Erskine by 18 to 11 Score; Also 29 Hits and 21 Walks

It was three hours of baseball at Erskine on Sunday night as the Thieves and Erskine Merchants bashed out a total of 29 hits (including a pair of home runs by Bob Helgeland and a home run by Gene Sack), scored a total of 29 runs, and received a total of 21 bases on balls as the Thieves defeated Erskine, 18 to 11, in a Northern Minny league tilt.

The Thieves will meet the Winger Tigers on the Fair Grounds diamond here on Wednesday night. The game was originally slated for the Winger park, but due to lack of a lighted field there, a shifting of dates has been made. Game time here on Wednesday night will be at 8:00 P. M.

In Sundays' free-scoring tilt, the Thieves opened up with a three-run outburst in the 1st inning, only to have the Merchants, taking advantage of the lack-of-control by starter lefty LeRoy Aasland, shove five runs across the plate to gain a 5 to 3 lead.

The Thieves picked up a run in the 3rd inning on a walk and Frank Gunderman's double; and in the 3rd inning, the Thieves moved into a 7 to 6 lead when Gunderman, with the bases loaded, clouted a fence-rattling double into right-center, scoring three runs.

The Thieves picked up five runs in the 4th inning, added three runs in the sixth inning. Gene Sack, leading off in the fifth inning slammed a Dick Evenson pitch over the left field fence for a home run. And with two men out in the same inning, muscular Bob Helgeland poled out a home run, also over the left field barrier. And in the 9th inning, off Lyle Westrum's slants, Helgeland pounded out his second home run of the game.

Righthander Sid Vraa, who relieved Aasland in the 1st inning, received credit for the victory, and while he was touched for ten hits and six runs, he wasn't in too much difficulty.

The Thieves, by their decisive win, kept their runner-up position in the league standings.

Expanded Library Service in Doubt

Members of the Thief River Falls library board and Pennington county officials who attended the meeting in Warren Thursday night to explore the possibilities of expanding library service in Northwestern Minnesota under the provisions of new federal and state grants of aid, report that acceptance of such a program is still doubtful.

The county boards of Polk, Marshall and Pennington counties were represented at the meeting and library officials from these counties and Kittson participated in the discussion. It was reported that Roseau and Red Lake counties were not interested. No action was taken and no recommendations were adopted.

To Hold Poultry Short Course at U. Starting July 22

Flock Selecting and Pullorum Testing Agents' School is 5 Day Course

About 100 persons will attend the annual Flock Selecting and Pullorum Testing Agents' school July 22-26 on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota, according to J. O. Christianson, director of agricultural short courses. Elton Johnson, head of the University's department of poultry husbandry, is program chairman for the event.

Pullorum is an important disease in turkeys and chickens in Minnesota, but can be controlled through testing and eliminating infected birds. Poultry hatchery employees and others who attend the school will be instructed in testing procedure.

A ruling of the Minnesota Poultry Improvement Board and the state Livestock Sanitary Board requires that a person must attend this school for at least two years and pass at least two examinations to qualify as a flock selecting or pullorum testing agent.

Topics at the school will include selection standards and procedures, pullorum testing and eradication and instruction on other poultry diseases and programs for controlling them.

Frequent Rains Bring Crop Disease Problems

Recent rainy weather has resulted in heavier attacks of some plant diseases on southern Minnesota crops this summer, J. J. Christensen, head of the University of Minnesota plant pathology department, said last week.

He added, however, that weather during the rest of the summer will determine the seriousness of these diseases in the northern half of the state. He spoke during a field plot tour for some 200 persons attending the summer conference of the North Central division of the American Phytopathological society, meeting on the St. Paul campus.

Christensen said that "blue dwarf"—a relatively new virus disease—is showing up more than usual in oats. Symptoms are stiff, rigid plants, short leaves and reduced yields.

Crown rust has shown up more on oats in southern Minnesota than a year ago, but stem rust is less prevalent now than in 1956.

Many foliage diseases, caused by bacteria and fungi, have shown up in barley this summer. There has been increased occurrence of head blight, leaf blight, root blight and kernel blight in barley. Virus diseases more serious than usual in barley this summer are yellow dwarf and fall-stripe.

Virtually no rust has appeared on flax, mostly because of resistance in varieties being grown. There is some yellowing in flax, due mostly either to excessive water or to high-lime soil conditions. The most common disease in flax this year is "astor yellows" which distorts the flower and prevents the plant from producing seed.

Some root rot has resulted in corn, which may be the reason why some corn fields are uneven in growth. Good weather through the rest of the summer, though, could correct this condition, Christensen said. Warm weather during the past week, he added, has been extremely helpful to crops that have been suffering from root rot.

Examinations for Plumbers' Licenses Held in September

Examinations for state master and Journeyman plumbers' licenses will be held on September 9 and 19, on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota, according to an announcement by the state department of health. Examinations for the journeymen licenses will be given on Monday, September 9, and for master plumbers the following day.

The examinations will be given in rooms 20, 303 and 305 in the agricultural engineering building.

$12 Million Highway Bonds Will Be Sold

The state of Minnesota has issued a call for bids to be submitted July 16 for the purchase of $12 million of trunk highway bonds. The call provides that the money will be available by August 1. Seven milion of the funds are to be used for the purchase of needed right of way, highway officials reported, and the remaining $5 million for construction of bridges.

The bond money for right of way will be expanded on a revolving basis to accelerate purchase of needed right of way in anticipation of the receipt of federal aid authorized for trunk highway projects, including the new interstate routs.

On the interstate routes, the federal aid will replace 90 per cent of the state's expenditures and on other state trunk routes, 50 per cent. Also, the bond funds can be used on trunk highway for which no federal aid is available.

The bond fund for bridges will go to meet the state's share of bridge construction costs on trunk highways.

The 1955 state legislature authorized $20 million of bonds for trunk highway bridges, of which $4 million were issued a year ago. The 1957 Legislature authorized a similar $20 million of bonds for right of way purchases. The $12 million of bonds now to be sold are anticipated by state highway officials to meet right of way bridge needs for the new fiscal year which began yesterday.

During the past year it took 3,172,812 lbs. of fresh and frozen beef to satisfy the appetites of bluejackets at the world's largest Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois.

World Collection Aids Crop Improvement

Some 10,000 crop varieties from around the world are aiding University of Minnesota scientists in their battle against plant diseases, persons attending the summer conference of the North Central division of the American Phytopathological society were told today.

The group visited the "world collection" of crop varieties at the University's Agricultural Experiment Station where 3,000 varieties each of wheat, oats and barley and 1,000 flax varieties are being tested for resistance to plant disease organisms in a "survival of the fittest" project started last year.

J. J. Christensen, head of the University's plant pathology department, told the group that many of the varieties being grown may be good as breeding material, even if they aren't practical for Minnesota farms in their present form.

"The reason," he said, "is that some of these foreign varieties have resistance to diseases common in Minnesota. Plant breeders can use such varieties as 'parent material' in developing new varieties that combine disease resistance with good yielding characteristics."

One of the main reasons for having the world collection of flax, Christensen said, was to find flax varieties with resistance to Pasmo. No flax varieties grown so far, he stated, have much resistance to that disease.

Steps are being taken at Kansas State College to isolate strains of so-called "lowland switchgrass." This type of grass is larger and coarser than the upland form and may have a place in low-lying areas where moisture is less limited.

Saving a Life

In dealing with matters on which we are uninformed it is easy to take for granted a lot of things that are not true.

We have assumed, for instance, that it is in the good old summer time that the folks in the dairy industry have it their best. That's what we thought until one afternoon last week when we spent a couple of hours convincing a dairy products "quality" man that he should not destroy himself and that life still could be beautiful.

In the dairy industry the good old summer time brings with it special seasonal problems for both the producer and the processor. Hot weather and flies and mosquitos make bossy a discontented cow, and production drops off. These are the months of milk shortages.

And these are the months that require extra effort to maintain high quality standards, from the time the milk is gathered on the farm until it is delivered to the consumer. Dairy products are highly perishable. Low temperatures are essential to the preservation of their sweetness, and maintaining low temperatures from the milking to the marketing becomes increasingly difficult.

These are good things for us to keep in mind these hot days as we enjoy cool glasses of pure, sweet milk. It is pure and sweet because it has had a lot of extra special care by both the producer and the processor in this season of hot weather.

Milk is not only the best food but the biggest food bargain available to you today.

These are some of the things we told the quality man we would say if he would agree not to make his wife a widow with five fatherless children.

'Outs' Versus the 'Ins'

According to Senator Hubert Humphrey the department of agriculture has failed to act as promptly and as effectively as it should have in providing emergency assistance for Minnesota farmers whose crops have been damaged and destroyed by floods.

The department of agriculture has several agencies under its jurisdiction which have been authorized by Congress from time to time to deal with special farm problems. As far as we know none of these agencies has been created in recent years, and all of them have years of experience behind them during which their operations have been subject to review and revision by Congress. The only one of these agencies that has been given new responsibilities in recent years is the one that now is administering the soil conservation program, which still is in a trial and error stage.

Officials responsible for the administration of these various agencies say that they are doing everything they can do within the limitations of the authority that has been given to them. They deny that they have failed in the performance of their duty.

We think it is well that the Senator has raised the question. The charges he has made are serious and deserve a thorough investigation in Congress by responsible committees. These agencies have been created by Congress and their jurisdictions have been prescribed and defined by Congress. If they are not acting as Congress intended they should then Congress can, and should order the necessary changes.

The position of those who direct the activities of these agencies however, is strengthened by the fact that they seem to have functioned satisfactorily in dealing with many other disasters in many other states. The present conditions in several areas of Minnesota are unusual in Minnesota, but disaster is not an unusual thing in terms of our country as a whole. During the past year, and in recent months, there have been many disaster areas in the country, and these agencies have been called upon many times to give assistance to individuals and to communities and to states, within the limitations of their authority.

Under the circumstances, our guess is that the men who are directing these agencies are doing all that can be done, to the best of their abilities, to get good results and accomplish the purposes for which they were established. To fail in this would be contrary to their own best interests.

And we think it is not unfair to observe that it would be contrary to Senator Humphrey's best interests as a politician if these agencies, under the direction of an administration he is trying to defeat, were to be considered by the voters to be successful. He obviously is personally interested in having it appear that the men who are now directing these activities are not only unsympathetic but thoroughly antagonistic to the interests of the distressed farmers they are directed to help.

This is not a new situation. There are new names and new faces among the actors but the plot is as old as politics itself, the perpetual struggle between those who want to sit in the driver's seat.

If all of the statesmen who are scheduled to attend that meeting at Oklee Wednesday night make the usual short speeches there probably will have to be a brief recess for breakfast Thursday morning. And one more "if" about that meeting. If we could get the cows of our community to develop a liking for political hay, there would be no shortage of feed in the area next winter.

Immigrants and Culture

(Toronto, Canada, Financial Post)

Some of the immigrants who have recently arrived in Canada from Europe have been highly critical of the lack, in Canada, of some of the appurtenances of civilized living. Libraries, bookstores, theatres, concert halls and art galleries are too scarce, they say, and the cost of books, concert tickets and theatre admissions is too high in relation to other prices.

Critical comment never makes an immigrant popular, and these newcomers have encountered the "if-you-don't-like-it-here-why-don't-you-go-back-where-you-came-from response.

We hope they don't take it too seriously.

And we hope they go on demanding the cultural opportunities they have been used to at home. If they do, they could accomplish more for Canadian culture than the Massey Commission and the Canada Council.

What culture needs is not commissions, but customers: people who want to read books, see plays and hear music, and are willing to pay to do so; people who, when faced with the question of whether to buy a new hat or a new book, will choose the book.

This is what the arts in Canada have lacked: citizens who will vote for culture not by raising their hand at a committee meeting, but by passing the cash across the counter.

There were many "hardy pioneers" who came to Canada, found it uncivilized, and set about creating a new civilization. If today's newcomers deplore our lack of cultural amenities, we hope they will help us set about providing them.

Bouquet to Minnesota

(Hoard's Dairyman)

A special tribute is due to the great dairy state of Minnesota. It has just become the seventh state to be declared "modified-certified brucellosis-free."

We have a warm spot in our hearts for Minnesota and its long, eventually victorious campaign to stamp out brucellosis (Bang's disease). When many states were throwing in the towel in the middle and late 40's, Minnesota only intensified its efforts to bring the disease under control.

The tenacity of Dr. Ralph West, Minnesota's state veterinarian, was reflected not only in his own state but in the nation as well. For years he has served in a leadership capacity for the entire country. We recall many occasions when heavy pressures were applied to unduly loosen the requirements for herd and area certification. Dr. West fought long and hard to stem the "liberal" tide. While he had to give way in some instances, his influence helped keep the national campaign on a sound and even keel.

The fact that North Carolina, Maine, New Hampshire, Washington, Wisconsin, and Delaware preceded Minnesota in certification dims not one bit the luster of Minnesota's achievement. It is significant that this state, more than any other yet certified, had great numbers of not only dairy cattle but beef cattle and hogs. In our opinion, the task was more difficult.

But this only serves to emphasize what we have asserted for many years, that any state can control and eradicate brucellosis. All that it takes is the will and the perseverance to get the job done. The campaign need not be expensive. We have economical means of detecting the disease now. Vaccination has lowered the incidence.

Frankly, we cannot think of a single logical excuse for any state not being well on the way to freedom from brucellosis and the abortions it causes.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—My husband, a World War II veteran, bought a home with a GI loan. Shortly afterward, he died of a service-connected condition. As an unremarried widow, would I still be entitled to a GI loan, even though he used his benefit before his death?

A—Yes. The service-connected death of your husband would entitle you to a GI loan, even though he obtained one before he died.

Q—A friend of mine died without choosing a method of settlement of his GI insurance policy. But he did name his wife as beneficiary. How will she receive the insurance proceeds?

A—She will receive the proceeds in 36 monthly installments. But she does have the right to choose any other installment option of payment. She cannot, however, receive the money in one lump sum.

Q—I was in military service for one year when I was wounded in Korea and had to be discharged for disability. How much vocational rehabilitation training would I be entitled to?

A—Vocational rehabilitation training does not depend upon your length of service. You may train for as long as is necessary to restore your employability, up to a maximum of four years and in some cases even longer.

Q—I am going to a trade school under the Korean GI Bill, and I understand I am allowed up to 30 days of absence a year. Do legal holidays count as absences?

A—No. Legal holidays do not count as absences.

SCANNING THE NEWS

FARM leaders in Washington split on the question before two House subcommittees on the matter of taking regulation of the meat packing industry away from the Department of Agriculture and placing it in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission.

Approach to the question of the meat packers is made from two angles: (1) that the Packers, through the operation of "private" stockyards, and direct over-the-fence purchase from producers, drive down the prices to the live stock producers, and (2) because the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921 which gives jurisdiction to the Department of Agriculture, does not cover the big chain grocers, of which today own their own meat packing departments, so are not subject to any anti-trust regulation by the FTC, since they come under jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture. And the Department of Agriculture takes no action whatever on anti-trust regulation.

According to witness before the committee, the practice of operating "private" stock yards where there is no open competitive buying, as opposed to the public government regulated yards where livestock is purchased on an open bid basis is one of the evils which tends to drive down the price of livestock to the producers, since there is no regulation whatever of these private yards. They are used by so-called "professional" shippers who are given the right by the packers to exclusive purchase in a given territory and who ship to the private yards in car-load lots and at favored prices.

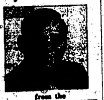
Frank K. Woolley, Legislative Counsel for the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the House Anti-Trust subcommittee that neither the Department of Agriculture nor the packers were to blame for problems facing livestock producers, that the Farm Bureau opposed enactment of the legislation to transfer jurisdiction over meat packer trade practices from the Department to the Federal Trade Commission.

Woolley said that prices on beef cattle had been driven from $28.70 in 1951 to about $18.00 in 1956, and hogs roughly from $30 in 1951 to about $14.40 in 1956 because of an excess supply of meat animals directly attributable "to competition created as a result of the federal farm program." He blamed this price drop on acreage control programs which have forced farmers to shift from basic crops to feed grains and hay.

"There is only one place for such increased feed supplies to go and that is into livestock and products closely competitive with livestock products, such as poultry. Livestock production is at an all time high and livestock product prices have been depressed as a result of the high volume of production," Woolley said. And yet in Washington supermarkets only a short time ago the only meat at retail under $1 per pound was hamburger, stew meat and frankfurters.

Angus McDonald, assistant legislative secretary of the National Farmers Union, said his organization supported the measure which would remove administration of the Packers and Livestock Act of 1921 from the Department of Agriculture and place it in the Federal Trade Commission.

SENATOR THYE Reports TO YOU from the UNITED STATES SENATE



Floods Point Up Need For Flood Control

The recent floods throughout Minnesota once again point up the necessity for adequate flood control projects and the need for a well coordinated disaster program on both the State and Federal levels of government. Occasionally there are those who challenge the expenditure of Federal funds for flood control projects on the grounds that they constitute an unnecessary expenditure. However, the responsibility for providing protection against loss and damage due to floods is a joint responsibility of the Federal government and local interests.

Civil Defense Acts During Disasters

There are many Federal agencies which have authority to act in times of disaster. All of these agencies are working in Minnesota at the present time. I have been in close contact with them since the first reports of the floods were issued.—The President has declared wide areas of Minnesota as disaster areas. This allows the Civil Defense Administration to use disaster funds for repair and replacement of essential public facilities. Civil Defense assumes responsibility when the President makes his disaster declaration. This is preceded by a request from the Governor of the State involved. Civil Defense also serves as coordinator of all disaster programs of other agencies.

Farmer's Home Administration To Aid Farmers

The Farmer's Home Administration has authority to declare disaster areas and to extend assistance to farmers who have crops, buildings, machinery, fences, etc. The FHA can make loans to farmers either under its regular loan authority or under its disaster loan authority.—FHA personnel are now surveying the damage in Minnesota and have declared four counties as disaster areas. Our State Director is Mr. Gordon Klenk. He is located in the Federal Courts Building, St. Paul.

Federal Housing Will Assist Stricken

The Federal Housing Authority will make a 100% loan up to $12,000 with no down payment to those who have had their homes totally destroyed or damaged beyond repair. It also makes repair loans available to those who have had their homes partially damaged. FHA personnel are also available for assistance and advice on rehabilitation of damaged homes. Our State Director, Mr. Wallace Berg, is located in the Produce Bank Building, Minneapolis.

Information Available From Senator Thye

All of these agencies will be most willing to cooperate with any person who has suffered damage or loss from the recent floods. I have a limited number available which set forth what these agencies can do to assist.

"Young Stranger" Unveils New Star

"The Young Stranger," opening Wednesday at the Falls Theatre, introduces 18-year-old James MacArthur to the movie-going public in the title role of a modern-day drama about a teen-ager's struggle to be understood by his family, particularly by his too-busy father. Kim Hunter and James Daly co-star with MacArthur, playing his parents.

Not only is "The Young Stranger" MacArthur's first movie, it is also 28-year-old Stuart Millar's first assignment as a producer and marks 26-year-old John Frankenheimer's bow as a film director. The script is 26-year-old Robert Dozier's first screen play. Dozier and Frankenheimer have had successful careers in TV, and Millar was William Wyler's assistant on such fine films as "Friendly Persuasion."

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor of Times:

I cannot leave those statement of Mr. Maidment and Mr. Habedank go unchallenged.

It Mr. Maidment would put the shoe on the other foot it would be better. For it has been the Goodridge School district that has been the slave and needs to be free from a tax burden that these districts should have helped pay for years and not try and pull away and try to get bargains someplace else.

I know it is true that several of the boys went to Crookston and the girls went to Goodridge. Some of the parents said the reason they sent the boys to Crookston was it was only six months term and they needed the boys on the farm as help was hard to get.

I cannot see where Mr. Habedank has any reason to complain as he went to Goodridge high school and his wife has taught there for a few years. It seems that after they received their education for nearly nothing it hurts to pay a few dollars in taxes.

It has been stated that the Goodridge school was paying teachers $300 less a year than some of the larger schools are paying but they would find out that after paying for an apartment they would not be making as much as they were in Goodridge and could not be home every night.

As far as your interests being in Thief River Falls it is the trading center of most of the people as far as Thorhult. Now boys jump in and get your feet wet and you will find us to be the same nice people we were forty years ago and it won't be a tax burden on any one as we did not bond to the limit and at the hearing at Thief River Falls they said Thief River Falls had..

Thank you.

OLD FASHIONED HOME

By Fran Rachter

SHIRLEY'S return from Briar College for summer vacation made the change in her very apparent and real to her parents. They had an inkling from her letters that college had altered her views, but had expected some change as it was her first time away from home. Little did they expect to meet up with critical comment as to their mode of living the minute she entered. It seemed that a fellow named Jim Sutherland was due to visit her and he, being very wealthy, would look down on her to find her parents living as they did. Her mother [illegible] her comments in silence but her dad refused to take it lightly.

"That danged school and that fellow has made a snob of our girl and I don't like it."

Martha attempted to calm him by saying, "Now Ed, don't fret. I understand Shirley. All girls go through a period like this."

"I understand, too, but there's a limit. Why just last evening she suggested I dress for dinner and that I put my shoes on when the Elders came to visit. Why we've known them for years and Ben Elder don't care if I keep my shoes on or not."

Shirley entered in time to hear her dad's comments. "Oh dad, don't make such a fuss. It wasn't just because the Elders were coming. It just that I want to get you out of some of your habits before Jim comes. They live in a penthouse and they're just not used to living as you do."

As time grew near for Jim's visit Ed began to notice definite changes taking place in his home. Gone were many familiar objects that were Martha's dearest possessions. First to disappear was the stitched motto "God Bless Our Home" that had hung over the mantle for as long as he could remember, then the antimacassers vanished off the furniture. He seethed inwardly but kept quiet until he saw Martha's beautiful patchwork quilt replaced by a luxurious nylon spread with matching draperies. He blew up, threatening to take Shirley out to the woodshed and beat some sense into her. His comments as to their guest were unprintable. A letter came announcing that Jim's mother would be coming too and this made Martha and Shirley work all the harder to ready the place.

On the day of their scheduled arrival Ed was very quiet and his wife knew that he was [illegible] and that [illegible] trouble. Jim's mother proved to be a charming person as did her son, but her comment, "This place is so charming and quaint," did nothing to endear her to Ed.

At dinner all ate with evident enjoyment and with the meal over Jim's mother turned to Ed saying, "I've a hunch our coming has disrupted your home life. There's a discordant note here and I think I know what it is." All stared at her in surprise as she continued, "I grew up in a home just like this, loved every minute of it too, but there are things missing that belong here." She turned to Martha, "For example, there should be a motto over that fireplace and antimacassars on those chairs. I'll confess that while upstairs I peeked into your room and saw that beautiful quilt on your bed. With our room done so modernly, I suspect that Shirley had a hand in this. Am I right?"

"You guessed right. Shirley felt we weren't toney enough for you folks."

Jim spoke then, looking directly at Shirley, "Shirl, you're a dope. Mom's mother has a place just like this in Connecticut and we love to spend time out there. Come on let's make this place look like it should."

ARKANSAS MARSHMALLOW

By Allen Wishert

BOB ANDREWS, former inhabitant of Calico Rock, Arkansas, now permanently located in the Pan-Handle country, had earned for himself the unique sobriquet; "Arkansas Marshmallow."

Bob was a new hand on the outfit and his initiation was coming up, the one the circle-S had adopted the day That Haygood was hired as foreman.

The spread was the possessor of a rangy, roan semi-wild prairie mustang that not one waddie on the Western Plains had ever spurred the second time. Devils Postpile, the title a California citizen who had visited the National Monument, tacked onto the Texas Tornado just after his first set-to with the mare.

The day Thad Haygood joined the outfit, Devils Postpile was the topic of conversation.

"Say, Thad," Jerry Ketchum was speaking. "You bein' from up Dakota way, reckon, you've done some fancy ridin'."

"Can't say as to the fancy," replied Thad. "But I've done my share."

"Ever been throwed?"

"Once, and that couldn't be laid to my door. The boys got careless, let the mankiller break before I got both feet in the stirrups."

"Jerry, I've never won any medals for brone-bustin', but I'm willing to put on a show for the boys."

Devils Postpile was snubbed and blind-folded, a saddle eased onto her back. Thad eased off the top rail into the saddle. The boys allowed him plenty time to get set, then swished the rope and blinder off. Postpile stood spraddle-legged for the tenth part of a second, then she plunged, no sun-fish had ever thought of the twist she executed. Thad gathered himself from the dirt and made a flying leap for the corral railing, he won by half a length. Postpile stood below expressing her opinion by snorting and pawing.

Bob Andrews, two weeks ago, rode up to the bunk-house and asked the whereabouts of the foreman. After contact and much palaver he was hired on condition that he mount and remain in the saddle attached to the hurricane deck of Devils Postpile for three solid minutes.

"Gimme a look-see at the critter," said Bob.

"She's in yonder corral," replied Brad. "Give a look then decide."

The next morning, for some unaccountable reason, Bob was missing. No one worried, only wondered, and was sure they had the correct answer.

Sundown and Bob arrived at the ranch simultaneously. He explained that an urgent errand had "Tooken" him to Amarillo. He was clutching a paper bag.

Every spare moment Bob was perched on the top rail of the corral wherein his opponent rambled.

The eventful day arrived, arrangements completed. Bob cupped his hand, placed it against Postpiles nozzle. Postpile champed at the bit. Bob slid into the saddle, breaths were abated, Postpile snorted, swung her head around almost touching Bob's knee, again the cupped hand covered her nozzle, again she champed at the bit. Then trotted around the corral as gracefully as a circus pony.

A miracle had happened, they clamored for an explanation, and Bob obliged.

"Had a gal once, she had more fire and brimstone than a wild horse could pack. Folks 'lowed she couldn't be tamed. I fed her marshmallows a couple of weeks. Afterwards, she followed me around like Mary's Little Lamb."

Remove Grass Stains According to Fabric

Grass, foliage and flower stains—a frequent summer laundry problem—can be safely removed from most washable clothing if the treatment is suited to the fabric.

If you know the fabric is washable, first try rubbing soap or synthetic detergent into the grass or plant stain and then wash the garment, suggest extension clothing specialists at the University of Minnesota. Or, if a test on an inside edge of a seam or other hidden part of the garment shows alcohol won't affect the dye, sponge the stain with alcohol. Use alcohol diluted with water on acetate fabrics.

For stubborn stains, you can use a sodium perborate bleach. Sprinkle the moist stain with bleach, cover the garment with a solution made of 1 tablespoon of sodium perborate per pint of water, and let it soak several hours or overnight. Use cool water for wool, silk and Dynel, and hot water for other washable fabrics. Rinse well.

If the plant stains still are stubborn, you can use stronger sodium perborate on the stain and dip it into very hot or boiling water. Rinse well, and repeat if necessary.

Chlorine and sodium perborate bleaches generally remove the same types of stains, says the specialists. However, chlorine bleaches should never be used on wool, silk, blends containing these fibers or on many of the new "wash and wear" cottons that have resin finishes.

YOUTHFUL DRIVER HITS POWER POLL

(Crookston Times)

An automobile accident early this morning left a large section of Crookston without electrical power for about three and half hours.

A car driven by Kenenth Grove, 16, of Climax, struck a power pole at the corner of Fifth street and North Main, at 2:30 a.m., breaking a high voltage wire and causing a blackout of a large part of the northeastern section of the city.

St. Francis Hospital was without regular power for the full duration of the blackout, according to Sister Charitas, hospital administator, but the hospital's emergency power unit was put into use, preventing any serious results.

GRAFTON REMEMBERS TORNADO 10 YEARS AGO

(Walsh County Record)

Just 10 yeras ago Wednesday evening a twisting, "bouncing" tornado whipped down from Canada and claimed a toll of eight lives in Walsh county, only two less than the number killed by the tornado that hit Fargo recently.

The whirling funnel of death and destruction struck northeastern Walsh county a few minutes before 7 o'clock and traveled south and east, struck the Oslo area about an hour later. It exhausted its fury a short time later in the vicinity of Alvarado, Minn., where the last damage was reported.

The tornado left in its wake, in addition to the total of 11 recorded deaths, many injured besides the 15 mentioned and property damage totaling thousands of dollars.

FOX BOUNTIES OUT IN KITTSON COUNTY

(Karlstad Advocate)

Game Warden Paul Blid announced this week that the County Commissioners of Kittson County have lifted the bounty on fox, and this will go into effect on July 13. The bounty the past year has been $4.00, but the county will no longer pay anything for the killing of fox.

Pennington county has already taken off the bounty on fox and it is expected that the other counties in the area already have or will follow suit in the near future.

Mr. Blid said that the theory is that the bounty doesn't seem to do any good, and that nature will take care of the fox itself.

HAILED OVER 300 SQUARE MILES

(Stephen Messenger)

Hail swept over the Stephen area early Saturday evening in what was undoubtedly the most disastrous onslaught of its kind ever experienced in Marshall county.

The affected area covers approximately 300 square miles in the western portion of the county, and embraces territory from the Red River on the west to about a mile east of Highway 75. From north to south damage areas are from about 2 miles north of Stephen to the south county line. Local insurance offices, since deluged with damage claims running from light to total, estimate the crop loss at about $2,000,000.

R. L. FALLS HAS TRUCK RUNAWAY

(Red Lake Falls Gazette)

Wednesday evening a gravel truck parked for a few moments at Myers Cafe, got loose tho in gear, and driverless, rolled down the hill across the Clearwater river bridge and down the highway over the bank of the river past the mill and lodged against the trees. The truck belonged to McLaughlin and Schultz, contractors of Marshall, and it was empty. It was in use transporting bituminous road covering for a stock pile near St. Hilaire. The truck was being hauled up by wreckers as this was written, and did not appear to have been much damaged. It is a miracle no one was in the way as the truck took its solitary journey.

BAUDETTE BRIDGE BILL PASSED

(Baudette Region)

Word by telephone July 2nd from Senator Edward J. Thye to T. H. Rowell, municipal bridge committee chairman, gave the information that a bill permitting the construction of a bridge across the Rainy river at Baudette has passed both the House and Senate and was expected to be signed by the President the next day.

Senator Thyre previously was instrumental in assisting the Village of Baudette to secure a loan against revenue bonds on the bridge from the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Mr. Rowell announces that construction progress is being made and as soon as clearance is received from the United States Corps of Engineers and the custom and immigration services on both sides of the river the village can expect to call for bids on the bridge construction.

WILLIAMS HAS POWER HEADACHE

(Baudette Region)

Williams voters will be asked July 22 whether they wish to sell the municipally owned electrical utility, Citizens Utilities, according to the Williams Northern Light. A public meeting Monday night hashed over the issues involved.

The Williams council, said the Northern Light, is convinced that it must choose one of the following courses: 1. Sell 2. Borrow an estimated $50,000 to improve service or 3. Face loss of numerous customers to REA.

EDITOR GETS SPEED TICKET

(Fertile Journal)

The editor of the Fertile Journal, Owen K. Knudson, was issued a traffic ticket last Sunday at Mahnomen for exceeding the speed limit, which incidentally is now ABSOLUTE.

The custom of tipping stems from 16th and 17th-century coffee houses in England. Customers were expected to drop coins in a brass-bound box inscribed "To Insure Promptness," later reduced to the initials TIP. Called Penny universities, the coffee houses were seats of wit and learning. When Charles II closed them as places of sedition in 1765 the protest was so severe that he quickly, revoked his proclamation.

Higher Solubility Improves Phosphate

Higher water solubility in phosphate fertilizers is increasing growth in wheat fields trials, Merle Halvorson, soils research worker at the University of Minnesota states. He said that when fertilized with phosphate which was 85-90 percent water-soluble, wheat had grown to 15-20 percent height and was 2-3 day farther along in maturity than whet receiving low-solubility phosphate.

These trials were set up to test the effect of phosphate solubility on wheat and corn growth in the high-lime soils of western Minnesota. Phosphate solubility percentages being tested are 0-3, 18-20, 40-45, 60-65 and 85-90 percent.

It's too early to note any differences in corn growth from the solubilite differences, but Halvorson pointed to visible difference in wheat. The greater the solubility, the higher the wheat had grown.

In wheat, the fertilizer is being tested at three different rates 6, 12 and 18 pounds of phosphate per acre—and was applied with wheat in the drill row.

Many Attended Oklee Farm Distress Meeting

Rep. Coya Knutson Attends Meeting to Plan Flood Relief

More than 400 farmers, county, and local officials and businessmen, representing seven northwest counties gathered at Oklee last night for the second area-wide meeting for flood striken farmers.

Seated along with the members from the USDA Disaster Coordinating Committee were Ninth district Congresswoman Coya Knutson; Gov. Freeman's personal representative, Norris Ellertson, state deputy commissioner of agriculture and Kermit Hansen, FHA administrator from Washington, D. C.

William Seeger, Mayor of Oklee, opened the meeting at 9 p. m. and introduced Rep. Ben Wichterman of Plummer, who presided. Officials and businessmen were called upon to report on flood conditions and damage in their respective districts and to offer suggestions for immediate and future action.

Members speaking for the Minnesota USDA Disaster committee were Frank Forbes, representing the state extension service; Herbert Halverson, representing the State Conservationist; Ed George, Civil Defense coordinator; Gordon Klenk, state director of the FHA and Kermit Hansen, FHA administrator from Washington.

The members informed the farmers of the types of assistance available for disaster areas. In general it was a summary of those services the FHA and other agencies already offer to the farmer. It was recommended that farmers contact their local administrators to find out what loans and services they can qualify for.

Speaking for the ASC, Floyd Sjolander, believed the impact from the present disaster would be felt 8 or 9 months from now when farmers begin to feel the loss of their harvest.

As for soil bank, Sjolander, said that little can be done to change the present soil bank program as it now is set up. And it will take an act of congress to change the program.

Norris Ellertson, speaking on behalf of Gov. Freeman, said that regulations like other things were made to be broken, and they can be broken in a day . . . or in 15 minutes. All it takes is a little will power.

After three hours of reports and suggestions the chairman of the meeting summarized the conditions putting them into three main categories: He agreed the main problem was that of obtaining feed for livestock, and the immediate need was now that of obtaining pasture land.

The basic problem he said was "tight money." It is he said, impossible for the farmer to harvest 60 percent of his crop and pay bills he has accumulated over a 8 or 10 year period. Looking to the future he thought the problem to be one of obtaining special APC payments for rehabilitation.

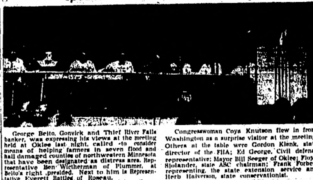
At midnight Robert Bergland of Greenbush offered a set of resolutions urging: That an appeal be made to the FHA to ask their assistance through an intermediate credit program to give financial aid in sufficient amounts so as to enable a farmer to consolidate his accumulated indebtedness to be repaid over a period of not less than ten years.

That the USDA release that soil bank acreage that is growing a hay crop to be harvested as hay and that the farmer may still be eligible to receive his soil bank payment as contracted.

That an immediate grant be given those distressed farm operators to secure hay and seeds to maintain their livestock enterprises.

That a watershed area for the Red River and its tributaries be established so as to survey the entire area and initiate a drainage development program.

Speakers Table at Oklee Meeting



George Beito, Gonvick and Thief River Falls banker, was expressing his views at the meeting held at Oklee last night, called to consider means of helping farmers in seven flood and hail damaged counties of northwestern Minnesota that have been designated as distress area. Representative Ben Wichterman of Plummer, at Beito's right presided. Next to him is Representative Everett Battles of Roseau.

Congresswoman Coya Knutson flew in from Washington as a surprise visitor at the meeting. Others at the table were Gordon Klenk, state director of the FHA; Ed George, Civil defense representative; Mayor Bill Seeger of Oklee; Floyd Sjolander, state ASC chairman; Frank Forbes, representing the state extension service and Herb Halverson, state conservationist.

Matheson Points out Need of Better Control of Cash

At a lengthy session Tuesday evening that continued until 1:30 a.m., the city council transacted a variety of business, and received from Homer Matheson, Grand Forks accountant, a detailed report on his recently completed audit of the city books for 1956, together with suggestions for improving present methods of record-keeping to give better control over the various city departments.

Stating that he had noted a considerable improvement in records during the past year, Matheson said a more complete control of cash receipts is necessary, and he also recommended setting up a fiscal year ending June 30 rather than December 31.

He recommended that monthly bills for city services be mailed out in order to encourage payment by mail, thus relieving congestion in the city clerk's office.

The council took the suggestions under advisement, and indicated its intention of adopting some of them.

Roy Barzen and Lawrence Bjorkman appeared in behalf of the park board to suggest improvements in the streets in Tindolph park in connection with the projected street program. After discussing the matter with City Engineer Douglas Stewart, the council deferred action.

Nearly $80,000 in building permits were approved at the session, the projects including new homes to be erected by Donald L. Olson, at 1302 Duluth av. N.; Stanley Ranum, 514 Kneale av. S.; and Iver Nelson & Sons, 337 Merriam av. N.

The council reappointed Cecil [illegible] to the firemen's civil service commission, and confirmed Mayor O. D. [illegible] reappointment of Dr. W. P. Kaisler to the city recreation board for a three-year term. Notice was received of the resignation of Ole Ness and Lawrence Bjorkman as volunteer firemen, their successors being Jack McGill and Loren Borsheim.

Pending a conference, the council withheld approval of a resolution adopted July 8 by the county board designating certain county highways and streets in Thief River Falls as part of the state highway system and thus eligible for state funds under a new allotment system.

The council issued an order for the setting up of Stop signs at the intersection of Taft st. and Tindolph av.

Other members of the advisory committee are Supt. Irwin Mickelson, L. B. Hartz, Mrs. Paul Lundgren, James Roche and W. E. Dahlquist.

Dairy Princess Wins Added Honors

She will be entered as Miss Detroit Lakes in the Queen of the Lakes contest to be held in connection with the Minneapolis Aquatennial, starting Friday.

Jaycee Aquacade Is Postponed to Aug. 4

A joint announcement by N. H. Korteum, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Joe M. Mead, president of the Thief River Falls Water Sports club, revealed that the Jaycee Aquacade, previously planned for July 21, has been postponed to Sunday, August 4. The reason for the change in schedule, according to Glenn Peterson, in charge of the Aquacade, is that cold weather during June had prevented water skiers from holding practice sessions.

River skiing activities are now in full swing, as witnessed by picnickers and park users the past two weeks. This year, the Jaycees have received the cooperation of the Water Sports club in staging the Aquacade. The club is a group of water sports enthusiasts and boat operators who have formed an organization for the promotion of, and for greater safety in all water sports conducted in and near Thief River Falls.

The Jaycee Aquacade will get under way at approximately 2 p. m. on August 4, with a huge boat parade. Miss Thief River Falls, Miss Marion Hogenson, who was recently selected to represent this city, will reign over the event as the guest of honor.

Angle to Be Taken out of Highway 59 West of Newfolden

Highway Department Is Planning New Route to Follow Soo Line Tracks

A new 11-mile, bituminous stretch of U. S. highway 59, 5 miles shorter and 100 percent straighter, is being planned for Newfolden to Strandquist, according to Ervin Pearson, state highway department engineer.

Survery crews are now plotting the final mile or two, and the design of the highway will be in the drawing board stage next month.

According to the state highway department, construction of the new route will probably begin early next spring.

The new 11 mile stretch, five miles shorter than the present route, will follow the Soo line tracks from the northern village limits of Strandquist to Newfolden.

Presently, U. S. Highway 59, runs west from Newfolden to the Old Mill park, then due north to Strandquist, forming the base and perpendicular of a right angle. The new stretch will form the hypotenuse of this angle.

The new stretch will be a continuation of the Karlstad-Strandquist route.

Mr. Pearson declined to predict the future plans of the State Highway department, but it would seem likely that some day U. S. 59 will run parallel to the Soo line tracks from Karlstad to this city. To accomplish this, two more angles would have to be eliminated: the present stretch from Halma to Karlstad and Newfolden to Thief River Falls.

Mosquito War Is Now in Full Swing in City

3d Round of Fogging Will Be Completed by This Afternoon

Oscar Bakke, park superintendent, reports that the city has been completely covered twice in the current mosquito eradication project, and he expects to complete the third round by this afternoon.

"We have an unusual condition this year because of the excellent breeding grounds everywhere in the country", said Bakke. "Foliage and grass is very dense. It is difficult to get enough material on the grass and shrubbery at one time to do a lasting job. That is why we ask your patience and assure you that the fogger will be kept on the job until we have achieved control.

"Many people seem to be of the opinion that nothing has been done in their area. We try to start at daylight. Every street and alley has been covered—the only exception being where in a few cases, people have specifically asked that their property be omitted. We do our best to get the best results, wind direction and density of air considered.

"Mosquitoes can travel 7 miles on their own and with wind as much as 10 miles. That is why they never seem to be killed in your yard—they just keep coming in and will continue to do so until we have been able to achieve effective control which will include going beyond the city limits to a limited extent.

"Some people worry about the "spray". We use the same type that is used the country over on fruit trees, vineyards, vegetable acreage of all kinds. That means the every thing that you buy—fresh or canned—has been treated during its growing period for insect control."

"The State of Minnesota says that it is proper to use ½ pound actual DDT and 1/10 pound actual Malathion, with the proper amount of water per acre for farm control of mosquitoes. A 15 or 20 acre plot around the farm stead has been suggested for spraying by air or by ground equipment. This material cannot be applied directly to cattle with a hand sprayer. When applied by air, the quantity is such that it will not contaminate pasture or milk.

Vo-Ag Teachers Hold Building Clinic at TRF Vocational School

To the casual observer walking in the vicinity of Lincoln high school last Monday afternoon, it looked like a new crew of carpenters had been hired to help finish the new area vocational school addition.

Closer inspection; however, revealed that the 24 men, hard at work in the hot weather were vocational agriculture teachers, and they were getting a little practical experience in a new approach to teaching structures.

The project is all part of a workshop. And the portable building they were constructing was a classroom teaching aid.

The program, being presented in a series of four workshops in the state, is conducted as a cooperative venture by the state office of education, the teachers training division of the University of Minnesota and the University agricultural engineering department.

Materials and manuals for the summer workshops are provided by the American Zinc Institute, a non-profit trade association of the zinc industry.

New publications developed for the program include a student manual with source information, a teachers guide with classroom teaching aids, and plans for a building to be erected in the school shop.

The source material includes discussion of economic buildings and how to plan for them. Engineering skills are introduced with a discussion of loads, forces and fasteners.

Factors affecting building materials are discussed and sections are devoted to remodeling and repairing.

The manual is not a complete handbook; rather in much abridged form it explains the essential back-ground needed for learning about farm buildings.

The building, to be used as a classroom aid, provides duplication of work on each of the four corners.

The workshop is a fast moving six-hour program. Three hours are devoted to classroom techniques which briefly cover the background in a manner which will help develop teaching methods. Three more hours are used in the construction of the building.

The course has developed from an effort to create and understanding of farm structures and associated problems but not to make carpenters, engineers or architects out of students.

The course and the materials can be used by teachers in the future for a four week high schol course, or a ten-session adult evening school.

Outlook for Area Library Looks Dim at Warren Session

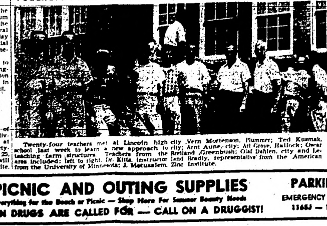
Boards from Six Counties End Meeting Thursday without Taking Action

Library service for a 6-county area in northwestern Minnesota appeared doubtful, at least for the near future, as an area-wide meeting of county commissioners in Warren Thursday night adjourned with out taking any action on the proposal or making any recommendations, the Warren Sheaf reports. Commissioners from Pennington, Marshall, and Polk attended but Roseau Kittson or Red Lake county boards were not represented.

Stating that the 6-county area would have number 1 priority to get federal and state aids if it launched the project soon, Hannis Smith, director of the library division of the state department of education, conducted the meeting and explained the proposal. Miss Emily Mayne, supervisor of extension libraries, also attended the meeting and answered questions.

Numerous questions were asked by interested persons attending but it appeared that the proposal woud not be acted on in time to take advantage of the plan for next year. Board members seemed to feel more time was necessary to gauge public opinion and learn the workings of the proposed system.

Teachers Meet At Workshop To Learn New Approach



Twenty-four teachers met at Lincoln high school last week to learn a new approach to teaching farm structures. Teachers from the area included: left to right. Dr. Kitts, instructor from the University of Minnesota; J. Metusalem, city, Vern Mortenson, Plummer; Ted Kusmak, city; Arnt Aune, city; Art Groye, Hallock; Oscar Breiland, Greenbush; Olaf Dahlen, city and Leland Bradly, representative from the American Zinc Institute.

Most parts of Pennington county Tuesday night received rainfall averaging about half an inch.

Crop Estimates for Nation Down in July

July crop estimates for the country as a whole are substantially reduced from the cheerful June forecast. A July 10 government production report and a July 15 Cargill bulletin agree that total output this year now seems likely to be the smallest since 1951.

The total acreage of 59 crops planted in 1957, estimated at 333 million acres, is nearly 13 million acres under the 1956 total and the lowest by nearly 40 years. "Reduction in acreage for harvest of a number of main crops such as corn, wheat, cotton, flaxseed, rice and tobacco has been more than offset by increases in sorghums, barley, oats and soybeans," the report states.

Scattered heavy showers contributed further to the backward haying conditions in some areas of northwestern Minnesota this week but the general condition probably has improved. Reports on prospects run all the way from exceptionally good to total loss. With favorable weather the harvest probably will get started next week.

To the north of us across the line in Manitoba crop damage in the southern part of the province is estimated by the Winnipeg Tribune at $15 million. Excessive rain and hail is said to have damaged or destroyed approximately 500,000 acres of crops.

Rotarians Told about Vocational School Program

Stan Nelson, Director, Escorts Members on Tour of New School Building

Rotarians were told of the progress being made with the expanded program to be offered this year by the Area Vocational school, at their regular luncheon meeting Monday. Following this report by Stanley Nelson, school director, the members were conducted on a tour of inspection of the building that now is nearing completion.

The new structure will house all of the vocational courses with the exception of those providing advanced business training. Two rooms in the high school building adjoining the new structure will be used for these courses.

Mr. Nelson stated that all equipment for the various courses has been purchased and is being stored in the garage building for the time being. He expects the construction to be close enough to completion by the September 3 opening date so that all of the equipment will be installed and ready for use by that time.

Many inquiries are being received from prospective students and enrollment is proceeding at a satisfactory rate. Courses are being offered in advanced business training, practical nursing, auto mechanics, radio and electronics, beauty culture, carpentry, farm shop and farm management.

Night classes are being provided in several of these courses for adult education.

Know Some Wild Blackberries

Pennington county residents may have a part in the University of Minnesota's efforts to develop better and hardier blackberries, black and red raspberries and blueberries for this state.

Robert Tuveson, botanist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture is now in the field in Minnesota and Wisconsin looking for unusually good wild blackberries, raspberries and blueberries.

The botanist wants to see the wild plants in fruit and get a sample of seed. After visiting all possible location of wild berries, he will return in September and with the permission of the owner, will dig a few plants that are hardy and productive. These plants will be turned over to the University of Minnesota Fruit Breeding Farm and other experiment stations in the North Central states, where they will be propagated and then used as parents with desirable cultivated varieties, in an attempt to develop better fruits for this region.

County residents who know of locations where good fruiting wild blackberries, raspberries and large blueberries grow are urged to write immediately to Professor A. N. Wilcox, Department of Horticulture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, 1. The information to Wilcox should include location of the bushes and probable ripening date.

The University Horticulture department is especially interested, Wilcox says, in finding wild blackberry bushes that survive and produce fruit in open fields and clearings. It is also searching for hardier black and red raspberries and wild blueberries with exceptionalyy large fruits. It is important that Wilcox receives information as soon as possible as to locations and probable ripening date of such fruits. Location of the wild fruits will be kept confidential.

Cooperation of Pennington county residents in providing this information will help fruit breeders develop new and better varieties of berries for the North Central States.

Ornamentals (To Live)

Iris can be transplanted this month. After the blossoms have died and the foliage is beginning to show signs of age, iris can be either transplanted to a new site or divided, as the gardenor sees fit. Careful inspection should be made to see that no diseased roots are transplanted. Transplant into a good rich fertile soil and apply a complete fertilizer at the rate of 2 pounds to 100 square feet. Cover the iris roots with about one inch of soil.

Careful garden grooming this month will add much to the pleasure of the gardenor. Careful edging, watering, removal of dead flowers and control of lawn weeds are essential.

Many other perennials can be transplanted late this month. The peony, oriental poppies, bleeding heart can be transplanted. Tulips can be dug up, as well as all other hardy bulbs, and can be stored until the autumn season when they will be planted again. This is especially important if the gardenor wishes to rejuvenate the soil this summer.

Check Combine

Worn parts or poor adjustment on your combine can rob you of part of your grain crop at harvest time.

D. W. Bates, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Minnesota, lists four main parts on the combine to check closely before you take the machine out of the shed. These parts are the cutterbar and reels or pick-up attachment, cylinder, rack and cleaning shoe.

Replace any broken reel slats, or, on a pick-up combine, replace any broken or badly bent teeth.

Check for even clearance between the cylinder and concaves. You may have to replace concaves that have too much wear in the middle. Adjust the cylinder for the right clearance for the crop you'll be harvesting.

Clean out any plugged rack openings before going out in the field.

Look for obstructions or holes in the sieves. Clean them or make any necessary repairs.

Finally adjust the combine according to the operator's manual for each crop combined. Adjust the power take-off speed, wind blast cylinder speed, travel speed or concave clearance if the grain isn't threshing well.

Credit Planning

A farmer's financial success is often no better than his credit rating.

Most farmers need to borrow money to make money. That's easier to do when you've established a good financial reputation. Keep these points in mind for a good credit rating:

Borrow to boost your income. Lenders expect you to use money they lend you to return a good profit. Dont' let them down.

Make a summary of what you own and what you owe. Your lender will ask for that information and has every right to know it.

Plan your credit needs in advance. Estimate your expenses and income for the coming year.

Keep in touch with your lender. Gain his confidence by frankly discussing your finances.

Stick to one lender. You'll gain his confidence a lot quicker than if he knows you have a number of other financial obligations.

Borrow only as much money as you need.

Work out a repayment plan and make your payments promptly. If you can't meet a particular payment, talk it over with the lender at once.

Spend your money wisely. The most successful borrowers are people who live within their incomes.

Keep complete records of your business. Then your lender can get a better idea of your financial needs.

It's also important to pick your credit source carefully, too, Routhe says. Find out if the prospective lender has experience in your type of loan.

Thieves Take Winger Tigers by 16-4 Score

Locals Play Lakers at Red Lake Falls Next Sunday Night

In a game which found lefty LeRoy Aasland going the route for the Thieves, allowing but five hits althought giving up fifteen walks, the Thieves defeated the Winger Tigers, 16 to 4, in a Northern Minny league game played on the Fair Grounds diamond Wednesday night.

On Sunday night, the Thieves will make the short jaunt to Red Lake Falls where, on the Riverside Park diamond, they will meet the Lakers in a league game.

In Wednesday night's long game, Aasland, in addition to his duties on the mound, proved to be one of ablest run-producers in the local line-up, driving in five runs. In the 2nd inning, Aasland banged out a single into right-center, scoring Glen Carlson and Duane Glass; and in the 8th inning, with the bases jammed, he poled out a double to left-center, plating three runs.

The game was also enlivened by a pair of home runs, both being hit by Thieves' players. In the 2nd inning, Bob Helgeland lofted a long fly ball that carried into the light tower, about five runs up, in left field; and in the 4th inning, Ross Sloan connected for a home run clout over the left field barrier.

Helgeland's home run was his third four-bagger in two games, the well-muscled outfielder having blasted out a pair in the Erskine game on Sunday night.

Johnson to Billings

We learned, from a reliable source, that the S. H. Johnson family will be leaving within the month to establish residence in Billings, Montana.

This item is, of course, of interest to local sports fans, and especially the high school basketball fans, for the S. H. Johnson family includes Keith Johnson, the play-making guard on the Prowlers district champions last season.

There is no question that Keith's departure will provide aid and comfort for the Prowlers basketball opponents, for the stocky guard proved vital in the prowler's scheme of offense last season. It was through Keith's efforts, his dribbling tactics, that the Bemidji Lumberjack's pressing defense was made futile.

We're sorry to see Keith leave the prowlers, for he was a good basketball player, and there were occasions when he was a great one.

While Keith's loss will be real, and the Prowlers will be hurt, it shouldn't be taken as a crippling departure. After all, there are ten or eleven lettermen available for next season's campaign, and such capable guards as Jimmy Bennes, Kenny Jones, Lynn Nicholson, and Mickey Hanson. Fact is, the knowledge that Keith isn't in the back court to bring the ball up the floor, may have a beneficial effect on the play of next season's guards. They may become more self-reliant, and, consequently, better players.

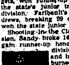
And we wish Keith lots of good luck as he brings his athletic talents to Billings.

The State's Second Best Junior

Stan Wilson and his young son Sandy returned on Sunday from Blooming Prairie where, on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday they attended and participated in the 75th annual tournament of the Minnesota State Trapshooting Association.

Sandy, breaking 94 of 100 targets, won runner-up honors in the state's junior trapshooting division. Faribault's Kirk Andrews, breaking 99 out of 100, won the state junior honors.

Shooting in the Class D division, Sandy broke 143 x 150 to gain runner-up honors in that division.



Sandy and his dad have burned up a lot of gun powder this season, and in Sandy's case it's been proving worthwhile. Stan claims that he isn't a tournament shooter, and that why his record doesn't compare with Sandy's.

During the season to date, Sandy has shot at 750 registered targets from the 16 yard line, and 800 targets at a handicap distance of 19 yards. That's a total of 1350 registered targets, and in addition he has shot at innumerable targets at the local club and unregistered shoots.

Social Item

Following their softball game this evening, and it's one of the most important of the season, the Bridgeman's and Bjorkman's teams will hold their annual picnic and three-cheers-for-us gathering. This event, which, according to our recollections, has been an annual event for the past ten years or so. And there are players on the two teams that haven't missed a meeting.

The "boys" on the Bjorkman's and Bridgeman's aren't boys anymore, for judging by the calendar they are mostly in their thirsty thirties or their fat forties.

In previous years, the Bjorkman's, carrying league championship and playoff championship titles in their bat sack, have been the "lords" of these picnics; but not this year. It's the Bridgeman's and they have posted a fine season recod, who are entitled to be addressed as "Mr. Softball."

The location of tonight's gathering hasn't been proclaimed, but the East Side has been put on an alert, and it has been subjected to an insect-spraying, so it's probable that the picnic will be held there.

Don't Miss

We're warning all of the baseball fans not to miss the Legion's sub-district junior baseball tournament that will be taking over the Fair Grounds diamond, today, (Thursday) and Friday.

This afternoon's game will find East Grand Forks meeting Hallock. At seven o'clock this evening Joey Poole's locals, the defending champs, will play Stephen.

The sub-district finals will be played on Friday, 7:00 p. m. That 7:00 p. m. was agreed upon because the coaches of the out-of-town teams maintained that Thief River Falls would have an edge if the games were played under the lights. The local club, you know, has played several of their games under the lights.

Coach Joey Poole's squad will enter the tournament as the favorites, and with reason. With such hurlers as Bob Hallameck, Harlie Drees, and Arlan Hjelle, the local club is well equipped with pitching strength. And, too, the locals have played a schedule against some of the strongest teams in this vicinity. Game experience such as that is vital to a team.

Fire Chief Asked to Attend Parley

Governor Sets Meeting on Fire Prevention July 26

Chief Roy Langevin of the local fire department, has been invited by Governor Orville Freeman to a conference on fire prevention on July 26 in the new building of American Hardware Mutual Insurance Company in Minneapolis.

Chief Langevin is one of 739 Minnesota fire chiefs summoned to the session by the governor.

Governor Freeman stated that, "During the year 1956, fires in Minnesota resulted in 63 deaths, of whom 35 were children, and in $13,500,000 property damage. The property damage was $1,500,000 more than in 1955, and the fire deaths increased 75%. Fifty-five per cent of these fire deaths were children.

"I am deeply concerned by this record, especially when compared to the rest of the nation. I am, in fact, alarmed since experience and surveys prove that 9 out of 10 fires could have been prevented but for someone's carelessness.

"Participating in the conference will be national, state, and municipal officials, business and industrial leaders and fire safety experts, including the executive board of the International Association of Fire Chiefs. They will explore the complex fire problems which confront our state with emphasis on home prevention and the protection of the lives of our children."

Adolph Erickson on Board of Co-op

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Farmers Cooperative Grain and Seed association, Adolph Erickson of Grygla was elected to the board to fill out the unexpired term of Joseph Johnson of Goodridge, who passed away recently. Erickson will serve until the annual meeting of the association next fall.

Bar Assn. Tells What Happens to Children Who Violate the Law

What happens to children in Minnesota under 18 years of age who commit acts constituting law violations?

These children come orginally under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court in Minnesota, the Minnesota State Bar association explains. The juvenile court can either retain, determine and dispose of the matter under juvenile court procedures, or, in cases of children over 12 years of age, refer them to authorities that handle violations of persons 18 years of age or older.

What determines whether a case should be removed from juvenile court jurisdiction? The welfare of both the child and the community is carefully considered. If longer control than the 21 year old age jurisdiction limit is needed, or if adult security facilities are necessary, or if the regular criminal procedures fit the circumstances, then the juvenile court can exercise its discretion to relinquish its jurisdiction and transfer the case for adult handling. Generally this is rarely done in children under 16 years of age.

All violations and problems retained for disposition in juvenile court may be disposed of either informally without adjudication of delinquency or formally by an adjudication of delinquency, according to the Minnesota State Bar association.

The philosophy and procedure of the juvenile code is, wherever possible, to find the cause of the conduct or problem and attempt to find the best method to remove the source or cause. It takes into consideration the age and degree of maturity of the child, and family and community influcenes that may be a factor. Knowing generally that the child must usally return to his own parents and home if he is taken away to a foster home or institution, it is found wise to try to help the child and his family in their own home with the problems that may be involved. Where such help cannot be effectual, then substitute parents and homes are used. The child and parents are accorded a nontechnical, non-criminal hearing, which is private but not secret.

The court takes into consideration all facts brought forth and the social study that has been made by a probation officer in making its disposition of the problem. If the nature of the problem and circumstances involved is such that supervision by a probation officer in the child's own home or foster home or other community resources are not adequate to meet the needs of the child, then boys or girls may be committed to the Youth Conservation Commission which has reception centers at Red Wing for boys and Sauk Centre for girls. There the children are further studied and observed and appropriate plans are made for them. Hennepin and Ramsey Counties maintain home schools for boys of their own, where boys may be placed or committed. The Home of the Good Shepherd also accepts some girls in their school and home in St. Paul.

The juvenile court in Minnesota is not a criminal court, but is a court of equity where the state steps in for the welfare of the child, consistent with protecting the community. A child under juvenile court procedures does not have a criminal record such as he would have if he were handled in a criminal court.

In this way, most children and youths who come before the juvenile court are given an opportunity to get back on the right track, without having a criminal record established against them. Neither roughness nor coddling is the aim of juvenile courts. Realistic helpfulness is its aim.

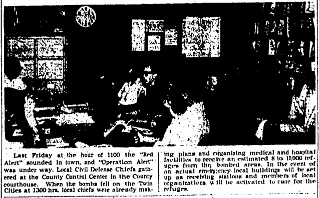
At 1100 Hours The Alert Sounded



Last Friday at the hour of 1100 the "Red Alert" sounded in town, and "Operation Alert" was under way. Local Civil Defense Chiefs gathered at the County Control Center in the County courthouse. When the bombs fell on the Twin Cities at 1300 hrs. local chiefs were already making plans and organizing medical and hospital facilities to receive an estimated 8 to 10,000 refuges from the bombed areas. In the event of an actual emergency local buildings will be set up as receiving stations and members of local organizations will be activated to care for the refuges.

100,000 to Attend Rally in St. Paul

Service Aug. 25 to Close Lutheran World Assembly

Lutherans of the world will take part in a mass expression of faith in the concluding festival service of the Lutheran World Federation's Assembly on the new approach grounds facing the Minnesota state capitol building in St. Paul at 4 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 25.

Members of the various Lutheran church from throughout the United States, coming in chartered buses, special trains and planes and by automobile, will swell the afternoon festival crowd to more than 100,000, assembly officials believe.

"The Voice of the Critical World" will form the challenging theme of the great outdoors rally, with five persons from different parts of the world answering "the critical voice" in terms of their Christian faith and experience.

It is expected that at least 50 per cent of the huge Sunday audience will not have had the opportunity to attend the Assembly sessions in Minneapolis Aug. 15 to 24, so the program is planned to allow them to carry away the inspiration, thought and purpose of the entire Assembly and its theme, "Christ Frees and Unites," it was pointed out by Dr. E. Clifford Nelson, Assembly director.

The festival service will begin with music by the Luther College band from Decorah, Iowa. A massed choir of 5,000 voices will sing, and a colorful processional march will include the 700 Assembly delegates, official visitors and guests from far-away lands. Church leaders will be dressed in the robes of their offices, representing churches in nearly 50 countries. An African pastor will give the invocation, and an Indian bishop will give the closing prayer. All-faiths will be welcome to attend, the Assembly committee said.

Rural Mail Men Set Safe Driving Mark

Drive 52 Million Miles in Region, with 89 Mishaps

Carriers of the United States mail on rural routes in Minneapolis Region drove 52,134,558 miles in a recent 12-month period — from July 1, 1956 to July 1, 1957.

This is enough mileage to make 101 trips to the moon — and come back home again.

In all these miles of travel on busy highways and winding country roads, with frequent stops to deliver mail, the postal region's 3,500 rural carriers had only 89 traffic accidents. From this tiny safety-conscious total, a deduction of eight accidents can be made because they happened to carriers' vehicles while they were properly parked.

The accident rate for the region's rural fleet, meaning the number of accidents per 100,000 miles driven, is down to a small fraction — only .16.

The region's record for safe driving by rural carriers is being reported this month to the National Safety Council. This postal region, which includes North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, has 3,442 rural routes.

"This is an excellent record, and rural carriers in this Region are to be commended," said Frank J. Gashey, regional director, Post Office Department. He pointed out that the fiscal year 1957 traffic mishap total of only 81 is a noteworthy improvement over the previous year's total of 124.

Escape Routes in State Marked for Use When Attacked

State at Work Setting up Routes Leading away from Military Target Areas

A new route marking project of vital concern to residents of the state in case on an enemy attack or a large scale disaster in densely populated areas is being undertaken by the state.

This is the resignation and marking of evacuation routes leading from so-called military target areas.

Signs already have been installed marking 38 evacuation routes leading from the Twin Cities for a radius of 25 miles. The Twin Cities as well as Duluth, are classified as principal target areas for any enemy attack which might occur. Moorhead and East Grand Forks are among less critical potential target areas.

The routes extend over U. S., state and county highways as required for rapid large-scale evacuation of people to safer areas. When completed the marked routes will extend from the target areas to communites in which the evacuated people could be located during the emergency.

Thief River Falls, is listed by the Civil Defense as one of the major evacuation spots in the district.

Routes established in the Twin Cities 25 mile radius are marked by more than 1,185, 24 inch round reflectorized signs on more than 800 miles of highways placed at a cost of approximately $17,000.

The federal government is paying one-half the cost, the state and affected municipalities, one quarter each.

Farm fires cost farmers about 145 million dollars last year, according to estimates from the U. S. Department of Agricultures.

Controlling The Weeds

Local police, city, county and state, have done well again in clearing up a batch of unsolved small crimes. It is well that the youthful offenders have been apprehended; well for the offenders themselves as for the public in general.

Several in the group have long records of mischief to answer for. While each of them has an important decision to make, there are a few who probably should be given a special opportunity for meditation before reaching a conclusion as to whether they will become respected and useful citizens or continue in their stupid ways.

The police have done their job and the problem now rests with the juvenile court and the state's youth conservation commission. It has seemed to us that too often in the past the good work that has been done by the police has been undone by these agencies.

"Youth Conservation" is a nice sounding phrase, and we are all in favor of it. Most of us agree that youthful offenders are not necessarily bad. Most of us have vivid recollections of our own misconduct. Many of us who recall the close relationship that at one time existed between crime and punishment, wonder seriously if a back to the woodshed movement is not what we need most of in a program of restoring to normal thinking, or conserving, our problem children.

And let's keep in mind that punishment has two purposes. One is to lesson and improve the offender. The other purpose, and in some instances the most important purpose, is to prove to others, by example, that wrongdoing leads to serious consequences.

Too often, in the past, in attempting to eradicate a few weeds we have left too many seeds.

Price Cycles Natural

Meat prices are up and probably will remain at a relatively high level for some months to come, according to those who study production trends. These predictions apply to beef, pork and lamb. Turkeys, however, probably will be comparatively cheap.

The producers of "red" meat know that the present cycle of favorable prices probably will be followed by a period of unfavorable prices. They know that the higher prices will encourage increased production. And the turkey growers know that the lower prices this year will discourage production next year.

And so it is with the egg producers, those who make egg production their main business. They know from exprience that high prices bring increased production and low prices, and that low prices bring curtailed production and high prices.

The producers who are in the business of producing beef or pork or eggs or turkeys, or many other perishable products, know that prices and production will be a succeeding cycle of ups and downs. They anticipate the changes. It is the producers who are in one year and out the next who almost invariably find themselves in and out at the wrong time.

It is significant, as it is encouraging, that the organizations that speak for the producers of these products are not asking for government price and production controls. Year in and year out they pass resolutions at their annual meetings asking that the laws of supply and demand be permitted to function without government interference.

It is encouraging mainly because it indicates a recognition of the fact that there is a relationship between supply and demand; that when things are plentiful they ample supply to meet the demand, their are cheap; and that when they are not in market value goes up.

There was a time, not many years ago, when we attributed all our misfortunes to evil spirits. It was only a century ago that a chemist proved that there are such things as germs, little fellows who live among us, some good and some bad. Nearly half of the members of the medical profession held at the time that he was a faker.

Only a few generations back, our ancestors were burning witches to cure their aches and pains. Disease and disaster were attributed to an evil eye, and many old women, suffering the infirmities and deformity of age, were fried alive in the public square, because the good citizens of the community knew that they were responsible for certain misfortunes.

We have made progress in the field of medicine. We no longer burn witches as a means of prevailing upon providence to put an end to pestilence. But it still is popular to burn witches to solve our economic problems.

And that is why it is encouraging to know that some farm organizations are seeking to find solutions for their problems realistically and not by the methods of black magic. The witch burners still are a numerous groups, but gradually, more and more, we are being guided by facts.

One thing that is essential for a solution to any problem, whether it be in medicine or agriculture, is a respect for facts. Truth does not make us entirely free. While it liberates us from error,, we will always be in bondage to reality. Getting ourselves adjusted to the shakles of truth sometimes is an unpleasant experience.

Travelogue

Having just returned from a 4,000-mile motor trip to Glacier and Yellowstone national parks, we find it a bit difficult to get adjusted to the task of writing a column, so we will devote this week's stint to a review of some of the high-lights of our travels, knowing full well that this is familiar territory to many of our readers.

—0—

We highballed west from Grand Forks thru the grain fields of North Dakota to the oil well territory, which continued into Montana. We visited the Fort Peck dam area, and were impressed by the magnitude of the project, including an earth-filled dam measuring fully five miles across the valley of the Missouri river.

—0—

Farther west in Montana we came upon endless miles of lush wheat fields planted in accordance with the strip-farming method. The rank growth of the grain indicated that there has been an ample supply of moisture this year.

—0—

Arriving in the spectacular scenery of Glacier park, we spent three nights at a motel overlooking mountain-hemmed Lake McDonald, while visiting various parts of the park, including the nerve-tingling ride over Logan Pass, and a side trip to Kalispell, near where we inspected the Hungry Horse dam, third tallest concrete structure in the world.

—0—

Enroute to Yellowstone park, we stopped overnight at Virginia City, Montana, which in 1863 was the scene of a gold discovery that quickly built up the population of the town to 10,000. Today the population has shrunk to a few hundred, and the town has been restored to its original condition of 90 years ago. Among the institutions now operating are the Virginia City opera house, where John Drew and Lillian Russell once peformed; the Wells-Fargo express office, carriage house, assay office, museum and Bale of Hay saloon.

—0—

We found Yellowstone park even more interesting than Glacier, with its greater variety of scenic wonders, including Old Faithful geyser, which erupted regularly at one-hour intervals; the countless fumeroles emitting hot steam, Mammoth Hot Springs and the spectacular Yellowstone Falls. We visited the park the week-end after the Fourth of July, when the tourist crowds were at their peak. The ubiquitous black and brown bears were responsible for long lines of stalled cars waiting for pictures to be taken. Incidentally, the bears showed little regard for the anti-litter signs posted in the park, for every garbage can we saw had been overturned by the bruins in their quest for food.

—0—

From Yellowstone, we made a side trip to the Grand Tetons, the American Alps, a group of separate peaks rising to a height of 12,000 feet. The most dazzling feature to us was the solid carpet of red, yellow and blue mountain flowers in the mile high meadows.

—0—

Heading back east, we came to the highest mountains yet to be encountered, the Big Horns of Wyoming. Reaching the Black Hills of South Dakota, we were impressed by their luxuriant growth of pine trees, and by the carvings on Mount Rushmore.

—0—

The Bad Lands proved to be one of the outstanding scenic features of our trip. During the past few years an excellent new highway has been completed, taking motorists down into the weird rock formations and up to points where broad vistas can be observed.

—0—

Coming back home thru Minnesota, we concluded that no spot looked better to us than this town of Thief River Falls that we call home.

Community Club Picnic A Real Success

The Steiner Community Club picnic last Sunday was well attended. It was an ideal picnic day and everyone hod a good time. The program included community singing led by Mrs. Carl Torgerson with Mrs. Rolland Sande at the piano, readings by Mrs. Merle Dagen, Alfred Solem, Kathleen Torgerson, and Mrs. Alfred Solem, a skit "The Three Bears and Goldilocks" with Mrs. Clifford Nelson as narrator, two solo numbers by Mrs. Carl Torgerson with Stanley Torgerson at the piano, and a piano solo by Stanley Torgerson. There were races and contests for all and horse shoe games for the men.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

One law passed by the 1957 session of the Minnesota Legislature provides for the creation of an interim commission for the recodification of public welfare laws. This commission will deal with all of the laws under which the department of public welfare operates except those dealing with corrections.

Need For Revision of Laws

There are two basic reasons why a re-examination of welfare law is necessary. The 1953 Legislature combined the department of public welfare and institutions into one department. But laws that directed the operations of these two departments are still in effect. There are inconsistencies and ambiguities that should be corrected.

In addition, many of the laws pertaining to both departments contain provisions that are now obsolete. These, too, should be corrected. Since the department of additions to welfare laws have become apparent. Some improvements made at the last session, others remain to be made.

The Children's Code

One of the areas in which the commission will make recommendations is the field that includes all laws relating to children who need protection of some sort, including dependent and delinquent children.

Revision will also be considered for the act which describes juvenile court procedure. Judges who administer this law have recommended its revision for some time.

Psychopathic Personalities

There are now two laws dealing with psychopathic personalities. One passed in 1939 provides for procedure to be followed to secure admission of such persons to state institutions, but no charge is brought against the individual himself. The other, passed in 1953, deals with such cases in district courts when actually charged with a crime.

The distinction between these two laws is not always clear, and in any particular situation there may be confusion as to which law is applicable. It is hoped that the Commission will recommend one comprehensive law relating to psychopathic personalities that could replace the two laws that now exist.

Thirty-five Commissions

The Legislature has set up thirty-five commissions in all, to function during the interim between sessions. The studies made by such commissions, and the recommendations they make, are of real assistance to the legislators as they meet for their biennial session of only ninety days.

Each commission deals with a different subject. One is to study election laws, one highway laws, one for conservation laws. One will report on the practice of osteopathy. One will study our lower court system, and another will study public retirement programs. There is one to study petroleum taxes, and another to study the taxation of iron ore. One will deal with agricultural schools, and another with higher education.

These are only a few of the many subjects of importance to Minnesota lawmakers and Minnesota citizens that will be the subject of study and recommendation before the next session of the legislature will meet in 1959.

The first time they met was at the funeral of their sister, Violet, who passed away suddenly at Jackson, Minn. July 7th, 1955. Their sister Dorothy was unable to be present at that time but it was then decided that they were to meet each year around that time. Last year they met in Minneapolis, July 7th and 8th, two of the Roods, Richard and Dorothy were unable to attend. There were 49 present at that reunion. This year they were so fortunate to have the use of the Bible Camp at the Lake of the Woods and by Saturday evening the Rood families were all there. Sunday morning they all met in the chapel for a song service at which time an uncle, Iver A. Rood of Conrad, Montana spoke a few comforting words and aunt Martha directed a junior choir composed of the Rood youngsters. On Monday, their mother's brothers, Olaf, of Warren, John, of Newfolden and her two sisters, Mrs. Albert Haugen of Warren and Mrs. Marie Wallsten of Minneapolis and their families were also at the camp with them. The children and men probably were kept the busiest. The children playing games and swiming and the men were fishing. The women, of course, were kept busy cooking although some of the women proved to be better fishermen than some of the men. There were sixty one present at this reunion and they all felt that they had again renewed acquaintances, re-called oldtimes and retold some of the many family incidents and hoped that they could be as fortunate again next year to have the chance to be together again. See actual road-test proof!
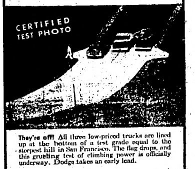
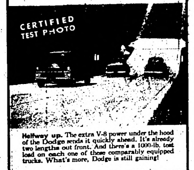
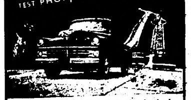
DODGE outperforms "other two" low-priced trucks!



They're off! All three low-priced trucks are lined up at the bottom of a test grade equal to the steepest hill in San Francisco. The flag drops, and this grueling test of climbing power is officially underway. Dodge takes an early lead.



Halfway up. The extra V-8 power under the hood of the Dodge sends it quickly ahead. It's already two lengths out front. And there's a 1000-lb. test load on each one of these comparably equipped trucks. What's more, Dodge is still gaining!



Dodge flashes past the finish five lengths ahead of competition. Truck "C" and truck "F" just couldn't match that 204-hp. Power Giant. And this is just one of a rugged series of tests that prove Dodge is best of the low-priced three.

What will this picture be in 1960?

No one can be sure just how much of America's steel will be made from Minnesota iron ores 10 years, 5 years, or even 2 years from now. But, the trend is clear; competition from other domestic ores and from imports is increasing rapidly. What's more, most of these new ores that are coming on the market are of such high quality that steel mills are raising the standards for "acceptable" iron ore. Most of the remaining Minnesota ores can't meet the new standards without special treatment.

If Minnesota is to maintain its place as a major iron ore producer, many millions of dollars must be invested in the state for more research . . . more new plants to upgrade and improve our remaining ores. Everyone in Minnesota has a stake in encouraging a favorable climate for investment and employment and should support it.

RESEARCH AND INVESTMENT CAN KEEP MINNESOTA'S IRON ORE FUTURE BRIGHT!

Traffic Mishap Rate Declines to June 30

The downward trend in traffic fatalities in Minnesota which began several months ago has given the state its lowest fatal accident rate in 10 years, Harry A. Sieben, state traffic safety director, announced today in a six-months' report.

Despite the 53 traffic deaths in June, compared to 50 in 1956, vehicle miles traveled have increased much more than traffic accidents, resulting in a rate of 3.8 accidents, in which there was one or more fatalities, for each 100 million vehicle miles traveled. During no year since 1947 was the fatal accident rate lower than 4.3 per 100 million miles.

For the same period the fatality rate dropped from 4.9 to 4.8 deaths per 100 million miles. The 4.8 rate for the first six months of 1957 is considerably better than the rate of 5.1 for the entire year 1956 and the average of 5.26 for the previous five years, '52-56.

"Despite the fine showing of Minnesota motorists who have demonstrated that they really are good driver," Sieben warned, "we must not relax our efforts towards traffic safety. The summer months have always been the most dangerous months because heavy traffic results in greater exposure to accidents.

"The low accident rates, particularly over the Memorial Day and July Fourth holiday show that people can be safe on the highways. But they also point out that constant attention must be paid to safe driving. The holiday weekends seem to be the safest periods, as drivers forget themselves at other times and make non-holiday Friday, Saturdays and Sundays the most dangerous days of the week."

WHERE DO FARMERS SPEND THEIR MONEY?

Feed costs, says the University Institute of Agriculture, are the biggest single production expense on Minnesota farms. Out of an average of $6,052 annual production costs on the many state farms studied, feed takes $1,112 or 18.4%. Motor vehicles, machinery, and equipment rank second in cost at an average per farm of $845 a year, or 14.0 of the total outlay. Third is purchase of livestock and poultry at $609 per farm, 10%. Next in order are petroleum products 8.6%, repair and operating costs vehicles and machinery 6.9%, property taxes 5.5%.

Airborne Highway Patrol in Service

Two Piper Cub Planes Now in Use in Minnesota

With the purchase by the highway department in June of two large, radio-equipped Piper Cub airplanes, the highway patrol launched a seven-day week patrol of Minnesota trunk highways.

The planes will be used for traffic control by spotting and reporting to patrol cars by radio the location of traffic congestion on the highways.

They will aid the motorists by locating unreported accidents, and stalled vehicles and other traffic obstructions and hazards.

Their aerial view will make them valuable for spotting and curbing speeders and other traffic law violators by reporting their location and direction of movement.

To introduce the new traffic safety service to the people of Minnesota, the planes were to visit each of the patrol's district headquarters.

Kenyon Youth Is Winner of Safety Slogan Contest

"Slack up before you crack up" is the winning entry in the 1957 Minnesota 4-H safety slogan contest.

The slogan was submitted by Donald Hjortaas, 18, Kenyon. As first prize, he will take an expense paid trip to the National Safety Congress in Chicago in October, according to Leonard Harkness, state 4-H club leader, at the University of Minnesota. Hjortaas has been a 4-H club member and a safety project worker for 9 years. He has checked his home farm and has conducted special safety meetings.

Second-place winner is John Risch, 18, Halloway, whose slogan was "Passengers on tractors are accident factors." His prize will be an expense-paid trip to the 1957 Minnesota state fair.

State Heart Assn. Allocates Major Research Grants

Five Institutions Are Given Total of $317,732 to Finance Research

Dollars donated locally to the 1957 Heart Fund were thrown into the struggle against heart disease last week.

Minnesota Heart Association, holding its annual meeting July 9 in St. Paul, announced heart research grants totalling $317,732 have been awarded to 63 research scientists at five state institutions for 1957-58 study. Contributions from the 1957 Heart Fund drive will support heart study at Mt. Sinai and Minneapolis General hospitals; St. Paul's Ancker hospital; Austins' Hormel Institute; and the University of Minnesota.

This year's awards bring to more than $1.1 million the amount channelled into heart research by the Minnesota Heart Association in the past eight years.

During that time, public contributions have topped $2.3 million, according to newly-elected president Dr. Milton M. Hurwitz, St. Paul. He praised the Minnesota Association of Life Underwriters for providing effective statewide leadership for the annual Heart drive.

Under this year's grants, state scientists will probe the causes and cures of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries), high blood pressure, strokes, and related basic functions of the heart and blood vessels.

Cardiovascular disorders remain Minnesota's leading cause of death, accounting for 53% of all state mortality in 1956.

Jas. W. Clark Will Talk at Crookston Meeting July 24

James W. Clark, commissioner of the department of business development, announced today that plans are now complete for a series of state-wide regional meetings called by Governor Orville L. Freeman to be held in six different Minnesota cities the third week in July. The purpose of the meetings is to present a plan which will tell the Minnesota story through a joint program of national advertising and public relations.

Representatives of all Minnesota communities are invited to attend these meetings. All communities are invited to participate in this joint effort with consequent identification in the program being proportionate to the share in the cost which is involved. These meetings will appeal particularly to industrial committees of chambers of commerce and to industrial development corporation officials in those hundred or more communities which have already established such organizations.

The schedule of meetings includes: Wednesday, July 24, 6:30 p.m., Crookston, dinner meeting at Elks Club.

To facilitate arrangements of the meetings by the host cities it is requested that all who plan to attend, notify either the Department of Business Development or the Chamber of Commerce in the community they select.

Churches Share in State Centennial

Information Sought on Churches 100 Years Old

The Minnesota Centenial commission called today for information from all Minnesota churches which will become 100 years old in 1958 and those that already have passed the century mark.

Thomas H. Swain, Centenial executive director, said tentative plans are being made to form an honory centenial committee of pastors of the 100-year-old churches.

Religion, a great part in the 100-year history of Minnesota, will not be overlooked during 1958's year-long statehood commoration, Swain said.

Individual churches wishing to participate and accept recognition in the Minnesota Centennial celebration should contact the Centenial commission office in St. Paul by mail.

Deadline is August 15, 1957.

Contrary to popular opinion, heart disease is not an exclusive liability of the aged. Of the 810,000 deaths of heart and blood vessel disease in 1955, about 232,000 were under the so-called "retirement" age of 65.

CAN YOU LAUGH AT DUCKLINGS?

Betty can laugh at ducklings. She remembers that classic of the Ugly One who grew up to be a stately swan.

Betty laughs because she understands the story. She knows that some people, like ducklings, often scorn someone who is different.

But she knows, too, from her religious training, that there are times when a person must face the scorn of others and be different. In fact, already she has found that a primary aim of Christianity is to change life for the better . . . to help the individual be different so the world can be different.

Not everyone can laugh at ducklings. Some folks take quite seriously the dread of being different. For instance, there are men and women who don't attend Church, but who would like to. They simply feel awkward about breaking away from an indifference which they think is expected of them.

You can make it easy for the hungry-but-hesitant to attend Church. Always invite someone to worship with you.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
